Don't forget the girls' club party at the Temple Saturday afternoon, freshmen!

The Intercollegiate Prohibition association is a national organization which has charge of the university work in behalf of the prohibition movement. Last evening an I. P. A. was organized, in the Temple theatre and work among the students will begin today.

It is the unfortunate fact that most people have the preconceived erroneous idea that any religious or betterment movement has to be run by "sissies," and as a result, such movements are not met with the right boosting spirit.

There are arguments for both sides of every question, but the arguments for prohibition so far overbalance the arguments against, that it is marvelous that there should be any hesitancy at all to heartily co-operate with any movement which will unquestionably benefit everybody.

When you get discouraged and begin to wish you were home, even if you had to be out mowing the grass or turning the washing-machine, gather up some weinies, coffee, and some good "pals" and go to the Pen woods or the Farm,—and around a bonfire under the stars, you'll forget it.

Drill is in full swing, and every evening at five o'clock, a squad of timid freshmen stumble their way past The Nebraskan office. And from the "brave look in their eye," and the bold swing in their arms, we'd advise Villa to come up here and look at Nebraska's "soldiers," before he attempts anything else reckless.

Are there only a dozen freshmen in school? We've counted about that many green caps.

The Daily Nebraskan has been unavoidably detained at the post office window in the past few days, but in the future we promise that you can get your "Rag" at ten o'clock every morning.

semester to raise the scholarship so that sophomore pledging in any fraternity may be avoided.

Carl Ganz, '16, then told the freshmen what was expected of them if they wished to be successful fraternity men. He said a successful fraternity man must stand high in scholarship and university activity.

He must stand high in scholarship because he owes it to himself, he owes it to his fraternity and high scholarship is required before he can be admitted to university activities.

To stand high in university activity he must work hard and be democratic. The freshmen should heed these remarks and put forth their best effort for the benefit of himself, his fraternity and the institution.

The meeting adjourned with three cheers for Professor Buck, the chairman of the interfraternity council.

AWKWARD SQUADS

MAKE USUAL SHOWING AT FIRST DRILL

The annual appearance of innumerable awkward squads of the cadet regiment was made yesterday afternoon, when freshmen green received their first workouts in squad formations. The first year men had the usual difficulty in distinguishing left from right, and front from rear. They made a splendid impression as a potential body of citizen soldiers, however, and there can be little doubt that next year they will be moving with the precision and discipline of other university veterans.

Verne Austin, who was to lead the organized Nebraska students in helping the fight for the dry amendment at the coming fall election, according to information given The Nebraskan by Everett Baker last night said that he had declined to take the place. Austin declared that Mr. Baker had been mistaken in supposing that he would do the work here, as his time was too fully occupied to permit it.
