Will we beat Oregon?

There are very few students at a university who do not, at some time during the nine months of school require medical attention. If it isn't a cold, it's a toothache or the mumps, and at times there are typhoid and pneumonia, with appendicitis to relieve the monotony. And the doctor bills only seem to create a relapse.

Medical supervision has been established at nearly all of the larger schools in the country, and has been so successful that mass meetings of both men and women are to be held in the Temple and in Memorial hall, this morning at 11 o'clock, to discuss the establishment of a medical aid bureau and medical inspection at the University of Nebraska.

With the payment of a fee of three dollars, which will go to pay the salary of a regular attending physician, the student can have the medical attention of the physician at any time with no additional cost.

There are so many who abuse their health either through pure neglect, or for financial reasons, who would take advantage of the very reasonable fee—and would add it onto the profit side of the column, that medical supervision cannot help but be a good plan.

To have a project such as this become an established fact in the University, the matter must be passed by the Chancellor and Regents of the University. Because of this, the mass meetings have been called for this morning, and if enough enthusiasm is shown, and the students so desire it, the need of medical supervision and a medical aid bureau, supported by a small fee from each student, will be laid before the board for consideration and approval. The success of the plan depends on the number and support of the students at 11 o'clock today.

The newspaper men who were with Mr. Hughes when he was in Lincoln this week end, were entertained by Sigma Delta Chi, the national journalism fraternity, at dinner at the Lincoln hotel, Sunday evening. Journalism students and members of Theta Sigma Phi, the national journalism sorority, attended the reception before dinner, and their interest and enthusiasm in the newspaper men and their work was a very convincing argument of how truly the students here want a school of journalism.

Nearly all of the newspaper representatives who talked at the dinner, said that the training one gets in a school of journalism, helps him greatly after he gets into the real newspaper world. The representative of the United Press said that the college trained journalist is employed by the United Press in preference to the man who has learned only through experience. One man likened the theory of journalism taught in school to the theory of farming. The theoretical training saves time and unpleasantness when applied to the practical. We need a journalism school at Nebraska, and we need it badly.

Don't forget to give the band and the team a good sendoff tonight. We expect them to win and they expect our support.

THE DAYS GONE BY

Eight Years Ago Today

The University faculty assembled at the Lincoln hotel for dinner. The purpose of this first of a series of dinners, was to bring about a feeling of cordial good will and companionship between the professors and instructors.

The fraternity rushing season began, which was to last till November 25. Smokers were given at eleven fraternity houses.

Five Years Ago Today

The following Dramatic club officers were elected: Miss Alice Howell, president; Katharine Yates, Vice-president; Florence Hostetter, secretary; Earl Sage, treasurer, and Harry Coffee, custodian of property.

The Delta Delta Delta house was broken into and robbed of jewelry and money valued at a hundred dollars.

The debating squad had started work with a rush. Sixteen men and one woman, under the direction of Professor Fogg, were holding meetings six evenings a week.

Two Years Ago Today

Doctor Orr entertained about eighty pre-medics at the Orthopedic hospital. Honorary membership in the society was extended to Doctors Orr, Wolcott and Barker.

W. K. Fowler, '15, was elected captain of the Pershing rifles.

One Year Ago Today

Billy Sunday spoke at St. Paul church to a special meeting of University faculty and students.

BRIEF BITS OF NEWS

The zoology seminar has chosen for discussion "The Evolution of Animal Intelligence," by Holmes. Graduate students report on assigned topics every Wednesday at 5 o'clock, and the faculty members participate in the discussion; advanced students and assistants are also asked to be present, but they do not take part in the meeting. Last Wednesday Dr. Whitney and Dr. Wolcott outlined the investigation work being carried on, next Wednesday Dr. Barker and Dr. Latimer will continue the outline, after which the discussion of the book will take place.

An interesting booklet called "The Searchlight on Congress" has recently been received by the legislative reference bureau giving the legislative history of the United States senators. Each man's vote on every measure is given and also a non-partisan view of the records of every senator running for re-election. This book can be used for reference work by inquiring at the bureau.

Prof. Blanche Grant gave a talk in Hastings before the State Federation of Women's club last week.

Forty-eight people attended the Sunday afternoon exhibit at the art gallery from 3 to 5 o'clock. Marked interest was shown and Prof. Blanche C. Grant was present to explain the exhibition.

ENGLISH CLUB ELECTS FIVE TO MEMBERSHIP

Rose Anderson, '17, Livingston Gordon, '17, Marguerite Kauffmann, '17, Grace Ross, '17, and Fay Teel, '18, were elected to membership of the English club Saturday evening at the meeting held at Professor Louise Pound's home. About thirty-five were present.

The program consisted of an original verse narrative by Celia Harris, '09; a criticism of Liberalism, "A Box of Puppets" by Prof. S. B. Gass, and an original story, "The Red Gentian," by L. C. Wimberly, '16.

FRANCE AND WATKINS WIN IN TENNIS PLAY

The first round of the University tennis tournament, first called to a close Saturday, was finished Monday when France defeated Flood, 6-1, 6-2, and Watkins eliminated Aultman, 6-4 and 6-2. No matches of the second round have so far been reported.

ALUMNI NEWS

Charles H. Compton, '01, accompanied by his wife and their two children, is visiting his parents in Lincoln, on his way to his home at Seattle, Wash., after a prolonged trip to the east, where he has visited many of the large libraries of the country. Mr. Compton attended the New York State Library school, receiving his degree of bachelor of library science there in 1907. He has been librarian of the public library at Seattle for six years and has been doing some special work as a member of the publicity committee of the American Library association to secure an expert to act as advisor and for publicity in library work. PROFESSOR BUCK WRITES ARTICLE FOR THE NATION

P. M. Buck, Jr., professor of rhetoric, has written an article on "Naturalism in Fiction," which appeared in the last number of "The Nation," a New York literary and political weekly journal.

The article deals with the works of Arthur Schnitzler, and is one of a series of articles on modern German writers. One on "Gerhardt Hauptmann and Tragedy" appeared in an earlier number. The others to follow are to be on Sodermann, Halbe and German comedy.
