Spohn's Disappearance Made Frantic The Phi Gam's

The mysterious disappearance of Don Vilas "Pinkie" Spohn, caused his Phi Gamma Delta brethren to spend seven hours of worried search yesterday, while they feared all sorts of catastrophes had happened to their beloved fellow student.

Early in the afternoon it was noticed that "Pinkie" had not been seen, and the hunt began. Loud calls for "Pinkie" resounded through the house, making the welkin ring and rousing many echoes, but not producing Spohn.

Then the Phi Gam freshmen were ordered to the telephone, and in relays they called every possible place where Spohn might be. It was without avail. Phi Gams walked down town, up to the University, and to all of the favorite haunts of their missing friend, but as the shades of night drew down upon the city, and "Pinkie" had not been found, a general council was called to devise a better means of learning something.

They were plainly worried, and it was the opinion of most that something terrible had happened—and a searching party was ordered out while one went to the phone to call the police.

But then—and here ends the story—"Pinkie" who had fallen asleep in an obscure corner, and slumbered for night on to seven hours, appeared, and asked what in Sam Hill all the excitement was about.

TWENTY-TWO VARSITY MEN TO MAKE OREGON TRIP

tices will be had each day on the road and a last workout will be had on the field, where the game will be played, on Friday afternoon.

A squad of twenty-two men will be taken in addition to one freshman. The freshman who is to go is Sam Kellogg, the ex-Nebraska City star.

The choice of freshman was to have been made by Stewart, Rutherford, Halligan and Corey, but they could get no farther than the three best. It was then decided that the choice should be made by drawing numbers.

Men Who Will Go
Manager Reed wrote numbers on pieces of paper and shoo them up in his hat. Then amid deafening silence each one of the three, Schellenberg, Hubka and Kellogg sneaked up and coaxed the lucky number out, but Kellogg proved to have the only horse shoe.

The varsity men who will make the trip are as follows: Otoupalik, Corey, E. Kositzky, Moser, Dale, Shaw, Riddell, Cook, Caley, Rhodes, Gardiner, Doyle, Dobson, Wilder, Cameron, Maloney, Norris, Selzer, Porter, Heller, Hoadley and Proctor.

STEELE HOLCOMBE, '18,
ALSO PHI DELTA PHI
Clinton Steele Holcombe, '18, of Maxwell, Neb., was pledged to Phi Delta Phi, the legal fraternity, his name having been omitted from the list given to The Daily Nebraskan, and published yesterday.

NIGHT CLASSES AT N. Y. U.

To meet an increasing demand for courses of evening instruction of engineering and other technical studies, New York University has announced that its extramural division will include evening lectures and laboratory instruction in various phases of engineering as a part of the 1916-1917 curriculum. As most of the applications for engineering instruction in the evening come from young men lacking previous technical training, the beginning courses will be mainly elemental in character, although more advanced studies will be offered as the need becomes apparent.—Exchange.

THE IDEA OF A UNIVERSITY

Among the more than 600 courses offered at Columbia university this season are dancing, boxing, drainage, dairy work. How such a curriculum would have made the oldtimers stare, when much Latin and nearly as much Greek were almost the whole of the stock in trade of a scholar! The student who goes to the University of Pennsylvania to study dental surgery, or to Harvard to study blacksmithing, or to Princeton to study phonomy, is as far from the seventeenth century concept of a liberal education as Canopus or Rigel is from the earth.

Dr. Elliot said he would not be happy till most of the courses at Harvard taught a man to use his hands. In some genteel preparatory schools manual training for some foolish reason is still disparaged, and a good deal more than the desirable amount of time is spent in looking up the meaning of words in a glossary. It is a temptation to let the passion for the utilities go too far, and to dwell on the bread and butter argument and the dollar mark. Theory and practice, like science and religion, have no quarrel. Whatever the books contain of wisdom is to be reinforced and proved by the pragmatic test.

It is the business of the head and hands to co-operate of the theorist to instruct the artisan of the laboratory to be the radio-active intelligence office for the factory. The business executive, the broker of the finished product of a great plant of furnaces and chimneys, has learned that motor cars, steel rails and electric locomotives crystallize a highly specialized form of intellectual activity, and that a man may ravage a library or sit and think "how to do it" for hours of absolute mental concentration and be most valuably employing his time.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Guy Chamberlain, who will long be remembered at Kansas as a young gentleman of superior ability who once played on the Nebraska football team, has a cousin on the Hill who is said to have as much football ability as Chamberlain himself. Cousin's name is Will Beck, of Baldwin, and he is at present enrolled in Oread high school. He will enter the university in February.

Beck played on the Baker Academy team last year, where he made good with a vengeance. He is an excellent backfield man, according to report, and commonly punts fifty or sixty yards.—Exchange.

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS DIG CELLAR

In squads of fifty, with picks, shovels and wheelbarrows, 700 undergraduates of the University of New York will start excavating for the foundation of the new $275,000 Physics-Engineering Building. The building will be 50 by 200 and it is expected there will be 100,000 cubic yards of earth removed by the students for the basement of this new science hall. When administrative efforts failed to raise sufficient money to complete the building fund, the students, tiring of delay.—Exchange.

STUDENTS AT WISCONSIN NOW VOTE BY MAIL

The bill providing that voters temporarily absent from their home precincts may cast their votes by mail today became a law. Students residing in Madison whose home towns are within the state, and members of the militia regiments now at the front, will have a chance to cast their ballots in the coming elections.

The bill was introduced in the extraordinary session of the legislature which convened on October 10, in accordance with the call issued by Gov. Philipp. After being amended by the senate, it was passed by the lower house without dissenting voice, and yesterday received the signature of the governor. A special messenger will be sent to the front to receive and carry back the ballots of the militiamen.—Exchange.

Harvard is entering its 281st year of educational work with an enrollment of 700 freshmen.—Exchange.

Dartmouth Day will be celebrated next Friday with the inauguration of Ernest Martin Hopkins, of the class of 1901, to the presidency of that institution. He is the second college president under the age of forty to be installed this year among eastern schools.

Seniors will don cap and gown for the procession up to the auditorium and the day will be made one of festivities on the part of both faculty and student body on the Dartmouth campus.—Exchange.

AEROPLANE AT CIRCUS

An aviator turning double somersaults in the air will be one of the special features at the coming interfraternity circus at Chicago. The aviator, a student in the university, will drop bombs on a warship outlined on the field and otherwise perform in a hair-raising manner.—Exchange.

"I trust," said the anxious parent, "that there is nothing in the college curriculum that will endanger my son's patriotic spirit."

"My dear madam," said the professor, "our school fairly breathes the atmosphere of the new Americanism on all sides. We have even cut out the hyphen in the use of compound words."—Laurentian.

Caught in a rooming house: "You haven't anything on me; I sent a pair of socks to a laundry here, and did not get back anything but the ruffle on the top."—Daily Kansan.

Michigan has established a new honor system in its engineering school. According to its precepts, there is no committee, no faculty legislation, no signing of pledges. The student goes into the examination on his honor and is allowed to come and go whenever he pleases; if he sees any cheating, he is supposed to stop it, either by speaking privately to the "cribber" or else by calling the attention of the class to the matter.—Exchange.
