300 UNI GIRLS HEAR MRS. BRYAN ON SUFFRAGE

and the props of society on the grounds that to light the streets would increase crime by offering an inducement to people to be outside in the evening, instead of in home and in beds after dark. If God had intended the streets to be light at night, he would have found a way to bring it about, was the old argument. These arguments have a familiar ring even today.

While much that has been beneficial has had to be crammed down the throats of the men, that is not the way to get suffrage according to Mrs. Bryan. The women must not be disagreeable, she said.

Suffrage is a legitimate field for women and they do not intend to invade the rights of the men, she declared. The women wish only to be able to do the things that the men do not do. The feminine mind can discern things in a different light, and give to the masculine mind things it needs.

Afraid of Unsexing Women

Men are anxious not to lose the feminism of women, and are afraid of unsexing women by the ballot, said Mrs. Bryan. This is one of the biggest arguments of those opposed to equal suffrage.

Mrs. Bryan seemed to find little to justify men in this belief. Were it true, she said, then in the spring time no young man's fancy would turn to thoughts of love, because they would find no response; then would there be no more happy homes; men would die of broken hearts; and the home would become extinct.

This sort of talk is mere drivel, Mrs. Bryan asserted. Then she turned to some lessons of the campaign for suffrage at the last election.

When the first returns came in from South Dakota, it seemed that the suffrage amendment had won by about 10,000 votes, but when the later count was learned, it was found that the state on the north had rejected suffrage by a few thousands. This simply meant that the first returns, coming from towns where the women were organized, showed what could be done, while the later results from the rural districts where there was not battle, showed the cause defeated.

Nebraska girls should profit by this lesson, and perfect an organization to reach every rural community as well as the towns, Mrs. Bryan said. They must carry home the enthusiasm to cover all the territory.

Would Help Womankind

Women are asking the vote in order to help womankind, Mrs. Bryan said. There are now 6,000,000 working women in the United States who need helpful legislation. Most of the women who are forced into disreputable living to keep alive have to do so because of low wages, according to Mrs. Bryan. For them and for all women the vote is needed, and the women if they get it, will accept it as a responsibility and a duty, Mrs. Bryan declared.

J. Reid Green, a delegate to the national convention of the republican party at Chicago last June, spoke on the machinery of politics, explaining the system of the primaries, party convention, voting and many other things somewhat a mystery to the girls.

Miss Blanche Garten presided at the tea table. In addition to the University girls there were many members of the faculty, and representatives of the Lincoln alumnae chapter of the suffrage society, present.

The meeting was but the first of a series that will be held during the year. Every University girl is asked to interest herself in the work, which will mainly be a study of the question so that they will have positive and intelligent opinions on the question, and can take these opinions with them to their homes in the different parts of Nebraska when the campaign to give the ballot to women is begun in 1918.

Chancellor Samuel Avery returned from a two weeks' tour of the Pacific coast.

Enthusiasm was running high for the coming Kansas game. Many coeds were planning to make the trip to Lawrence.

Two Years Ago Today
The University of Nebraska held its first mixer. Over 1,000 students attended when 500 was the maximum number expected.

The Jayhawkers were in town wearing a confident smile although the final result was 35 to 0, Nebraska. This game won the Missouri valley championship for Nebraska.

One Year Ago Today
The Girl's club held a party at which the point system was discussed. No action was taken, but committees were appointed to investigate.

Nebraska beat Kansas by a score of 23 to 0 at Kansas.

The Teachers' college high school was given a vacation Thursday and Friday of last week in order that supervisors and departmental teachers might have an opportunity to attend the state teachers' association in Omaha. Practically all of the twelve supervisors were profiting by the various programs given in the Omaha convention.

Wendell Card, son of Fred W. Card, former professor in horticulture here, visited both the city and farm campus recently. Mr. Card graduated from Cornell last spring.

Tuxedo is the right brand for the man who wants the full flavor and rich relish of Burley leaf—and that brisk, quick-step animation you puff through a pipe stem when "Tux" is in the bowl.

And it's the right brand for the man who wants to smoke oftener than once in a while. Go as far as you like with "Tux"—smoke it all day—the original "Tuxedo Process," used only in Tuxedo, takes all the bite and parch out of the leaf and leaves it mild, smooth and pleasant.
