Published every day during the college year. Subscription, per semester, $1.

Entered at the postoffice at Lincoln, Nebraska, as second class mail matter under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

The old year slipped away the other day, and a new year, full of new hopes and ambitions began for all of us. The old year had many pleasant memories, the new year has many pleasant anticipations. The old year had its disappointments, and its failures, the new year has its fresh possibilities and its renewed determination. There were times when the whole world looked black and dreary, when the last tiny spark of joy in living seemed to have flickered out, and you wanted to run far away from it all and hide. Then there were the other times when the world was hardly big enough for you and your happiness.

Whatever your experiences were they are a part of the past. There is the future to plan for and work for. A man can make his life to be, to a great extent, as he wishes it, and the uncertainty and chance in each venture in the future, the faith in one's own self, and friendship toward all, these are the things that give the charm to life and the welcome to a "Happy New Year."

The petitions for the establishment of colleges of journalism and commerce, which were presented to the regents during Christmas vacation, and referred by them to the senate, have been rejected. As a result, there will be no established college of journalism or of commerce at Nebraska, for the time being, although the chancellor was empowered to appoint a committee to recommend plans for the strengthening of the courses in journalism.

Commerce and journalism are two of the most practical courses that can be taught; and the college graduate who goes out into the world equipped not only with culture but also with the ability to earn a good livelihood for those who are dependent upon him, will make a far more useful citizen in this country of ours, than the man who has pegged along on the beautiful theories of the universe, for four years. The combination of the theoretical and the practical is the great need in many college curricula, at the present.

The fame of University Week has spread. This spring the entertainments have been scheduled for the western part of the state. Heretofore the schedule has been comparatively near Lincoln. The success of the enterprise is assured, and University Week is one of the biggest advertising schemes throughout the state for the University that could possibly be managed.

those whose application for membership in the class is pending, should report at 7:30 this evening (Thursday) at room 309, State House. It is quite imperative that all students who expect to receive credit for this semester's work, should attend all meetings of the class and particularly this first meeting.
