Entered at the postoffice at Lincoln, Nebraska, as second class mail matter under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

A student council would have for its object, the provision of an effective means of communication between the undergraduate body and University authorities, the maintenance and interpretation of Nebraska traditions, and a general supervision over student activities, organizations, traditions, customs, and conduct of the students in general.

This would be an organization of the students, and most decidedly for the students. It would create a renewed interest in student activities and rejuvenate the declining interest and spirit of Nebraska students.

Every student at Nebraska receives some benefit from activities. Only a few contribute for the support of these activities. For example, The Daily Nebraskan has about five hundred campus subscribers, and about fifteen hundred readers.

If every student should support student activities, no one would receive benefit from them without paying for them. The proposed system is that all pay and all receive benefit from the blanket tax.

The argument that it might prove a violation of private rights, may be answered to the effect that if any student will show that he cannot afford to pay the fee, he will be excused. This is only fair in such an institution as this is—democratic and supported by the state.

Questionnaires on the single tax were sent out to various schools last spring, and nearly every school reported that the single tax increased student interest. Another remarkable thing was the fact that no schools indicated a tendency to abandon the system, and were ever considering increasing the amount to cover other activities.

Five thousand men and women will come to Lincoln this week to attend the sixteenth annual meeting of the Nebraska State Agricultural associations at the University farm.

The different agricultural associations throughout the state send specialists to this meeting where the professors at the farm lecture to them and give them the benefit of the scientific experiments they have made under the most modern conditions. Classes are excused but the students are required to attend the lectures.

Every subject of interest to the farmer will be touched upon—from the farm loan law and the varieties of fruit for the home orchard and the garden to the newest approved method of canning fruit and raising future presidents.

It is one of the biggest meetings of the kind held in the country and the benefit derived is priceless. It is an opportunity to hear the discussion of subjects of the greatest importance, and anyone would be greatly benefited if they should attend.

THE DAYS GONE BY

Five Years Ago Today

The Girls' club gave a "kid" party at the Armory and sent out printed invitations.

Nebraska co-eds were drinking sterilized water as a result of the typhoid scare. Boiled water was being served in the women's locker room.

Two Years Ago Today

Thirteen applications had been made for the six positions on The Daily Nebraskan staff.

The Ames basketball team was in town preparatory to the games to be held the next day. Nebraska won both games.

One Year Ago Today

The Senior Prom was staged for February 5.

The annual meeting of the Nebraska Stock Breeder's association was in session. Dean E. A. Burnett of the college of agriculture, delivered the address of welcome.

On request of the fraternities of the University, a scholarship secretary, assistant to Dean Engberg, was to be appointed for the following semester.

The formal season opened with the Junior prom the previous Saturday.

ALUMNI NEWS

Efficiency Agent A. O. Johnson, is ill with la grippe.

Irene Hullett, '20, has left school on account of illness.

A copy of the annual report of the Art Jury of Philadelphia has been received by the art department. This contains a list of public works that are classed by the art jury where everything of public or semi-public nature is listed.

Forty students of the college of agriculture have enrolled in the "Experience" story writing contest which is being conducted by the Nebraska Farmer. These stories must tell some novel, original farm management method of some sort, which they have really tried out. Girls as well as boys have enrolled. Prizes of $8, $5, and $3, are to be awarded.
