dreadful sound—the thunderous tread of the avenging gods, the real idols. These monstrous creatures come down from the mountain side and pass by the impostors. And after they have passed the beggars are turned into the very things they have pretended to be—idols of green jade!

The play is said to be most effectively staged in the Portmanteau. The last act is especially terrifying in its effect and, by the ingenious system of lighting, the illusion of the beggars turned into jade is declared to be horribly real.

The plays in the Portmanteau although superior in quality to the things ordinarily seen in our theatres, do not pretend to be "highbrow." They are first of all good entertainment and have a wide appeal even to those not particularly interested in drama or dramatic literature. "Nevertheless," one of the short plays to be given at the matinee is called by Mr. Walker his "tired business man's play," because it makes an especial appeal to a man's audience—and, by the way, to children.

Among the members of the company are Gregory Kelly, a young actor who first came into prominence with Mrs. Fiske; McKay Morris who was declared in one New York paper "to be the makings of a genius"; Florence Wollersens, who first came to America from England to appear in the title part of Margaret Anglin's production of "Lady Windermere's Fan," Nancy Winston, one of the cutest and most attractive and at the same time one of the most talented of the very young American actresses, and 18 others.

THE CORNHUSKER WANTS PICTURES

Some Stragglers in Individual and Organization Photographs—Time to Close up These Sections

The Cornhusker management announced yesterday that more junior and senior individual pictures have come in up to date than ever before, but they are not satisfied as yet in their effort to make this year's book complete. They have granted juniors and seniors who are delinquent a few more days in which to have a picture taken and turned in. After next Wednesday no photograph will be accepted and the staff urges all the tardy ones to get busy at once. It is hoped to make this section really complete.

The organization pictures are not coming in fast enough, according to DeWitt Foster, business manager. This department should be well on its way to completion, but some of the organizations have not yet set a date for their pictures. It is necessary that these organizations get their pictures in very soon if the publication of the book is not to be delayed.

self. Lad Kubik, of Clarkson, prominent in dramatic circles, is her opponent for the place.

William Johnson, of Pawnee City, and Fay Pollock of Lincoln are the two candidates for president of the sophomore class. Both have strong backing. For the position of junior managing editor of the Cornhusker, Roy Bedford and Robert Wenger, both of Lincoln, have machines in the field. Both are putting up a strong race, and it is expected that the vote for this position will be one of the heaviest of the day.

In the freshman class, Vaughn Gaddis of Hastings and Michael Dalley of Omaha have backers for the presidency.
