EXHIBITION OF JAPANESE ART

Collection Sent by Government Now in Gallery—Interesting Study

The collection of pictures presented to the American Library association by the Japanese government and sent from library to library as a traveling loan exhibition by this association, is now on exhibition in the art gallery. There are twenty-three art panels in the collection, which were in the Japanese educational exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition. They are water color paintings on silk, sketches of the work of the pupils in the school of fine arts at Tokyo. Some of them are the work of fifteen and sixteen year old students. During last summer they were on exhibit in the Chicago public library, where they attracted considerable attention.

The majority of the sketches are of flowers or fruits with some animal or bird brought in to furnish the sole contrasting color. One of the most striking panels shows a black kitten among the scarlet, frost-touched leaves of a persimmon tree. Here the eyes of the cat "echo" the dominant coloring of the picture. The cat is particularly pleasing yet it is realistic in its faithfulness to fact and its decorative and suggestive quality.

Example of Old Art

Another interesting sketch called "Early Spring," is said to be one of the best examples of the older Japanese art, without so much of the modern influence. It has the old spirit of strong feeling for decorative harmony of coloring. The colors are rich and warm, yet soft.

A panel portraying a Japanese countrywoman gives an idea of the impress of European realism. The subject is not so graceful nor so pleasing as are the Japanese figures in the sketch of the girls among the cherry blossoms, yet its realism makes it extremely interesting.

The strong decorative feeling is especially noticeable in all the work. The love of the Japanese for animals is evidently strong, if we are to judge by the charming way they handle them as subjects.

BRYSON BACK FROM CONFERENCE

vested in the different councils. Some had merely the right to recommend or suggest, and others had more power, even to the right to overcome a faculty veto of a council decision by a two-thirds vote.

"After the discussion with representatives from other universities where the student council is in force, I think it is the only thing for Nebraska, and I see no reason why it should conflict with the purpose of any of the other organizations on the campus," Bryson declared.

NEED TWO MORE IN PROHIB CONTEST

Six Have Entered for Frances Willard Oratorical Prize in April

Two more entries are needed for the prohibition oratorical contest to be held the first week in April. Two more men have signified their intention of entering the contest, making a total of six. The number is limited to eight.

The Frances Willard organization, which donates the prizes, has asked that all entries be in within the next week, and those who wish to enter should see Ernest Lundeen as soon as possible and leave their names with him.

The winner of the contest represents Nebraska in the intercollegiate contest, in which is entered representatives from the other colleges of the state for a $100 prize. Hastings college has written that its contest will be held the last of this month and the other colleges will hold their contests about the same time as Nebraska. Lloyd Foster, '16, won the University contest last year.
