HISTORY OF THE ELEPHANT
Prof. E. H. Barbour Traces Genealogy of Nebraska Prehistoric Monsters Before Sigma Xi

Sigma Xi members heard about the mastodons and mammoths of early-day Nebraska from Prof. E. H. Barbour of the department of geology at Music hall Thursday evening.
Professor Barbour used colored stereopticon views in discussing the appearance of these monsters. Furthermore, he told what they ate, what they did to pass the time, and how they died. He believes that all animals in the first place lived on fruits, grains, and vegetables that they did not eat each other at all until they gradually learned that they could satisfy their hunger more quickly by eating flesh. He believes that the hog is now becoming carnivorous, turning from a vegetable to a flesh diet. Flesh-eating animals are more savage.
Following the lecture in Music hall, Professor Barbour conducted a tour through the Museum, pointing out the specimens there and explaining the stages they represented.

Chancellor Avery's Statement
In connection with Mr. Roosevelt's acceptance of the invitation to be present at the semi-centennial celebration, Chancellor Avery issued the following statement yesterday afternoon:
"The credit for securing Colonel Roosevelt next June rests largely with the statehood celebration committee. Mr. Bushnell and I acted under instructions in a purely representative capacity. We were, of course, in full sympathy with our colleagues and endeavored to the best of our ability to carry out the instructions received.

"Suggestions have been made in certain quarters that the committee thought that the attitude of Nebraska in general and of Lincoln in particular could be best demonstrated by the presence of Colonel Roosevelt. This was not quite the point of view of the committee. We believe, it is true, that no people are at heart more patriotic than those who live in the middle west, but our thought in securing Colonel Roosevelt was to stimulate rather than demonstrate this patriotism.

An Interesting Interview
"The interview that we had with Colonel Roosevelt was a most interesting one, and while I should consider it improper to quote for publication without authorization from the conversation, I feel sure that the Colonel will approve of my telling of his attitude towards American citizens of German descent.

"Beginning with some revolutionary worthies and continuing down to his former secretary, Mr. Loeb, he expressed his enthusiasm for patriotic American citizens of German descent. He referred to some of them as fit to lead our armies or to occupy the president's chair, remarking incidentally that he was himself of Dutch descent. He brought out further very plainly that he regarded Americanism in this country as a state of mind rather than a matter of pedigree, and he mentioned particularly that he should greatly enjoy having some patriotic American citizens born in Germany or of German descent on the platform with him at the time of his address.

"I mention this to clear up any misapprehension that may exist in regard to the Colonel's attitude towards any of our fellow citizens. His attitude towards the action of certain foreign governments is too well known to require comment."

LAURELS AWAIT TRACK ATHLETES

miler of a few years ago. When he came to the University he could do practically nothing, losing his first race here by about almost half of a lap. His second year he did a little better, and in his last two years he developed into one of the greatest milers in the country.
Zumwinkle believes that there are many men about school who have never tried their hands at any form of athletics who might make themselves into good men before they leave school if they would try. Freshmen especially should not remain idle. They have four years before them and it is probable that many men who have never been on the track in their lives could develop into real stars before they graduated, if they would start in this year and keep at it.

The coming track meet will be a fine opportunity for men to get out and see what they can do and it is probable that if a large number turn out for this meet some among them will prove to be of the caliber of men needed to fill the vacant places on the varsity this year.

A meeting of all men interested in a winning track team for Nebraska is called for next Tuesday at 11 o'clock in S 102, in the Armory.

WHAT WOULD THE UNIVERSITY DO IN CASE OF WAR WITH GERMANY?

Dean R. A. Lyman
"I do not believe that the University would be changed to any great extent for some time after a war were declared. We might offer the government the use of our laboratories, but there is small probability that the government will wish to take over college laboratories around the country."

Dean Stout
Dean O. V. P. Stout of the college of engineering said that Nebraska has men and brains to offer in cases of national need.

He said that this University, with other universities all over the country, could offer for war service men who have been trained to think and act. He believes that students of law and engineering are fitted for service, not only connected with the professions for which they are training, but in other lines.

Dean Engberg
"If actual war is declared, many of our young men probably would leave us. We might also help the government by going into our pockets after money, which it would need at once."

Dr. Stewart
"My desire in case of hostilities would be to have every athlete in the University make a part of his daily training military work, and I believe we should make military training compulsory for all men who have had none."
