CO-EDS HOLD FIRST BASEBALL PRACTICE

INDOOR GAME WILL BE PLAYED ON LARGER SCALE

Interest Will Center on Class Championship—Volley Ball to be Replaced

The indoor baseball season for girls will be an interesting and exciting one this year, if the enthusiasm which was manifested at the first practice yesterday is any indication. The physical education department has decided that there will be no volley ball since the demand is all for baseball. A plan has been worked out by which there will be a larger number of games played.

Instead of having only two teams, there are to be four, one to represent each class. The preliminary matches will be played before the girls' track meet and the two teams standing the highest will play that day. The plan is that in addition to the games between the class teams, the different divisions of practice will also compete. Thus the freshmen will play the sophomores and the 10 o'clock classes will be matched. If the girls continue to respond as they have done so far, this plan will become a certainty.

Seniors Not Turning Out
The senior team is the only one which has not responded to the call. Unless more girls turn out for practice, the senior class may not be represented according to the physical education department.

The women's athletic association is planning to give awards on the point system, which goes into effect January, 1918. Thus baseball is the next chance for those who wish to work for a trophy. Membership in the association will also be based upon the number of points which the individual has won.

First and second teams will be chosen from each class and points will be awarded relatively for each. This makes it possible for every girl to win points toward membership in the association or a trophy.

Several demands for tennis courts have already been made by co-ed athletes and the department of physical education hopes to be able to announce soon that they are in readiness.

WOULD YOU EXCUSE A MAN WHO BET ON A FOOTBALL GAME?

Y. W. C. A. Asks This and Other Questions About Co-Ed Opinions and Student Life

The University Y. W. C. A. is making an investigation of the religious and social life of University students by two sets of questionnaires which have been given to one hundred representative University women. These questionnaires are to be answered and given to the association unsigned. From these answers the association expects to recognize the defective conditions and if possible to remedy them. Results of the investigation will be announced soon.

The questionnaire asks concerning the residence (if in a rooming house, sorority house, at home or with relatives), the society affiliation, the class in school, to what extent self-supporting, church affiliation and attendance, activity in church and Y. W. C. A. work. Among the questions asked are:

"Do you feel any responsibility about whether or not your school's activities are successful? Does Nebraska have the right sort of school spirit? Has college brought you what you thought it should? Are you lonely? Do people seem friendly?"

"Do you make excuses for boys who gamble for small amounts? (For example, betting on football games?) Do you think it ever justifiable to give help on examinations? Do you attend mixers and all-University affairs? Do you do any social service work?"

WATER POLO ON CO-ED PROGRAM

Will be Feature of Interclass Swimming Meet—Some Swimming Stars

An interesting feature of the interclass swimming meet for University women which will be held the latter part of April, is a water polo game. The committee has not decided whether this is to be an interclass affair or not, but at all events, it promises to be exciting.

The ability displayed by many of the girls is considered remarkable, in view of the limited opportunities which they have had. Jane Kingery, Irene Springer and Ruth Hutton, captain, are among the freshmen who are promising. Miss Springer's diving is considered exceptional.

Among the sophomores the work of Helen Hewitt, Frances Ballard and Mildred McIntosh, captain, has been attracting attention. Eleanor Framp-ton is a junior star, and Lillian Wirt and Marjorie Green are the seniors who have shown especial skill.

ALUMNAE NOTES

Many calls have been received for the thesis written by Elizabeth Gordon, A. M. '14, entitled, "The Naming of the Characters in the Works of Charles Dickens." The last call has come from Cornell University. Miss Gordon is now teaching English in the Technical high school at Indianapolis, Ind.

Maurine Wingert, ex-'18, who is studying at Wellesley this year, was one of the representatives of her school at the national intercollegiate debate which was held at Vassar, Saturday, March 17.

Clara Janouch, '14, who is teaching English at Fairbury, visited in Lincoln Saturday and Sunday. Miss Janouch is a member of the Komensky club.

Syracuse University has been affected by paper shortage. Because of this the Syracusean will not be published until paper can be obtained. Every effort is being made to obtain the necessary amount.—Ex.

AMERICA IN WAR FOR DEMOCRACY

ern in position than Russia, is not so far advanced, now that Russia has thrown off the old government, is the belief of Professor Fling.

"Germany is still controlled by a centralized, bureaucratic, autocratic government. Germany is still controlled by a ruler who holds by the theory of the divine right of kings. This is what has made this war possible."

Some Things Worse Than War
"I'm no fire-eater," Professor Fling continued, "but there are some things worse than war. The young man who gives his life for some great heroic thing, to humanity, to help in the realization of some of the great spiritual things, has lived a long life although he dies at 21."

Professor Fling asserted that the United States had waited long enough in entering the war and that he should have liked to have seen this country go into it when Belgium was invaded. It is a most false and partial argument to say that we are going in for the sake of American business, it is for principles far greater than that. One reason for the delay of our government was the vast ignorance of the people, he thought.

SENIOR POETS ARE INSPIRED, BUT OH! HOW MODEST!

In a pigeon-hole in the desk of T. A. Williams, agent of student activities, shyly hiding from the public view, are a half-dozen neatly-folded manuscripts, some of them written in a small, contemplative feminine hand, and others in the more irregular scrawl of man.

They were found at different times last week in different ways. Some of them, it may be supposed, were dropped carelessly in the mail box, others were inadvertently left on a ledge or a desk in the office.

They were all written in meter of some sort, and all said something in a philosophic sort of way about the value of higher education and the lasting bonds of friendship. None of them were signed.

They were senior poems, left for the consideration of the committee.

Unless the owners come to the office to claim them, the judging committee may have to turn over to the lost and found bureau.

Isadore Sheldon, '16, of Nehawka, drove to Lincoln Sunday and visited at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house.
