THE SINGLE TAX ASSURED

The board of regents has accepted the single tax as voted for by the students last February, although it will not be put in operation until the end of the war. Few will quarrel with the regents for deferring the enforcement of the tax until there is less need for economy; but the students as a whole will rejoice that the regents have finally decided to put in the tax.

This is the beginning of the day of bigger and better Nebraska spirit. Students this year are witnessing a change in the Cornhusker school; a change from the rule of selfishness to that of generous co-operation of all the students toward a common goal. The next step, to become a part of the student life before the single tax, will be the student council, and the commission which has been drawing up the plan for it has announced that the report will be made this week.

The fight for the single tax, usually co-ordinated with that for the student council, began a dozen years ago. Education was necessary for both projects, and now the practically unanimous opinion of students is that both will bind Nebraskans closer together, and that in time Cornhusker spirit will be the common heritage of all.

ABOUT THE FORUM COLUMN

A number of the subscribers of The Nebraskan, who honestly feared that the policy of this paper as announced on April 17, of not printing communications that smacked of disloyalty, was dangerous, have asked for a restatement of that policy, so that they would not be under a misapprehension.

The Nebraskan has not closed its Forum column to all communications. The editor is responsible, by virtue of the rules of student publication board, for the Forum column. The editor would not be doing his duty, therefore, if he permitted Forum communications that he thought were dangerous, unfair, or unrepresentative of the University, to be printed.

As long as this country was not at war, and when there was a chance that war might be averted, the columns of this paper were open to Forum communications and news items resisting war. The moment that war was declared, however, the editors felt that the time for discussion had ceased and the time to act had come. Any quarrels arising over whether or not the declaration of war, or the conduct of those who favored it had been justified, were then out of place. Consequently the Forum column was closed to a kind of communication that would have resulted in nothing but fruitless, and perhaps bitter, discussion, at a time when the best thought of all citizens was needed for constructive work.

No student could be on the Nebraskan staff a week without realizing that the editors must be trusted with a responsibility as to what kind of letters are published in the Forum column. The freedom of speech can be abused, if a certain censorship is not observed.

So The Nebraskan announces again that it will not print in its Forum column, letters which tend toward un-Americanism. The Nebraskan will be careful, in exercising a censorship, that no letters will be excluded which have a right to a place in the columns of the paper.

There's Value In Every Part of a Kensington Suit!

It's in the grace and style that you see, in the cloth and linings and seams, and in the skillful tailoring and lasting fit which you feel. Taken together, these things make up not only the clothes, but the looks and the life of the clothes.

When hundreds of men who have been wearing Kensington Clothes and have tested their value, continue season after season to buy them, isn't there something definite about their value that makes them worth your investigating?

You do so without any obligation, and you'll be cheerfully received by salesmen who are prepared to discuss your clothes problems with you intelligently and authoritatively.

$20, $21.50, $23, $25 to $40 are only the prices—the VALUES you must see to appreciate.
