83 ATHLETES ARE IN WAR SERVICE

FARM AND MOSQUITO FLEET
CALL THE LARGEST NUMBER

The article appearing in yesterday's Daily Nebraskan and headed "How Will Draft Hit Athletics," and stating that only two men had been lost in all branches of athletics was misleading as to the number of athletes who have actually left school. The two men named, Nelson and Moser, are the only two letter men who have been surely lost that would not have been lost in normal times by graduation or eligibility rules.

Eighty-three athletes have left school to enter some sort of work to help in the war. Training camps, farms, navy, coast artillery, aviation corps, mosquito fleet and national guard have all received some of these men.

This statement from Dr. Stewart followed by the list of men lost makes the athletic situation at Nebraska quite clear:

"Nebraska has contributed eighty-three (83) athletes from the 1916-17 varsity teams to the war cause, according to the list of withdrawals sent out from the registrar's office May 28.

"It is possible that not over half of these have been accepted for military service, and that many may be at present employed on farms, survey squads, food inspection squads, etc., but it is a fact that the names of at least eighty-three of Nebraska's athletic field heroes are at present enrolled on the list of those excused from the University for government aid.

"Sixty-seven of these athletes applied, through Captain Parker, and other military officials, for commissions in the officers' reserve corps, now in training at Fort Snelling, Minn., and many of these are at present at Fort Snelling, preparing for the battlefields of Europe. Some are on the waiting list and undoubtedly will get into the second camp at the conclusion of the present camp.

"This does not mean, of course, that prospects for football, basket ball, baseball and track for next year are demoralized completely, but it does mean that Nebraska has been hit as hard or harder than many of the schools with which she will compete and it puts up to the coaching staff the problem of developing players to fill the many vacant shoes.

"Probably half of those on the above list will return and this will give the coaches a nucleus around which to build the teams which will play the annual schedules. It may also be said that, comparatively, Nebraska's team should rank well with the teams of this section in spite of the many withdrawals.

"The situation at Nebraska simply means that every able bodied man in school next fall should offer himself on the athletic field, not only to maintain the standard of Nebraska's past athletic teams, but the better to prepare himself physically for the part which he will probably be called upon to play in the great war which is before us.

"Each duty will be conscientiously

SUFFRAGIST'S WORK IN WAR DISCUSSED

MRS. BARKLEY AND MISS GARTEN
TALK TO SUFFRAGE CLUB

What suffragists can do in time of war was discussed by Mrs. W. E. Barkley, state suffrage president, and Miss Blanche Gatten, of Lincoln, at the meeting of the University Equal Suffrage club yesterday evening in U 106. Prof. Alice Howell, head of the department of dramatics, introduced the speakers.

Mrs. Barkley pointed out that America was fighting a war for democracy, a fundamental principle of suffrage. A democratic world means that all women are enfranchised, she said. She urged suffragists to help in the conservation of food, in the work of the Red Cross, and in the various other ways women can be of service to the country.

She explained that in order to vote next fall, the women of Nebraska must register as citizens before the election. "We have no party except the women's party," she said, "and it is a party which stands for clean measures upheld by clean men."

"The least you can do is to raise money," Mrs. Barkley said. "That is one of the easiest things to do in the world. It is child's play. Unless women register for service for every day until the war is done they will have accomplished nothing."

She urged members of the club to organize in their home communities and to whatever work the community needed the most. She prophesied that a greater comradeship among women would come out of the war.

Miss Gatten suggested that University women get the help of alumnae in the home communities. "Make them realize that the college women of the state are interested in suffrage and they will help," she said.

Tegner Election.—The Tegner society held its last regular meeting Saturday evening in Faculty hall. The following officers were elected for the fall semester: President, Helen Sohlberg; vice-president, C. R. Carlson; treasurer, Oscar Nelson; secretary, Ida Berquest; correspondence secretary, Tekla Alexis.

CHANCELLOR CALLS FOR LOYAL NATION

GIVES ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT
ADDRESS AT BROOKINGS, S. D.

Says United Support of People and not Criticism Needed to Win War

Brookings, S. D., May 30.—The present war will be won largely by the loyalty and self sacrifice of the people, asserted Dr. Samuel Avery, chancellor of the University of Nebraska in his commencement address before state college Tuesday. Dr. Avery described the tendency of some people to be impatient with the mistakes of the government, with their inconveniences and provations—all of which are bound to occur.

We, the average people, cannot help win this war, he said, "by criticising the president, or opposing the kind of taxes, or insisting upon our accustomed pleasures, or opposing the draft or saying we will send no men to France. Neither will the war be won by talking about the blessings of peace, which we all admit and are willing to fight for. Nor will the war be won by talking about the folly of war. The war will be won by the utmost devotion to the ideals of the country, by supporting the national government, and by enthusiastically devoting to the services of the country all that is dearest to us. Only by such devotion can the world be made to use President Wilson's words: 'A safe place for democracy.'"

Not a Flabby People

Chancellor Avery denied the German assertion that we are a flabby people. "Of our hundred million people," he said, "the proportion of strong men to the whole population is probably greater than in any other nation. With the enormous wealth of the nation there has not come to any very great extent the softness and idleness such as has at times characterized other nations. Never, in the history of the world, has there been in a single nation such a combination of wealth and virility. In factories, in commerce, in agriculture, in money, in education, and in men, America enjoys the supreme position of any of the nations of the world.

"Finally when the struggle is over, triumph as we believe for the cause we think to be right, there should be no revenge in the spirit of our nation when we sit with the allies at the peace conference. I sincerely hope that after the close of the war we may be the best friend to Germany, a Germany purged forever from the spirit of Bismarck, the spirit of Blut and Eisen."

CAMP TRAINING IS EFFICIENT

HOLCOMBE TELLS OF Y. M. C. A.
WORK AT FORT SNELLING

Training is going rapidly forward in the Fort Snelling camp, the cadets are doing as much there in two weeks as some of the men do in the drill here in a year, according to Steele Holcombe, '18, who returned this week from Minnesota after nearly two weeks' work in the camp as state work secretary from Nebraska. The men are kept busy all of the time, he says, but the schedule is so arranged that they do not get tired of the work.

The Y. M. C. A. in the camp is fully organized at present and is trying to help the men in any way possible. The work in the camp is in charge of six secretaries appointed by the international Y. M. C. A. committee. There is a general secretary at the head and then a local secretary under him. Under the local secretary is a religious secretary, a recreation secretary, a business secretary and a program secretary.

Holcombe is working at the different colleges over the state this week making the final arrangements for their delegations to the Estes park conference. The Nebraska delegation will leave Thursday, June 7, and will arrive at the park Friday.

PROFESSOR BENTLEY
WILL GIVE 3 COURSES
IN SUMMER SESSION

Prof. R. C. Bentley, A.B. '94, A. M. '96, of Leland Stanford university will give three courses during the summer session at Nebraska.

For two years after graduation Professor Bentley was chief laboratory assistant and instructor in philosophy. He has had much experience as high school principal in Nebraska and California. He attended Columbia university for one year. Clark university one year, and then became dean of Clark college at Worcester, Mass. Professor Bentley has been professor of secondary education at Stanford for the past six years.

EXTENSION DEPARTMENT WILL TEACH NEBRASKA
WOMEN CANNING METHODS

A large number of Nebraska women and girls will be taught canning this summer in special canning schools to be conducted by the agricultural extension service of the University in all parts of the state. Twenty-seven towns have already completed plans to hold canning schools.

Attendance at these schools will be limited to men and women who pledge themselves to teach others how to can. They will probably be used in teaching groups of women or girls in their own localities. Garden supervisors and representatives of women's clubs, aid societies, and other organizations will be permitted to attend.

Address on Draft Day
Prof. Sarka Hrbkova will give a patriotic address at Weston June 5, registration day.
