HELP THE FUND FOR THE FT. SNELLING BANQUET

It isn't because the men at Ft. Snelling aren't getting enough to eat that the University is giving them a banquet. It is because this Cornhusker feast is going to bring close to those Nebraska alumni and students at the training camp the thought of home, and the thought of the school they left behind them.

Who does not realize that the things most precious in his life are the intangible feelings of love for something or someone, and the ideals built out of those emotions? Because this banquet will deepen that feeling toward Nebraska in the men at Ft. Snelling, it is a thing worth while. To bring their University and their fellow students closer to them, and to bring home to them the consciousness that they are the representatives of that University which is proud of them, will make those men happier and make them stand for better things.

Every student and faculty member should have a part in giving the banquet.

FOR THE LIBERTY LOAN

Two aspects of the Liberty Loan bond issue, of especial interest to the University, are discussed by Mrs. England and Prof. Le Rossignol in a separate column of this issue. The bonds are offered by the government to the patriotism of the people. The University faculty have responded to the call, and many members of the teaching force have subscribed to the first issue. When a reporter for The Nebraskan approached Chancellor Avery yesterday, he learned that the chancellor had subscribed for a thousand dollars worth of the bonds, although that immediate call would require a portion to be paid for by a loan from one of the banks.

There are students as well as faculty members who could arrange to do this very patriotic thing of subscribing to the Liberty loan. "A Liberty bond in every home," is the slogan. So many banks have offered to make it easy to buy a bond, that this offer and the small denominations place them within the reach of most everyone. Added to that is the fact that it is a means of being of practical service, open to the one who does not serve in the khaki uniform.

GET THE BOYS TO COLLEGE NEXT FALL

The tendency has been to lose a grasp on true values "because of the war." People are giving up things, altering plans, changing habits, when there is no logical reason for it, and solely because of the subtle influence of the vague talk of retrenchment and service that has come with the fact of the war. There is a tendency of the men in the state, who would otherwise be in school next year, to say that they are not going to return to or enter the University next fall.

By the time of registration week the draft will have taken its toll, and those whom the government has not conscripted for service will be reasonably certain that for half a year at least they will not be called to the colors. These men, if they are training themselves in the University, should continue that training, as a patriotic duty, so that if they are called, they will be that much better equipped to serve efficiently.

The boys who are graduating from high school this spring, who are under the draft age, are hesitating to enter the University. All who possibly can, should come to Lincoln. They will not be needed on the farm long after school begins, and no false economy should be allowed to keep them at home. Yet action must be taken to counteract an impulse among these boys to say that they are not going to enter Nebraska.

The students in their homes this summer can do a fine service by encouraging as many men as can do so, to begin or keep on with their University work.

THE LAST EDITORIAL

In leaving The Daily Nebraskan office, after a year and a half with the paper, one feels a very sincere grief at losing association with something that has brought the gift of friendship with students who have seen most clearly their duty to their University, and have striven as best they could to perform that duty.

There is a fellowship about a newspaper office, not less true of a college newspaper than of the nation's greatest metropolitan dailies, that is found, probably, nowhere else in the world. It is born of the long hours of thankless labor in getting out a newspaper that will be of service, that will bring to the college student every day the news of his Alma Mater, and create in him a sense of the spirit of a university.

A college newspaper staff has the fun of learning the true character of many of the students and not a few of the faculty. It has the fun of helping to a successful outcome the things that deserve success; and of blocking the things that are petty and mean.

Never have we known people who have done their bit for their university better, and from purer motives, than the editors and reporters of The Nebraskan for the past three semesters. The average student is too careless to realize that the college newspaper is the connecting link between all the parts of the university whole. The staff is forced to work without the support of the students, and yet the members work because they know that they are helping to make their University great and good by the work they do.

We have had the faith that Nebraska always stood for the right sort of thing, and against the wrong. We have believed that the University, as such, holds forth to all who ask it, the best of things of life.

Palladian Literary society will hold a picnic at Epworth park this evening. Take the car at Tenth and O streets at 5:20 o'clock.

Cornhusker Deliveries

It is requested that all those who called for their Cornhuskers on May 31 leave their names at the students activities office.

New Course in Swedish

A course in the Swedish language and literature will be offered during the summer session, beginning June 11. While Swedish has been given at the University of Nebraska since 1909, this is the first time the subject is offered in the summer school. It would be well if those intending to take up the work consult Prof. Joseph Alexis concerning the course.

HALL DESCRIBES FORT SNELLING SCHOOL

"University life seems so far from here that it is hard to connect the two. They are not so very different either as we have a regular course of study, which is a condensed West Point course with study hours, recitations and conferences.

"Each day is filled full. We get up at 5 o'clock and have a half hour of setting up exercises before breakfast at 6 o'clock. From 7 o'clock till 12 noon is filled with company drills, practice marches and conferences. So far the afternoon programs are not as strenuous and we usually have from one to two hours off before retreat at 5:45 o'clock. From 7 o'clock till 9 o'clock are to be spent in the study hall at study. The physical and mental work is so well arranged that we do not tire of either, but it almost seems like a week between breakfast and dinner.

"Everybody has an excellent appetite here and the food is good and lots of it so every one is happy. Boiled eggs, potatoes, bread and butter, mush, milk and coffee made up our breakfast this morning.

"This is a beautiful place and nicely located. It is only about 45 minutes' ride on the car from Minneapolis and about 35 or 40 minutes from St. Paul. The reservation lies between the Mississippi and the Minnesota rivers and there are lakes all about.

"We are off on Saturday afternoons and Sundays and there is a pretty general exodus to the cities or parks about here.

"The life here would be quite pleasant were it not for the seriousness of the occasion. Everybody's spirits were running high until our captain began to instruct us in the new use of the bayonet as used in the trenches in Europe and brought us face to face with some of the conditions which we may soon experience in France—and they expect to see us there soon.

"We have a company of about 155 men. Frank Reed and C. W. France and a number of other Nebraska men are in the same company. We live in barracks and have such conveniences as daily papers delivered direct to our doors."

H. F. M. HALL, Company 8.

Liberty Loan Discussed by Faculty

"The women of the University should not feel that the liberty loan is a matter outside of their interest. The terms of bond sale are being made so easy that even those with small incomes can buy one or more bonds. For instance, Mr. W. E. Barclay announces that the Lincoln Trust company will sell in limited quantities fifty or one hundred dollar bonds on the installment plan of $1 down and $1 per week, or $5 down and $5 per month with interest on unpaid balances at the rate of only 3½ per cent. Larger quantities of bonds will be handled on the same advantageous terms by the Lincoln State bank. This really means that one can borrow money at 3½ per cent interest instead of the customary 7 or 8 per cent with which to buy bonds yielding a 3 per cent return. One can thus be patriotic without losing a cent if they borrow to buy bonds.

"The girls in the Business Course for Women are especially urged, since they have studied investments and can therefore discuss the subject of bonds more intelligently than many, to keep the matter of bond purchase in the foreground when they return to their homes. But any and all women should post themselves on the terms of the issue and aid in advertising the need of larger subscriptions from every community.—Minnie Throop England.

"We hardly realize, yet, that we are at war and that we must put forth our full strength to win. It will not do to raise an army of a few thousand; we must raise millions. Money, too, must be subscribed in vast amounts; not millions but billions are needed. The draft and the liberty loan are essential part of one plan. Germany hopes that both will fail; but that must not be. Every citizen must do his "bit." The rich must give their millions, and the poor their pennies. All, rich and poor alike, must give their boys. Men and money must go together in this crusade. It is no border raid that we have undertaken, but a world war in which one fate and the fate of the world are at stake. There is grave danger; and we, as free citizens of a free country, must fight for our rights, our liberty, our democracy, and all that we hold most dear.—J. E. LeRossignol.

Flag Etiquette

We have read somewhere that according to etiquette, the flag ought to be lowered every evening at sunset. We conclude, therefore, that someone committed a breach of etiquette on that night when Francis Scott Key wrote those memorable words, "And the rockets red glare, and the bombs bursting in the air, gave proof through the night that our flag was still there."—Daily Illini.
