Fort Snelling Soldiers Begin To Realize Task They Have Before Them

By George E. Grimes

Fort Snelling, Minn., Sept. 25.—After a week of digging trenches, heaving shovelful after shovelful of dirt from its natural resting place; after fashioning fire bays and traverses, and barb wire entanglements; after simulating assault against, and attack from trenches; after six days—and nights—of this, Nebraska student officers at the second Snelling training camp believe that it will take months and years perhaps before the Kaiser's armies are beaten, and the war aims of the United States and her allies, accomplished.

For Germany can, and doubtless has, perfected trench systems for defense from the present war line to her border and beyond, and trenches offer wonderful defense possibilities against even greatly superior forces of men and supplies of ammunition. As the future officers here at the fort talk over the proposition, they agree that it is going to take much more than an army to win—it is going to take support from home in giving and in conserving, so that the allies will still have plenty when the central powers are in want.

A trench now, after the experience of three years of war, is much more than a ditch. It is a hole in the ground, all right, but carefully constructed with firing bays affording protection, drainage systems to carry away water, sanitary arrangements to preserve the health of the troops, trenches and pits to deceive the cameras on hostile airplanes, and all designed and built to be as near like the surrounding natural scenery as possible. And it is said now that firing is always over the top, and never through loopholes. More than that, the soldiers are forbidden to talk about.

Y. M. C. A. WILL LAUNCH CAMPAIGN TOMORROW

Association Asks For Students' Support in Membership and Finance for Their Work

HELP MEN IN MANY WAYS

Friday and Saturday of this week the University Y. M. C. A. will ask for student support of its work in its annual finance and membership campaign. The work of the association this year has covered a number of fields for students' benefit, all of which require a certain amount of expenditure and the Y. M. C. A. now asks the students for help that they may continue their work.

The finance campaign among students will not only aid in local work, but in work among boys in the city, and also among our soldiers in the camps.

The Y. M. C. A. is the local unit of the only organization offering Christian fellowship and a social program to the American soldiers at the front and in training camps. Many of these soldiers were in school with us last year. Many of us may be at the front with them next year. By coming in close touch with the men in the camps the Y. M. C. A. is one of the greatest forces for good there.

The association is financially maintained by the students, faculty, citizens, and interested friends. There is no stated membership fee, but each member is asked to make a voluntary contribution toward its support. Any student or party connected with the University may become a member providing they are in sympathy with the spirit and purpose of the association. A combined membership is also offered by the University and city organizations for those desiring a program which promoted fellowship through the privileges offered in the gymnasium, swimming pool, game rooms and dormitory of the city building.

In return for the support of the students the University association publishes for the students the "N" books free, out of the regular budget, and the University directory at cost. It also maintains and directs for the men of the University, a reading and study room in the Temple building; an employment bureau to assist students in securing work; a social program including "At Home" for freshmen; the annual Christmas party; University night; a religious program of Bible study classes, weekly devotional meetings, shop meetings, gospel teams, mission study classes, work with boys of the city, and systematic co-operation with the Sunday school classes of the local churches, and an educational program including English classes for foreigners.

LIBRARIAN WYER WILL LEAVE NEXT WEEK

Has Been Asked By Library Association to Help in Army Cantonments

Malcolm G. Wyer, of the University library, has been asked by the War Service committee of the American Library association, to obtain leave from his University work for three months, and take charge of organizing the library work in one of the cantonments. With the co-operation of the Red Cross there will be a central library, taking entire charge of all the books and reading matter, and distributing headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Wyer expects to leave about October 1.

Miss Carrie Hesselstine, '11, was on the campus yesterday. She has been teaching in the Curtis school of agriculture and the Broken Bow high school. Miss Hesselstine is under appointment as a missionary to India and sails November 9.

John Selleck, '12, of Lincoln, who has been working for the National Reflector company of Chicago, has been drafted.

HUSKERS PREPARING FOR FIRST BATTLE

Spend Yesterday Afternoon in Trying New Formations on Freshmen

Playing as if the freshmen eleven were the Jayhawk crew, the varsity ran around them, through them and over them, shoved their noses into the ground, stepped on their heads and used them instead of the ground to walk on, in yesterday's practice. The first year men took it all peaceably enough, but several varsity candidates who occupied places on the scrub line resented the tactics of the first team and some lively battles took place.

Several new formations were tried out by the varsity and were good for long gains. The slippery ball made forward passing almost impossible and fumbling easy. The men are having a hard time, to date, in getting on to the signals, and the coach is giving them a hard drill each day at learning the numbers for the plays.

Paul Dobson, last year's punter and halfback, has shown unlooked for ability in the past few nights practice at bucking the line. Paul has developed the happy faculty, so often lacking in otherwise good men, of going through the line whether the hole is in the right place or not. Once through he has been giving exhibitions of side-stepping and dodging, that have brought favorable comments from coaches and spectators as well as his fellow players.

Ross, the 266-pound freshman, who appeared on the field for the first time Tuesday, got into the scrimmage yesterday and proved to be a stumbling block to a number of the first team's plays. Although not able to move around very fast himself, he makes it practically impossible for a varsity man to move him, and if a play comes his way, he is there to meet it.

Schellenberg, Kellogg and McMahon, the three backfield men who are expected to do great things this year, were all absent from the scrimmage yesterday because of injuries. McMahon and Kellogg were on the field for signal practice, but were kept out of the hard work. McMahon has an infected foot and a wrenched shoulder. Kellogg has been bothered most of the season with a bad shoulder and Schellenberg has been out of the lineup for several days, having had a rib hurt in a practice last week. Just when they will be allowed to get back to work is not known.

"N" BOOKS DISTRIBUTED AT TEMPLE TODAY UNTIL SUPPLY EXHAUSTED

The "N" books, annual University handbooks, have been received and will be distributed at the Y. M. C. A. information desk in the Temple, beginning at 9 o'clock this morning. Only 800 copies have been printed and it is probable that all will be given out today.

The handbooks are published free by the Y. M. C. A. for students' use, and contain many valuable helps and useful information.

Jeannet McBride, '21, is visiting Ruth Merrick on her way home from Washington, D. C. Her brother, Captain Logan McBride, '13, will leave for France soon.

Lucile Erasm and Hilda Odi plan to spend the week end in Omaha.

STRINGED ORCHESTRA AT CONVOCATION TODAY

First Musical Program of the Year in Memorial Hall This Morning

PROF. DANN INTERPRETS

The first musical convocation of the school year, an overture recital, will be given by the string quartet and organ this morning at 11 o'clock in Memorial hall, under the direction of Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond, director of music.

Edward J. Walt will play first violin; Jessie Wilkins, second violin; William T. Quick, viola; Mrs. Lillian Elche, cello; Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond, organ.

The program:
Mozart—Overture to Figaro.
Von Weber—Overture to Der Freischutz.
Schumann—Overture to Manfred.

The following interpretation is written by Prof. W. F. Dann, head of the department of history and criticism of fine arts:

"These compositions, though primarily written as the opening numbers of dramas, may be considered as independent works, and they are often rendered, as today, solely for their own interest and excellence.

"Not so long as symphonies, nor elaborated on so generous a scale, they nevertheless have the characteristic marks of their respective composers and at the same time reflect the general character of the scenes they introduce.

"Figaro" is a comic opera, and the music is appropriately light and gay in tone and treatment. Mozart, above all other composers, had the gift of unfeeling spontaneity, and his music always possesses the charm of pure and limpid melody. Compared to later work the Mozartian handling of the orchestra is simple and obvious, but the perennial freshness and childlike grace of Mozart's genius will ever preserve his music from staleness and neglect, despite changing tastes and the enlarged resources of modern harmony.

"Der Freischuetz" is a romantic opera and Weber is the first of the so-called romantic school of composers. How different his music is from the older classic style is plainly evident. More melodious than Beethoven's, more complex than Mozart's, his music is more modern than either in its appeal, and finds perhaps a readier response in these days. Many will recognize in the opening adagio the original of a favorite hymn-tune, and other familiar melodies appear now and then in the overture—anticipations of parts of the succeeding opera. In his power to suggest ghostly horrors and infernal mysteries by the tonal art, and his consummate mastery of orchestration, he was a worthy predecessor and teacher of Richard Wagner.

"Schumann, too, was an exponent of the romantic school of music, and throughout his compositions he strives to fuse literary ideas with music. His thorough education in literature as well as his strongly original musical genius admirably fitted him for this work, and a good example of his manner of treatment is this overture to Byron's "Manfred," the hero of which dramatic poem is a kind of magician who suffers from a vague remorse. The poem abounds in word-pictures of Alpine scenery, and Schumann endeavors to arouse similar feelings in his musical illustrations.

SERBIAN FLAG DAY YESTERDAY NETS NEARLY THREE HUNDRED DOLLARS

Students and faculty yesterday subscribed nearly three hundred dollars to the cause of the Serbian nation. All seemed to realize the real need of help and solicitors reported that their requests received more consideration than is usual for tag day requests. The money will go to field hospital work.

NEBRASKAN FREE TO UNIVERSITY SOLDIERS

Believing that Nebraska men actively engaged in the war are just as anxious for news from the campus as their former classmates are for word from them, the management of The Nebraskan will send the paper free of charge to every Cornhusker soldier whose address is known. You can help by sending lists of addresses to The Nebraskan, either mailing them to Station A or telephoning them to the business office, B-2597.
