DEAN HEPPNER GIVES TEA FOR CO-EDS AND FACULTY

Four Wives of Deans of the Arts and Science College Assist

The first of a series of teas for the University girls and faculty was given by Dean Amanda Heppner in Art hall Thursday afternoon from 6 o'clock. Nearly five hundred girls were present.

The wives of deans of the arts and science college, Mrs. C. C. Engberg, Mrs. Charles Fordyce, Mrs. L. A. Sherman, and Mrs. Samuel Avery poured tea, and Alice Temple, Jane Kingery, Katharine Newbranch, Carolyn Reed, and Eleanor Bennett served. Members of the Girls' club board assisted.

The teas will be given weekly until after the Thanksgiving vacation. Dean Heppner believes that they will afford enjoyable opportunities for the freshman and upperclass girls to become acquainted and she hopes that even more girls will attend the next meeting.

SAILORS RECEIVE COURSE OF TRAINING IN PHARMACY

Columbia Turns Department Over to U. S. Navy During Summer Months

The college of pharmacy of Columbia university was turned over to the United States Navy this summer and was utilized for the instruction of enlisted men in all branches of work which would fit them for first aid and hospital service among their shipmates.

Three hundred young easterners, all bearing the rank of hospital apprentice second class and enlisted for four years made up the student body of this emergency college, organized to safeguard and protect the health of Uncle Sam's favorite sons. Classes started Tuesday, July 10, and continued until Saturday, September 22, approximately two and one-half months of intensive study. Pharmacy, materia medica, sanitation, hygiene, anatomy, first aid, and the various other subjects embraced in regular hospital corps work were taught by Dr. Stamm and his assistants.

According to Dr. Stamm, the men are to be assigned to the battleships, cruisers, and destroyers of the U. S. N. and will soon be widely separated, doing various war work—Columbia Spectator.
