and love for one's school and country. That this spirit is far reaching and everlasting is evidenced by the wonderful sacrifice she has made and the splendid record of her men in the present great task. So we take great pleasure in sending this plant of ivy as a remembrance to the University that her sons never forget her wherever or under whatever circumstances they may be.

"With kind regards and best wishes we remain,

"Very sincerely,
(Signed) LIEUT. H. S. REESE,
LIEUT. M. C. POTEET.

Palladian Special Meeting

There will be a special meeting of the Palladian Literary Society today at 12:30 at which important business is to be transacted. Every member is expected to be present.

Wrestling Class

Pictures of the wrestling class will be taken in the Armory at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

M. E. Mickemester

All engineers are hereby notified that the mid-semester examination in M. E. II will be held in Mechanic Arts hall 102 Thursday 11 to 12 o'clock, instead of M. E. 205 as previously announced.

Elwood T. Bailey, a former Nebraska student, for thirteen years in Young Men's Christian Association work at Jackson, Michigan, was a member of a party which recently made a trip to France and Italy under the direction of the association. The National War-Work council under the direction of the association is sending a constant stream of men to these countries and the party of which Mr. Bailey was a member consisted of prominent men from every state in the union.

JOSEPH E. HOWARD'S "MUSICAL WORLD REVUE"—ORPHEUM TODAY

Joseph Howard claims first mention with his "Musical World Revue," introducing in four attractive scenes a number of his own compositions surrounded by appropriate atmosphere. Singer-composers are as a rule something of a bore, but Howard escapes this criticism by the liberal employment of unusual stage effects and by invoking the assistance of a large number of additional singers and supernumeraries. There are dancers and deckhands, Chinamen and cake-walkers, sailors and "rounders"; besides a fair "unknown" who in a sort of tuneful fashion parade contrives to display a series of most bewildering gowns.—Deseret News.—Adv.

BESSIE REMPEL—ORPHEUM TODAY

Bessie Rempel and her players present a clever sketch, "You." It is reminiscent of a play given by the Washington Square players, in which the identical idea was used with a slight change in the manner of development. In "You" a man and a woman and their real selves stage the little drama. It is very well done.—Sara Farrar in Denver News.—Adv.

Men's New Spring Suits
For Spring Dress-Up Days

The front they present will make a big hit with the tastes of University men who are particular about their appearance.

The assortments include plain and panel back models formed of every wanted material in a plain color or a mixture; fashioned upon lines which have a decided tendency to follow the lines of the figure closely.

The pick of them, in a size to fit you like the paper on the wall, can be had for this low figure.

WE SAVE YOU
$10.00

The reason is that we have eliminated all overhead expenses usually necessary for a store of this kind—no high rent—no charge accounts, deliveries, etc.

Unless you are saving $10.00 you are not practicing conservation.
