INSPECTOR PRAISES TELEGRAPH SCHOOL

Fifty-Eight Graduates Turned Out—New Instructor Appointed

The United States government inspector of telegraphy was in Lincoln Saturday and he pronounced the Nebraska School of Telegraphy to be superior to any similar telegraph school in which he has inspected, since leaving Washington. He was very much pleased with the equipment of the school and in his report he recommended the efficiency of the instructors very highly.

In the last week ten operators have completed the prescribed course and have joined the government service. This brings the total number of graduates up to 58. Thirty-eight of this number have joined the army, while 15 have been sent to the navy.

Prof. W. M. Herbert, who has had charge of the school of telegraphy since its beginning has tendered his resignation to take effect March 25, 1918. He is going to enter the army service as a member of the Nebraska Base Hospital Unit, and R. B. Hasselquist has been appointed as his successor.

CADET REGIMENT AT REGULAR INSPECTION

Lieut. Col. J. V. Heidt Officially Examines Work Being Done by Military Dept.

The annual government inspection of the work of the military department was held Tuesday morning on the athletic field. Lieut. Col. James V. Heidt, United States army, of the 41st infantry at Fort Crook was the government representative who examined the work as exhibited by the cadet regiment. Cadets were excused from classes all morning, though quite a large number attended 8 o'clock.

The cadet regiment made a fine appearance in the R. O. T. C. uniforms, and their work was highly praised by those watching the performance. After being marched over to the athletic field, there was first a review, followed by the regular inspection by the government official. This did not take as long as last year, as it was not devoted so much to the individuals, and after being duly inspected, various military maneuvers were gone through by the different companies, including company movements, squad movements, skirmish work and the manual of arms.

Plan for Training Camps

After the regular work of examining the cadets, plans for summer training camps were laid before a large number of cadets who would attend if given the opportunity. While nothing definite regarding these camps has yet been decided, the war department, is considering having summer training camps or men belonging to the R. O. T. C. These camps, it is proposed, will be divided into three classes, A, B, C. In class A, men who are finishing their work in the University will be enlisted for a three months' training camp, following which they will be transferred to the regular army. This camp will be very similar to the officers' training camps which were inaugurated last summer, the men, upon finishing the course, being commissioned in the regular army.

In class B, men who have received $300 in commutation of rations since January 1st, 1918, and who are 20 years 9 months of age by May 1st, will be entitled to serve for the period of the war. Class C is the regular summer training camp for one month, as provided under the provisions of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. While nothing definite has been yet decided, these are expected to materialize satisfactorily by the time the summer recess arrives.

Forty-Nine Komensky Klub Men Enlisted in Service

PHI ALPHA TAU HEARS OF 'MEANING OF WAR'

Dr. H. B. Alexander Talks on Causes and Possible Outcomes of World Struggle

Dr. H. B. Alexander of the philosophy department talked to the members of Phi Alpha Tau, public speaking fraternity, at the Alpha Sigma Phi house last evening on "The Meaning of the World War." He spoke briefly of the original causes of the conflict and laid the blame at the feet of the German nobility in that, of the whole world, they are the class which would have the most to gain in such a war. Smashing victories will come during the summer, he hopes, to bring about the internal strife in Germany which will mean victory for the allies.

Preceding Dr. Alexander's discussion Earl C. Jeffrey, colonel with the cadet regiment, discussed the recent developments from the standpoint of military tactics and told of the organization of cavalry units in this country and the probable use which may be made of them.

A general discussion followed in which Germany's food supply, Germany's man power, the Japanese problem, possibility of naval battles, and probable events of the next few weeks were covered.

The next meeting of the society will be held at the Alpha Theta Chi house Wednesday, April 3.

versity puts little stock in predictions of pretty farmerettes working on Nebraska farms this summer. In fact he declares that women will play few additional parts in farm work this summer. The typical farm woman is already as busy as she can possibly be with the inside work, and he declares that city girls will never do any considerable amount of work on the farm. The real work will only be done by doing away with unnecessary employment in other lines, he declares.

"Some visionary city people have suggested that women replace men on the farm. The farmer's wife is already overworked," says Professor Filley. "She not only keeps house and rears her family, but usually tends the poultry and often assists in the garden. Her housework includes washing, ironing, baking, and the care of dairy utensils. Just how much work would our city friends have her do?"

Not Used to Heavy Work

"The comparatively few farmers who have grown-up daughters not needed in the house will doubtless receive willing assistance in raking, mowing, cultivating and plowing. The Nebraska farm girls is not accustomed to pitching hay, shocking wheat or performing heavy farm work. We have not yet reached a point where it is necessary to peasantize our women."

"The city girl will certainly never do any considerable amount of farm work. In the first place she does not wish to, and in the second place she could not do the work if she would. Young farmerettes in trouserettes may look very attractive, but they would be of very little value stacking alfalfa or helping to thresh wheat."

"High school boys from the cities, have been suggested as a source for necessary farm labor. Many of these boys learn to do good work, and become really efficient hands. The majority, however, have untrained muscles and are ignorant of the simple but necessary things which every ten-year-old farm boy knows. Their first few weeks of farm work are hard not only upon them, but upon their employers."

Farm Labor From Cities

"We must get farm labor from some source or production will be impeded. The sources commonly mentioned are impracticable. What other sources remain?"

"In every city are thousands of men who were farm raised and other thousands accustomed to heavy work. These men can be made available to the farm by shutting down unnecessary enterprises. This is not a day for luxuries but for necessities."

"The real questions at issue are, shall we furnish bread for our allies or shall we furnish motor cars for the rich? Shall we produce pork or shall we produce phonographs? Is it more essential that wealthy men have new homes and business blocks, or that children have milk to drink?"

"Is it not time to get down to essentials? The labor situation will not solve itself. Scolding the farmers and publishing pictures of farmerettes will not increase production. If we are to do our share in winning the war, it is time to curtail the manufacture of luxuries and release labor for the production of food and munitions."
