OVER HUNDRED HUSKERS NOW AT CAMP DODGE

busy all the time and that they find little or no time for anything but their regularly assigned duties.
Restrictions are severe, preventing the taking of any pictures in the camp, no one being allowed the possession of a kodak. In another part of the letter Lieutenant Perkins says:
"I have just compiled a complete list of Nebraska University officers here and find that we have 105. During the past week and the following every officer in camp will have had his picture taken for a history of the division. I should be glad to send you an up-to-date list of the officers and their addresses. We hope to have a banquet and a dance during the coming month. We are all head over heels with work and the new men are coming every day, and for the next four months I am afraid that we will be too busy for anything except drill on the field and schools.

America, Awake!

To me the most amazing social change which the war has brought about is the transformation of our army from a small command of miscellaneous volunteers into a gigantic union of the fighting citizens of the nation. More than a million men, selected for their youth, their courage, and their virility are to present America to Europe in the guise of warriors, and in all the pictures which we have been permitted to see of them they are so unmistakably of the New World that only a glance is needed to distinguish them from a group of French or British soldiers, fine, upstanding though they may be.
Our army is a citizen army. It is composed of our brothers, our cousins and our sons. Nothing like it has been seen in America even in the days of '61, for at that time the volunteer system alone determined the service. The American army in France is ourselves in khaki. All classes are represented. It is entirely democratic in its personnel and in its spirit. It is an army to be proud of and to be cared for. It is far from home and it will not be strange if many of the boys become home-sick—especially if the winter campaign settles down to a dreary siege in the trenches.
To lighten this gloomy routine, to maintain a close and hearty interest in this body of American citizens detailed for special duty, to support them not merely with munitions of war but with those supplies in which we can put pure admiration, our gratitude and our love, is our duty—a duty which we should grasp as a privilege. Our men will be none the less warriors because we remember them with letters and gifts. They are carrying our burdens, upholding our honor—and I for one desire to express as best I can the deep personal obligation I owe the youth who has taken my place in the ranks.

SCHWAB ATTAINED RAPID PROMOTION— EXPECTED TO SOON SAIL FOR FRANCE

H. J. Schwab, A. B. '16, enlisted as a private in the Camp Kelly aviation school at San Antonio, Texas, last December. He has been promoted rapidly and now holds the rank of sergeant major, the highest non-commissioned office in the aviation division. After completing the course at Camp Kelly, he was transferred to Fort Morrison, Va., where he is stationed. Orders have been given out to his division to be prepared to sail at any moment, which means that another prominent Nebraskan will soon be in the thick of the fight.
Schwab is a member of Delta Tau Delta and was a leader in many branches of college life. The most notable honors which he achieved are editor of the Cornhusker and membership in the Innocents.

I want him to know my feeling. I want him to know that so far as my means and strength will allow I intend to back him up in his cheerful and splendid service.
To help him in his hours of recreation is almost as essential as to see that he is properly cared for in the field. We have the right to make his burden as light as we can and he has the right to receive whatsoever we can do in this spirit. Our men can not all come back to us, but my wish is that those who do may be greatly enabled by their battles as we should greatly gain by the sacrifices which we are willing to make for them.
PORTER EMERSON BROWN.

ALUMNI NEWS

John L. Barton, '18, who was with the law firm of Morsman, Maxwell and Crossman of Omaha registered at headquarters April 20. He expects to leave with a quota from Wyoming for Camp Lewis in May.
A. T. Poffenberger and H. L. Hollingworth, '06, professor of psychology at Columbia University are the authors of the new book "Applied Psychology," which is being published by the Appleton publishers. A long review of this book appeared in the April issue of the Dial.
Milo R. Daughters, '05, who was assistant professor of organic and food chemistry at the Oregon State College, Corvallis, registered at the alumni headquarters April 20. He was on his way east where he has accepted a position as research chemist with the Mellon Institute, University of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Daughters and their nine-year-old son accompanied him.
Recent visitors at the alumni office are: Fred H. Johnson, Second Lieutenant Infantry, R. C. Camp Pike, Ark.; Florence B. Mason, '15, Omaha; John K. Selleck, '12, Battery C, Camp Funston, Kan.

Why We Fight

That liberty, the sacred inheritance of the American people, may be perpetuated; that the sacrifices of the '76 have not been in vain; that we may continue the conduct of the affairs of our nation in accordance with our own beliefs and desires; that our citizens may travel the highways of the world and sail the seas unmolested, and that we shall not submit to the domination of an ambition-maddened autocracy, the United States has entered the great conflict which is shaking the very foundations of the world. Having taken this step, there can be no turning back until we have fought the war to a finish, to victory, and to a peace-settlement which will insure American posterity against the repetition of such a war. I believe a realization of our dream of universal peace will come with the extermination of the virus which has brought practically the whole world into war—Prussian militarism. So there can be no issue before the American people—the vigorous and successful prosecution of the war. To that end everything else must be subordinated, and every effort of our boys at the front must be sustained by a self-sacrificing and patriotic people at home.
