

STUDENTS MAY JOIN NAVAL RESERVE CORPS

Not Called Till Close of Course
Unless Extreme Emergency Arises

Word has been received from the navy recruiting station of Omaha that all University men between the ages of 18 and 21 enrolled in technical or non-academic courses may enroll in the naval reserve and will thus not be called into active service until graduation, unless a case of great emergency arises.

Upon graduation such men will be examined and rated according to their ability.

The need for enrollment in the navy now in order to have a sufficient supply of future officers on hand can be seen in the following paragraph quoted from a letter received from the Omaha navy recruiting station:

"This station has received instructions urging us to put forth every effort in this work. The school year will soon be ended, and now is the time to put this opportunity before the students. The demands for officer material for the future will be such that if these enrollments are not made now, your navy may suffer for lack of future available officer timber."

Further information may be received by inquiry at the navy recruiting station in Room 414, fourth floor of the postoffice.

ENLISTMENTS OPEN FOR NAVAL AVIATION CORPS

Applicants Doing Satisfactory
Work Receive Commissions
in Four Months

Information concerning enlistment in the naval reserve flying corps has been received by Dean O. J. Ferguson of the engineering college. If the applicant for this branch of the service passes the strenuous physical examination to which he is subjected he is given about four months' training and if found qualified at the end of this period is commissioned. Applications for enlistment may be had by addressing the Supervisor Naval Reserve Flying Corps, Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

In this branch of the service educational qualifications are given special consideration. The applicant must be a citizen of the United States, and between the ages of 20 and 30. He must be able to pass a rigorous physical examination and he must have normal vision in each eye.

Before a candidate can enroll he must present to the enrolling officer a certificate to the effect that his draft class and order numbers are so low that he is not within the current quota of his local board.

After the application has been sent in, with proper recommendation, the applicant is notified whether or not it is approved. If approved he is directed to report at a designated place for physical examination and if found qualified is enrolled in the Naval Reserve Class four or five, as Second Class Seaman.

As soon as practicable, after enrollment, a man is given active duty orders to report to the receiving ship at Boston for further transfer to the ground school at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for a ten weeks' theoretical course. This is followed by a three months' flight training, at one of the navy air stations.

Upon the satisfactory completion of training he is examined and, if found qualified, is enrolled in class 5, naval reserve flying corps and is commissioned. If he fails in his training course he is given the choice of a discharge from the naval service or of being transferred in such rating as he may be found qualified to hold in the naval reserve for general service.

Here's a model that "goes double" among good dressers

A truly very smart garment is illustrated here. It's the Buckwood, a three button double breasted young men's model that also is bound to be popular among men of more mature years.

Typical of all Society Brand Models, the Buckwood is carefully tailored by men trained to produce workmanship of the very best. The inside coat pocket bears the Society Brand label—the pledge of the makers.

Won't you come in today and see the splendid display of Society Brand Suits and Overcoats. No matter what your taste, type, size, we can properly take care of you.

5. Conducted midweek religious meetings.
  - A. With average attendance of 30 men.
6. Provided social recreation.
  - A. University night March 2, 1918.
  - B. Six socials in Y. M. C. A. rooms at the Temple, with average attendance of 60 men.
7. Conducts reading room.
  - A. Magazines.
  - B. Daily papers.
  - C. Games.
8. Organized Bible study classes.
  - A. Four hundred men enrolled in 28 classes.
  - B. Two classes each week for leaders.
9. Assisted in Red Triangle campaign and other similar campaigns.

10. Organization of Philips Brooks club.
    - A. Composed of men interested in Christian work as a life task.
  11. Owing to the fact that there was no full time secretary, work of a more aggressive character was not assumed or completed this year. Student leadership is good but the nature of the work is such; importance of it is so vital that a full time secretary is necessary to put across an adequate Christian program.

CADET REGIMENT HAS BANNER YEAR

drilled in close order work as many men in the regular army, it was a surprise to some, but the precision and steadiness with which the companies went through their maneuvers seemed to fully emphasize this statement. Because of the draft, which would take away many men from the regiment, compet was held earlier than usual, so it was thought best to continue drill after compet, to the close of school. For this reason, as well as because it is impossible to tell with any degree of certainty who will be back next year, the officers for next year were not announced the day of compet, and the military department will probably not be in a position to announce appointments and promotions until the composition of next year's regiment is more definitely known.

Taking the year as a whole, with a world war stimulating every one to make the most of his opportunities for preparation for coming army life, it might be well said that never before has the cadet regiment had so much snap and finish in the way its work has been done.
