DETAILED ACCOUNT OF TUESDAY'S CELEBRATION
(Printed at request of Military Department)

Commanding officer read the general orders of the day as follows:

This day has a peculiar significance for more than five hundred colleges and universities throughout the United States. It is witnessing the organization of a new and powerful instrument for the winning of the war—the students' army training corps. The patriotism of American educational institutions is demonstrated to the world by the effective and convincing manner in which they are supporting this far-reaching plan to hasten the mobilization and training of the armies of the United States.

It is most fitting that this day, which will be remembered in American history, should be observed in a manner appropriate to its significance, and to the important aims and purposes of the students' army training corps. Each commanding officer of a unit of the students' army training corps, will, therefore, with the co-operation of the president and faculty of the institution where his command is stationed arrange a program for the proper observance of this day, when more than one hundred and fifty thousand American college students offer themselves for induction in the students' army training corps, pledging themselves to the honor and defense of their country.

Commanding officer also read general orders No. 79 as follows:

Under the authority conferred by sections 1, 2, 8 and 9 of the act of congress "authorizing the President to increase temporarily the military establishment of the United States," approved May 18, 1918, the President directs that for the period of the existing emergency there shall be raised and maintained by voluntary induction and draft, a students' army training corps. Units of this corps will be authorized by the secretary of war at educational institutions that meet the requirements laid down in special regulations.

Commanding officer then read the following messages:

Message of the President of the United States

The step you have taken is a most significant one. By it you have ceased to be merely individuals, each seeking to perfect himself to win his own place in the world and have become comrades in the common cause of making the world a better place to live in. You have joined yourselves with the entire manhood of the country and pledged, as did your forefathers, "your lives, your fortunes and your sacred honor" to the freedom of humanity.

The enterprise upon which you have embarked is a hazardous and difficult one. This is not a war of words; this is not a scholastic struggle. It is a war of ideals, yet fought with all the devices of science and with the power of machines. To succeed you must not only be inspired by the ideals for which this country stands, but you must also be masters of the technique with which the battle is fought. You must not only be thrilled with zeal for the common welfare, but you must also be masters of the weapons of today.

There can be no doubt of the issue. The spirit that is revealed and the manner in which America has responded to the call is indomitable. I have no doubt that you too will carry it forward to the final victory—that will certainly be ours.

—Woodrow Wilson.

Message of Hon. Benedict Crowell, Acting Secretary of War

As college students you are accustomed to contests of physical force. You are familiar with the tedious training and self-sacrificing discipline that are required to develop a team that can win the game. You know that the contest is won by team work, push, enthusiastic co-operation with one another and co-ordination of every individual talent to the single purpose of common success.

In the military struggle in which you are about to enter, the same conditions prevail. In order to succeed many weeks of thorough going training and drill are essential to develop the co-ordination of skill and imagination that is essential to achieving the vast and vital end to which the country has pledged its every effort. The fighting machine will come into effective working order more rapidly in proportion as each individual in it devotes his full attention to the particular service for which he is best qualified. In entering upon this training as student soldiers you have the opportunity of developing your abilities to the point where they will be most effective in the common struggle. I am sure that you will do this in the same spirit and with the same enthusiasm that you have always exhibited in the lesser struggles to which you have been accustomed to devote your energies. I am sure that you will rise to this opportunity and show that America, the home of the pioneer, the inventor and the master of machines, is ready and able to turn its every energy to the construction of an all-powerful military machine, which will prove as effective in liberating men as have the reaper, the aeroplane and the telephone.

Message of General March, Chief of Staff

The students' army training corps has been organized to assist in training a body of men from whom the United States will draw officer material in large numbers. The need for these officers is one of the most imperative connected with our large program, and patriotic young men will thus be enabled to better serve their country in the great drive which is to come. Superior leadership spells success in war and it is the duty of every member of the student officers' training corps to do his utmost to qualify as a leader of men.

Governor Neville Speaks

Honorable Keith Neville, governor of Nebraska, was invited to attend the celebration and arrived upon the athletic field at 10:45. He was escorted to his place on the reviewing stand by a platoon from Company A. After the reading of the general orders and messages of the President of the United States, acting secretary of war and chief of staff, Governor Neville addressed the S. A. T. C. He laid great stress upon the opportunities of the members of the S. A. T. C., telling them of the great pride he has always had in Nebraska units in the various cantonments. He cited an occasion when he visited Camp Dodge and the division was passed in review in his honor, and at which time the commanding general of the division had told him that there were no better fighting troops in America than those who came from Nebraska. He stated that he knew that the men of the S. A. T. C. would uphold the high ideals of the fighting Nebraskans, and would do credit to the country, the state and the University of Nebraska, and to themselves. He commented upon the physical advantages which would accrue to the members of the S. A. T. C. in addition to the great mental advantages which are being offered to them. He also told the men that they should always hold the colors sacred, citing another instance of his visit to Camp Dodge, at which time regimental colors were dipped in passing the reviewing stand and at which time there was no dipping of the colors. And he pressed the point that the colors would not be dipped or bowed to any war lord, nation or group of nations or individuals in the world; and it is the duty of every soldier and citizen to bow to the colors. He congratulated the section B of the S. A. T. C. upon the progress made by it in developing soldiers. He congratulated all of the members and prospective members of the S. A. T. C. upon their opportunities offered them, and wished them all success in their undertaking.

Following the address of Governor Neville, Chancellor Hastings of the University made the following address:

Permit me a moment to apologize to these guests of the University who are arrayed behind us on the athletic field. In order to talk to the members of the S. A. T. C. and their friends who are gathered here for these induction exercises this morning, I must turn my back upon you, but I hope and believe that you have not thought at any time and are not thinking now that the University turns its back upon you. Of course, many of you are not Nebraska men but you have been received as our guests and your progress and future conduct will be placed to our credit or charged to our account as soldiers from the University of Nebraska. We hope that none of you will ever regret your stay here among us just as we feel certain that nothing in your future career as soldiers or as citizens will reflect anything but credit upon this institution, and we thank you for your presence and assistance on this occasion.

To you, ladies and gentlemen, students and friends of the University who have gathered here for these induction ceremonies, we wish to express our sense of the importance of the occasion. We feel that it is one that marks an epoch in the history of university education in this institution as well as at all of the others throughout the breadth of our country which are participating in its celebration this morning. We hope and believe that this novel and daring experiment which has been described to you by the governor and by Captain MacIvor and in the orders of the day which have been read will prove a transcendent success.

NEBRASKA DEFEATED BY VETERAN HAWKEYES

Greenwood's kick went wide of the posts and the score stood, Iowa 6, and Nebraska 0.

Lohman kicked off and after an exchange of punts, Lohman, Scott and Sykes waded through the Husker line for 21 yards and Lohman went over for the final touchdown. Greenwood again failed to kick goal and the count registered Iowa 2, and Nebraska 0, and so it remained to the close of the game.

Interest picked up after this score and the Huskers got down to business. Hubka reeled off a 21 yard sprint and later McMahon hurdled through for 10 yards. Nebraska gained two first downs and reached the Iowa 19 yard line before losing the ball. Lohman punted out of danger and the third quarter ended. Score 12 to 0.

Ross was run in for Mont Munn, who had taken his place earlier in the game. Hubka, Howarth and McMahon pushed the pigskin up 30 yards and then McMahon punted out of bounds. The ball sea-sawed back and forth and Iowa got it as near as the eight yard line. Nebraska had it for a period and then the Hawkeyes took it with only a few minutes yet to play. The back field, with the help of Slater, were gaining momentum and were halted on the two yard line when the whistle screeched and the third touchdown was snatched from their talons.
