S. A. T. C. CLASSES START WEDNESDAY

All University Work Will Re-Open in Full Saturday, November 2

New Room Schedules Are Issued For Soldiers at State Farm

The state-wide quarantine of public institutions, show houses, churches, etc., will lift Saturday, November 2, and simultaneously with this event, the university will re-open and once again resume class room instruction. However, class work for members of the S. A. T. C. will begin Wednesday, October 30, while all other classes will begin on Saturday, November 2, in accordance with the program published in Sunday's papers. Attendance of classes on these dates is not voluntary, but is made compulsory by order of the university authorities.

Executive Dean Carl C. Engberg issued last evening, the room schedules for new S. A. T. C. classes at the state farm, and it is to the interest of all S. A. T. C. men to clip from this paper the schedule as it appears at the bottom of this article. During the day the executive Dean will distribute to the men in the barracks an individual schedule of classes. This schedule, however, contains only the hour of subjects taken and does not give the room in which the classes will be held. The schedule is only temporary, and will be changed by the Dean after it is ascertained just how many students can be accommodated in each of the rooms.

Following is the order issued from the executive Dean's office in regard to the re-opening of the university:
All Students of the University:

The University of Nebraska will re-open Saturday, November 2, the earliest date permitted by the state board of health. Attendance on this date will be compulsory, not voluntary. Owing to changes in schedule due to the transfer of 450 S. A. T. C. men to the barracks on the farm campus, it will be necessary for all students to be on hand and in their respective classes on this opening date so that the necessary changes in schedules of

MAJOR WORTH LEADING HUSKERS "OVER THERE"

Former Assistant to Nebraska
Commandant in Command of
First Battalion

Major Thomas F. Worth, former assistant to Commandant Samuel Minter Parker, head of university cadets two years ago, is now leading Nebraska and Kansas men in the First Battalion, 355th Infantry in France. Major Worth is a son-in-law of Sergeant William J. Allen.

When Major Worth left the university in May, 1917, he went to Fort Riley, where after a short period of training he was commissioned a provisional second lieutenant in the regular army. Later he was made a captain and placed in command of Company C, the company containing most of the Nebraska and Kansas men. When the Eighty-ninth division went over, Worth was commissioned a major and placed in command of the first battalion.

The Eighty-ninth division has been in some of the severest fighting seen by any of the American troops in France, and some very interesting experiences are recounted in letters received by Sergeant Allen from the major. It was this division, which in the second week of September, annihilated the St. Mihiel salient, and won for the Yanks the admiration of the

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—An Associated Press dispatch from London sometime ago reported that there was current in Amsterdam a rumor to the effect that soldiers of the Forty-second American division had killed 150 German prisoners near Rheims on July 15, in retaliation for alleged losses sustained by our troops in action. Wolff's Bureau, which is a German press bureau, endorsed the story as given "on credit authority" (Continued on page 3)

UNIVERSITY Y. M. C. A. PREPARES PROGRAM TO ENTERTAIN SOLDIERS

Prominent Men in Red Triangle
Work Will Give Series of Lectures

Other Features to Be Athletic Contests, Moving Pictures, and Chapel Exercises

The University "Y" has secured several men prominent in Red Triangle work, to deliver a series of lectures in the near future. Rev. H. H. Harmon, pastor of the First Christian church, will give several talks as soon as he recovers from an attack of influenza. Rev. Harman was a Y. M. C. A. secretary of a division in France, and is now home on leave.

"Dad" Elliot, who has charge of the Y. M. C. A. work in the western division of the S. A. T. C., is scheduled for three lectures. He has been speaking to the men in several of the large cantonments throughout the country, and his popularity is shown by the large number of men that always turn out to hear him. He has spoken to as many as 14,000 men in a single week. He is a college man's man. His many years of experience with university men have fitted him especially well for Y. M. C. A. work in the S. A. T. C.'s. He has already won a warm place in the heart of every Husker in service. He has delivered very inspiring and educational talks on several occasions, and is always greeted with enthusiastic applause. Besides the Y. M. C. A. work in France, Mr. Tyler has taken part in actual warfare, and has given the boys some very valuable information concerning modern methods of fighting.

Besides lectures, there will be other forms of entertainment such as athletic contests, moving picture shows and chapel exercises. The Huskers can rest assured that enough entertainment will be provided to keep things lively. The University "Y" has always "gone over the top" in doing its "bit" and the season's entertainment will be no exception to their usual good work.

A CORRECTION

The Daily Nebraskan wishes to explain that the paragraph printed in the issue of Friday, October 26, 1918, casting a reflection on the navy uniform was without any authorization on the part of the management of this paper. The paragraph was put in merely as a "filler," which is a common practice in the composition of newspapers and therefore should not be taken seriously.

S. A. T. C. MEN PUT THRU FULL DAY

Nebraska Student Soldiers Given
Little Time For Play or Rest

Top Off Seven Hours Drill With Six Mile Hike For Appetizer

University of Nebraska S. A. T. C. men were given a new topic of conversation Monday, when they went through an all day schedule of intensive drill. After Saturday's inoculations barrack talk hinged more on sore arms and quaky sensations, but when Monday night arrived it brought to the Husker soldiers a new realization of army life.

The week's work was opened up with a swinging into drill of all the companies in division A Monday morning. Until 11:30 o'clock Lincoln streets were kept well heated by the steady tramp of soldiers' hoofs so that when the men took their turns at the mess table they were able to do justice to the portion that filled their platter.

After dinner, however, summoned again to the streets for more drill, they were ground through the mill for a longer period. At 3 o'clock questions were beginning to bob up as to how soon the formation would wend toward the barracks. At four some were beginning to offer resignation of their positions and at 5 o'clock there was an apparent lag in the cadence of the troops.

March Long Hours

It was the usual time for mess when the direction of the marching columns turned in the opposite direction from the mess hall, and stopped only upon their arrival at Sheridan boulevard where they went through a few formations at double time up and down the street and were finally halted for a short breathing interval.

By the time the troops had been brought up on a line on the boulevard the band arrived and pepped some lively airs while the columns again swung into step. The direction of the columns was now toward home and so there was a fighting hope to inspire the weary lads to some husky yells and happy songs as they marched steadily along the paved streets.

The sun had already set for the night by the time the formation had started homeward and the houses along the way were lighted within. Every porch and corner held enthusiastic spectators, and "O" street corners were visited by persons who had come to view the long line of recruits as they passed under the glow of the street light.

It was well along in the evening when the line was at last halted before the Armory where flag ceremonies were conducted and the companies then again were marched off to the mess hall where they were able to handle for the first time in their lives, perhaps, a man's sized meal.

Some days in army life may have their charm but the memories of Monday, October 28, 1918, will certainly wilt any future thoughts of "pickins" in the University of Nebraska student army training corps.

Y. M. C. A. Is Ever At the Good Work

A movement to organize Sunday morning discussion groups among different companies of the S. A. T. C., found a ready response from the men, when a canvass for members was made Sunday. A number of students who wished to organize some sort of bible class work in the barracks, undertook the task and were highly pleased with the results of the canvass.

A desire to have decency and cleanliness the key-note of barrack life at the University of Nebraska actuated the movement, and it is hoped that the Nebraska unit may keep itself free from the gambling evil, and other forms of obnoxious amusements that are found in other army camps over the country. "Dad" Elliot, the great Y. M. C. A. organizer and evangelist, visited the group about a week ago and helped the men plan the work.

Walter Judd, president of the university Y. M. C. A., and acting commander of Company "C," was placed at the head of the movement, and the work of organizing the classes within the companies, was divided among the members of the group. There will be no teachers of the classes, but the discussions will be conducted by the men themselves. In this way all the men will derive greater personal benefit from the discussions because everyone will be expected to take part in the debates and arguments on the different subjects to be taken up. All will be given a chance to express their opinions, and new ideas will be threshed out by all.

INTER-COMPANY BOXING MATCHES HELD FRIDAY

No Decisions Rendered But Some Promising Material
Uncovered

Y. M. C. A. Planning to Hold Similar Programs Throughout
Winter Months

A wealth of boxing talent among men of S. A. T. C. was discovered Friday night, when the Y. M. C. A. put on exhibition matches between Companies A and B, and Companies C and D in the Temple theatre.

Usher, of Company A, tipping the scales at 125 pounds, and Cory, of Company B, at 130, mixed in a whirlwind scrap and set the spectators wild. Kriemelmeyer, of Company D, and Van Sant, of Company C, who balanced at 200 and 185 pounds respectively, put on a good exhibition of heavyweight boxing and Zinc, of Company D, and Taylor, of Company C, in the 165 pound class, produced a small cyclone just before the curtain thudded at the end of the last program.

The shows run in two shifts, Companies A and B occupying the theatre for the first performance and C and D for the second. Medical authorities would allow the gathering, upon condition that only two companies be admitted at one time, and that the spectators be seated in alternate seats.

No Decisions Rendered

The bouts, consisting of two two-minute rounds, were purely exhibition matches and no decisions were rendered. In fact, it would have been difficult to pick the winners. Company spirit and inter-company rivalry were warmed up to fever heat and this form of entertainment found a ready response from the men.

The participants were called for, according to weight, and they responded voluntarily. Closs, of Company A, 142 pounds, and Gavenman, 139, of Company B opened the young tournament. They mixed immediately and put on a fast go. Block, of Company A, 151, and Kuntz, of Company B, 155, donned the mits for the second bout. Block felt the mat twice in the first round but he redeemed himself in the second round by landing some solid blows.

Usher and Cory started in like a steam exhaust but neither one was able to floor his opponent or show a decided advantage. Usher showed up well despite the fact that his size was against him. Isriel, of Company A, at 104 pounds, and Pierce, of Company B at 144, showed some speed in their engagement. Neither had the advantage in the first round but Isriel went down twice in the second stanza.

The last match between the first two companies was between Mont Munn, from Company B, who tips the scales at 192 pounds, and Dana, of Company A, weighing 172, both mem-

HUSKERS READY FOR COLLISION

Notre Dame Game Next Saturday
To Be Mighty Battle With Outcome Doubtful

Northwestern to Fill Turkey Day
Date in Place of Great Lakes Jackies

All obstacles have been removed, and nothing but a clear track stretches out ahead of the coming collision between Nebraska and Notre Dame universities on the Cornhusker gridiron next Saturday. Coach Kline is polishing up his machinery and Coach Rockne is working night and day preparing the Notre Dame engine for the battle, and all signs point to a monster engagement when the two teams meet.

According to news from Indiana, the Notre Dame coach considers the Nebraska game the hardest nut on his schedule and is planning to meet the Husker attack in the best way. Their schedule has been shot to pieces just like the Cornhuskers', and the only real game the Hoosiers have been able to play so far this season on account of the influenza epidemic was the opening number with Case College at Cleveland, September 28.

The Cornhusker practice has been progressing quite favorably of late and Nebraska officials are optimistic over the prospects for Saturday. Director Scott says, "It will be anybody's game," and predicts a whirlwind clash.

Northwestern for Turkey Day
In his efforts to bag an opponent for the Cornhuskers' for Thanksgiving, Professor Scott has wired the management at Northwestern, requesting a change from November 23 to the 28th. The Great Lakes Jackies, who were in prospect for Thanksgiving, are billed to play Perdue university on November 30, and cannot come to Lincoln on Turkey day. Northwestern held the Blue Jackets to a scoreless tie last Saturday at Chicago and loom up as just as formidable opponents as the sailors did. If such an arrangement can be made for Thanksgiving, Nebraska will bid for a game with Camp Funston or some other army aggregation for November 23.

HUSKERS ATTEND CHURCH SERVICE

Observance of Year

Mr. Percy Atkins Holds Students
Spell-Bound With Tales of American Heroism

In spite of sore arms and headaches, due to Saturday's inoculation, most of the Huskers attended the first church services held for the S. A. T. C.'s at the Temple theatre Sunday, Oct. 27. As it was not deemed advisable to have all the boys attend in a mass, due to prevailing health conditions, they were divided into four groups, two companies attending at a time. The services were in charge of the University Y. M. C. A.

After the singing of popular gospel hymns under the leadership of Mr. F. E. King, Walter H. Judd, acting secretary of the University Y. M. C. A. and commander of Company "C" of Section "A," gave a brief talk about the necessity of preparing for life after the war, development of character, and the soldier's spiritual life in general. He stated that this war was a mere incident in one's life, that those in service should not lose their personality or sacrifice their character
