DAILY DIARY RHYMES

By
 Gayle Vincent Grubb

"LOVE"
 (By request of a certain lady.)
 Love. One little word, but oh what it means,
 A word that portrays a thousand sad scenes.

Picture the lad who's in love with the girl,
 And the heart that he's given is in such a whirl
 That he walks with her, talks with her, sighs with her, too,
 Just the same as has happened to me or to you.

Picture the girl who's in love with the lad,
 Badly in love with the first chap she's had;
 She moons at his picture as soon as he leaves,
 While the Lord only knows all the words she breathes.

Picture a mother who sits there at home,
 And thinks of the son who, where'er he may roam,
 Fills her heart half in half with the Maker above,
 And you know and I know that that is real love.

Miller & Paine

Picture a dog who is crouched at the feet
 Of a booze-laden bum on an under-world street;
 Tho he's beaten and kicked, tho he plays a small part
 A poor lowly mongrel has love in his heart.
 What a privilege life is, to live and to love
 Where the fallen are lifted and given a shove,

Where you're booked for a man's part and put to the test
 To make you, as worthy, as good as the best.
 So, love has been pictured, the facts here are true,
 But, counsel? Not I ma'am—I leave that to you.
 Morale makes heroes.
 For every mother's son.
 For all creeds and one cause.
