

"On the High Seas," Vaudeville's biggest Sensation. Orpheum, Wed., Thurs., Fri. & Sat.

The peace that kills wouldn't be so bad if it killed only the peacemaker.

True politeness is often equivalent to a free pass.

After a strenuous effort to acquire fame many a man finds himself infamous.

To know one's limitations is a mark of wisdom; to rest content with them merits contempt.

A WORD FOR TEMPTATION

Since the days when Adam was tempted by Eve,
And the world had room enough so's you could breathe;
The Serpent still thrives to tempt you away
From the path you've been followin' day by day.

For Life is much like a hollow bowl,
With nothing much left if you've missed the goal;
And the snags of temptation a pluckin' at you
Are but decoys to find out just what you will do.

Yet, who'd love to live in a rut of routine,
And see only life that he always has seen?
With never a hitch in the run of affairs,
No temptation, worries, excitement or cares?

It's the glorious feeling that somehow is felt
In the turn of the cards, what they'll bring as they're dealt,
And the thought that choice of the right thing to do
Is left to your judgment, your conscience and you.

Now the Parson and I kind of differ, I guess,
He would discard temptation, but I must confess
That I favor it strongly but not as a jest,
Just a method of putting the world to the test.

Note the difference between the thing to be remembered and something fixed in your mind.

Acquire the habit of accuracy. If a thing remembered is wrong, you would better have a poor memory.

If you would remember permanently, it is necessary to keep your mind on the subject for some considerable time.

When you commit a passage to memory, quote the author, and class his name with others you cannot forget.

Never try to force memory when something seems to be forgotten. Turn to something else, and it will soon come up.
