SECOND NEBRASKA ROAD INSTITUTE CLOSSES TODAY

The Thursday session of the Second Nebraska Road Institute proved to be one of the most interesting conferences ever held on the university campus. Large crowds attended both the morning and afternoon meetings. At 9 o'clock Captain R. L. Cochran spoke in detail of the condition of French roads. This subject is unusually interesting at this time when everyone is so familiar with the expression "Flanders mud." A paper on the "Construction of Military Roads in Government Cantonments and at the Front" was then read by Mr. Charles Collins, the Barrett Company's representative at the conference. This address was along the same lines as the talk by Captain Cochran and the delegates manifested interest in the theme. Mr. J. L. Housekeeper, representative of the Portland Cement Association, talked on "The Construction and Maintenance of Concrete Highways," and splendidly outlined the many advantages of constructing highways of such a durable material.

The institute closes today after a successful week of mingled work and pleasure. Mr. F. W. Parrott, auditor of the Iowa State Highway Commission; Mr. George E. Johnson, state engineer, and Mr. L. E. Adams, Douglas county engineer, will speak this morning. In the afternoon Mr. J. T. Donaghey, maintenance engineer of the Wisconsin State Highway Commission, will speak on the character

TO OUR HONORED VISITORS.

The University of Nebraska is proud this week to throw open her gates in welcome to the hundreds of youthful athletes who are here for the Great tournament. The University takes a peculiar interest in the welfare of her students-to-be, and is delighted to see the splendid display of athletic prowess exhibited in the games. One day's time spent in watching the contests, is sufficient assurance to any Cornhusker, that Nebraska will continue for some time to come, to produce championship teams. The future of the University lies in the hands of you boys who are playing in the tournament. You are the Cornhuskers of the future, and the present generation of Cornhuskers is looking to you for great deeds. We see in you the possibility of great things, and take this opportunity to acquaint you with our school. We hope to make the University so attractive to you that you will have no thought of attending any other university. You surely THINK Nebraska has them all beaten; we KNOW it. So when you board the train for college next fall, or the fall after that, be assured that a welcome awaits you in Lincoln.

WINNERS IN CLASSES A AND B BATTLE IN SEMI-FINALS TODAY

Omaha Appears to be Probable Resting Place for the Class A Cup.

Over a Thousand Turned Away from Armory at Thursday's Games.

CLASS A AND B CONTESTS

CLASS A Norfolk 9 Shelton 17. Fremont 7 Omaha 17. Omaha Com. 18 School of Ag. 1 Schuyler 8 Uni. Place 21.

CLASS B Sutton 24 Oakdale 14. Auburn 4 Ravenna 26. Havelock 15 Minden 18. Arlington 11 Beatrice 10.

The big tournament has now reached the semifinals. All the weaker teams have been eliminated and every game today will be a real battle. Interest in today's contests will center on the University Place-Omaha Commerce battle. Both Omaha teams were victorious yesterday and unless Uni. Place stops the Commerce lads, the trophy is sure to land in the metropolis.

Shelton easily eliminated Norfolk in the afternoon session of class A, by a count of 17 to 9. The one sided results indicate that the big teams are at last pitted against each other. Omaha Central ran away from the Fremonters 17 to 7, while the School of Agriculture counted but one lone tally against the School of Commerce, and University Place showed its strength by accumulating 21 points against 8 for Schuyler. Omaha Central may find the Shelton machine a hard nut to crack and Omaha Commerce is sure to have her hands full with the University Place artists.

Hundreds Turned Away

Coach Stewart, director of the tournament said: "We turned away a thousand from the Armory last night." The poor, much slandered, little old gym is surely being overworked in its old age. It groaned and creaked under the strain of the multitude who packed its every nook and cranny. The desperate spectators

MISS BURNER MAKES PLEA FOR STUDENT DEMOCRACY

"While the recent war was fought to make the world safe for democracy, students have not done what they could to bring about a democratic condition on the campus. There are three things that make for war in the hearts of man—greed, selfishness and disregard of others, and as long as they exist there will not be an end of war."

This was the theme of the talk given by Miss Oolooah Burner on the subject "Campus Democracy and University Spirit," to a large audience at convocation yesterday morning in the Temple. That the campus is not only a training camp for life but is a section of life itself is her opinion, and as the student is on the campus, so will he be in his later life. As long as privileges are open to, honors enjoyed by, and offices controlled by a few, democracy is impossible.

Most of the things Miss Burner talked about she had heard discussed on the campus during her stay here. People have said that students were classified according to the organization to which they belonged, and that if a student did not wear a pin, he was not spoken to by those who did. Another criticism she had heard was that Nebraska did not have the right kind of spirit. "University spirit is to a campus what patriotism is to a nation," she said.

Race prejudice is another thing that hinders democracy, according to (Continued on Page Two) swarmed over the rafters and even hung on the basket boards. Every seat was taken thirty minutes before the opening of the game. A large delegation from University Place came early and occupied about half of one side.

Yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, the athletic association called a meeting of the school principals for the purpose of hearing complaints against the Lincoln hotel accommodations. Lincoln is cramped for room this week on account of the two big conventions in town besides the tournament. The high school athletes were promised rooms at 75 cents each, but on account of the congestion have been crowded eight and ten in a room. This savored of profiteering to the school men and thus the protest was made. Secretary Whitten of the Lincoln Commercial club promised that next year every high school man would get a room at 50 cents per capita.

BASIC MILITARY DRILL FOR ADVANCED COURSES

Chancellor Avery received a letter Thursday from the War Department stating that in view of the fact that the Morrill act does not make military training compulsory for all students in land-grant colleges, educational authorities are free to excuse from such military training students who have covered this work in other ways.

As far as admission to the advanced course is concerned however, educational institutions are very definitely limited by the provisions of the national defense act which permits only those students who have completed two years of the basic course or who have completed a course substantially equivalent in an institution where the professor of military science and tactics has been detailed by the war department. It is regretted that credit cannot be given towards advanced courses for services performed during the war. The officials of the war department are continuing their efforts to secure an adjustment of the question.
