CODE BILL INSURES AGAINST NEGLIGENCE

State Senator Peterson Tells Political Science Class That It Makes Responsibility.

Creates Six New Administrative Departments Under One Head—No Change in Salaries.

Monday morning, May 5th, Senator C. Petrus Peterson spoke to the members of Professor Senning's eight o'clock Political Science class on the Civil Administrative Code Bill. Senator Peterson is widely known in Lincoln and throughout the state because of his close connection with civic and political problems. He has served the state admirably for many years and has been state senator during the last two sessions of the state legislature.

The code bill creates six absolutely new administrative departments under one responsible head, but there will be no material change in salaries. The secretaries of each department will each receive $5,000 per annum.

Senator Peterson said, in part: "The administrative officials and departments as now organized are not responsible to any one definite head, nor are they responsible to one another. The insurance and banking boards are the real executives in Nebraska, because, in truth, the governor is behind them in all that they do or say. There is a marked lack of co-ordination of energies. This would in time lead to a complete lack of any responsibility.

"If the man in charge of state banks acts unfavorably to certain interests in the state and he is appealed to, he usually says: 'If you don't like like my work, you perhaps had better see my superiors'—(the banking board, composed usually of the governor, attorney general and another executive official.) The meeting of this board is as indefinite as the responsibility of the board.

Locates Responsibility
"Have we, the people of Nebraska, enacted as many remedies to existing state legislation as the constitution permits? The Civil Administrative Code Bill locates responsibility, assuring great efficiency out of the remedies the state has already made. It will also strengthen the financial system of the state, although the power over taxation has been more or less frustrated.

"The greatest opposition to the theory of the code bill, is that it places undue concentration of power in the hands of the governor. There are two movements afoot throughout the United States in regard to this: first, that which tends toward pure democracy through the initiative, ref-

DEAN LINN SPEAKS ON "EDUCATIONAL FANCIES"

Noted Instructor Addresses Honorary Societies in Art Hall Monday Evening.

"If I could find some one who knew about education and had not forgotten, it would be a boom to the world," said James Weber Linn, dean of the junior colleges at the University of Chicago, in his address on "Educational Fancies" before the Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi societies Monday evening in Art Hall. Dean Linn is a nephew of Miss Jane Adams of the Hull House. Professor Gass introduced the speaker.

"There is nothing about which less is known and which is more talked about than education. It begins in babyhood and ends with the grave. We are limited by a various number of theories, in the kindergarten, the Montessori, Fairhope and Dewey, and in the vocational training, junior high school, normal schools and colleges by the Dewey and Fairhope. At the University of Denver the freshmen are permitted to take political economics and not political science while at the University of Chicago it is just the opposite.

"What is education? Is it information, the training of the mind, the training for a job or the training as a social being? When thirteen years old I began to study geometry and was still taking mathematics at seventeen. Yet I can remember nothing that I learned during those years. Information cannot be the object of education. "One fundamental matter in education is the training of the mind. In exercising the intellect, the muscles of the mind are developed. The problem is what courses best train the mind.

NEBRASKA MAY SEND TEAM TO CAMBRIDGE

Husker Relay Men Will Go to Harvard if Supported by Students.

Grinnell Springs Surprise on Ames—Locals Must Fight Hard Saturday.

Will the relay team go to the National Intercollegiate Track Meet at Harvard, May 31? This question must be decided by the student body. The whole country now is aware that Nebraska has a relay team, and is wondering what it could do under more favorable circumstances than those encountered at Philly. Coach Stewart has been urged by many students and business men to go to Cambridge and he will probably send in entry blanks to get on the inside this time in case the school does send its big four.

Many enthusiastic co-eds have broached the idea of a tag day to raise the funds. Those who contributed to sending the team on the last eastern trip consider that it was a dollar well spent and there are hundreds on the campus who undoubtedly would like to feel the same way. The team will sure go to Harvard if the campus so desires.

Grinnell Surprises
Grinnell sprung one of the big surprises of the season when she walloped Ames last Saturday 69-57. Haas of Grinnell who won the century dash at the Penn relays carried off honors in the 100 and the 220-yard events, while the haas mite race also unexpectedly helped swell the total of the victor. The Cornhusker's waited patiently to get the line-up on the Grinnell speedsters as this meet would reveal it and the result hasn't created much joy in this vicinity.

The dopsters didn't concede Nebraska a ghost of a show in case the squad went to Ames and the prospect now appears hopeless. However, the fans who witness the dual spectacle at Grinnell Saturday will see something more than a tame, one-sided, it's-a-shame-to-take-the-money affair. Haas will meet some real competition when McMahon begins to dig up the stretch in both the hundred and the twenty. On the other hand, the Husker quartet of quarter milers fresh from the Quaker meet will have to earn their money in the relay. Grinnell snatched this event handily from the Ames artists who are a fast group. No time was given for the events in the press reports but Nebraska may expect a real fight.

KEEN RIVALRY WILL MARK ELECTION FOR MEMBERS OF STUDENT COUNCIL

Polls Open in Memorial Hall Today Between 9 and 12 and 2 to 5 O'clock.

Students Must Be Careful in Following Instructions Before Casting Ballots.

Election for members on the student council will be held today from 9 till 12 and 2 till 5 in Memorial Hall on the city campus, and from 11 to 2 in Room 202, Agricultural Hall at the Farm. Competition will be very keen as all the candidates for election have been unusually active in school affairs and are all expected to pull heavy votes.

The voting is more complex than usual and it is necessary that voters shall pay close attention to the printed instructions when they are casting their votes. An X should be placed after the candidate the student is voting for. The X should be placed in the first column if the candidate is first choice, in the second column if second choice, and in the third column if third choice. No candidate can be marked twice. Each student has one of three preferences for each person on the ballot. Where only one candidate is nominated for a college or school, Xs should be placed in the first column; where two candidates out of three or more are to be selected vote for two in the first column. Others should be placed in the second or third column according to preference.

Must Follow Instructions
In the last group where eight candidates out of twelve are to be elected mark four men and four women in the first column and the remainder in the second or third column according to preference. In each group on the entire ticket the student must vote for as many candidates as are to be elected from that group; if, for example, two are to be elected and the student marks one as first choice, his ballot will be invalid. To make the votes effective, students must absolutely follow instructions throughout the ballot.

Votes should be cast early and every printed instruction should be followed. A complete ballot is printed for the student's reference in this issue of the Nebraskan.

KAPPA SIGS WIN FIRST ROUND IN SEMI-FINALS

Swamp Sig Alphas 10 to 1—Phi Delt-Sig Ep Will Battle This Afternoon.

RECEIVES LETTERS FROM BOYS MAKING SACRIFICE

The following letters have been received by Dean J. E. LeRossignol of the College of Business Administration, and speak only too mildly of the sterling qualities of these former university students who lost their lives in the great world war:

Mead, Nebraska,

May 2, 1919.

"Prof. J. E. LeRossignol,
Lincoln, Nebr.

"Dear Sir: Your letter to H. C. Hagelin was referred to me to answer. Enclosed you will find a biographical sketch of Paul's life. You may add to or deduct from this whatever you think best. As you undoubtedly know, Paul worked his way through the university. He leaves his parents, three brothers, and two sisters and a host of friends to mourn his loss.

"If I have omitted anything you should like to know you may call up his sister at the Overland Co., in Lincoln, and she will be able to give you any other information you might desire.

"C. E. Hagelin, who attended the university with Paul has been in the navy since the first of September and just received his discharge a few days ago. He is now with the Ellison White Chautauqua System on the Pacific coast.

"Paul A. Hagelin was born on a farm near Wahoo, Nebr., July 3, 1892, and received his early training there, attending the public schools and later the high school at Wahoo, graduating with the class of 1910. For two years following his graduation he was engaged in the lumber and grain business with his brother at Touhy. He entered the state university with the class of 1912, being graduated in 1916. In 1917 he took a post-graduate course and when he was called into the service he was an instructor in the commercial department of the Lincoln High School. He entered the service April 26, 1918, and was put in the 341st machine gun battalion, 89th Division, arriving overseas the first of
