FRESHMAN CLASS WILL CELEBRATE

First Year Students Will Hold Their First Class Party on Hallowe'en

Old Halloween pranks will be forgotten by freshmen tonight when they crowd the Armory to join in their first class party. The committee has all details worked out to give to the first year students a royal time.

The committee in charge states that dates are not considered in style for such parties. Experience has taught, say members of upper classes, that better times can be enjoyed by all if members of the class come singly and later in the evening if they see fit, pair off. No freshman need feel, therefore, that if he comes alone that he will be out of place. A lone freshman will have lots of company.

Only Freshmen are to be admitted to this party. If all freshmen come they will more than fill the Armory. The evening of fun is to begin promptly at eight o'clock. The class president will give an address, followed by a program of dancing, games and music, prepared by university talent. Then dancing will take up the remaining time and refreshments will be served.

MEETING OF WOMEN'S PRE-MEDIC SOCIETY HELD THURSDAY

The Women's Pre-Medic Society had a business meeting in the Y. W. C. A. room, five o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Committees reported and completed plans for the society to meet at the home of the president, Martha Custis, 1400 A street, at seven-thirty Friday, November 7, of a social gathering and initiation of new members.

Dues were voted upon and committees were appointed for the constitution and for the Cornhusker photograph.

The girls decided to meet once a month. Initiations will feature the first meeting. This is considered of utmost importance to new members.

TWO HUNDRED ANSWER SCHISSLER'S APPEAL FOR BASKET TOSSERS

Two hundred basket ball enthusiasts gathered in the Armory last night in response to the call issued by Coach Schissler. Schissler explained the workings of the proposed system of inter-college basket ball. Under the present plan nine college teams will be in the running for the championship of the university.

Inadequate gymnasium facilities will prohibit every man from receiving a fair chance for the varsity basket ball squad. Only about twenty-five picked athletes will constitute the Varsity string. It is for the purpose of giving a chance to the many others who intend to play that the inter-college idea is being developed. Each college team will be required to obtain its own suits but basket balls will be furnished by the university. Floor space for practice will be available at various times so each team will have plenty of chance for work-outs.

To Hold Tournament
The proposition of forming a league of the colleges has been abandoned and instead the season will close with an elimination tournament in which the college teams will compete for final honors. Work-out will start at once and all teams will be ready to go by the fifteenth of December. The Varsity team will open when Morningside meets the Cornhuskers here the eighteenth and nineteenth of December and four inter-college games will be staged as preliminaries at that time.

The following committees were placed in charge of the respective college teams, and meetings will be called at once to organize and formulate plans for tryouts.

- Laws: Pickett, Thompson, Adams.
- Civil Engineers: Wertz, Nixon, Weller.
- Medics: Lees, Deering, Matson.
- Art and Science: Taylor, Fitzsimmons.
- Business Administration: Dana, Spacht, Zook.
- Dentals: Spears, Alexander.
- Agri: Herman, Smith, Dowers.
- Electrical Engineers: Ellis, Gibbs, Tomiska.
- Mechanical Engineers: Torendly, Jungmeyer, Davis.

FORMER NEBRASKANS GIVEN RECOGNITION

In a recent number of "Science," the following Nebraska alumni were mentioned as having been elected to important positions in the Botanical society of Washington:

- Dr. Haven Metcalf, Ph. D., '03; elected to the presidency of the society.
 - Dr. L. L. Harter, A. B., '03, A. M., '06; elected treasurer of the society.
 - Dr. R. K. Beattie, B. Sc., '06, A. M., '06; elected secretary of the society.
- The Botanical society of Washington is an organization including in its membership many of the prominent botanists of Washington, D. C.

SCHULTE CALLS FOR TRACK MEN

Coach Declares Many Candidates An Essential Foundation for a Winning Team

Interclass Meet Saturday Will Be An Opportunity for New Men to Get Started

"Give me two hundred and fifty track candidates, and I will develop a wonderful 1920 track team at the University of Nebraska," declared Coach Schulte to two hundred track aspirants at the Armory last night. Schulte made this statement in all modesty and reticence, not claiming of be wizard coach or miracle man, but a plain, honest, hard-worker. "Such individual stars as McMahon, Graf, and Finney cannot make a great track team," said Schulte. "It is the team that has five or six good men for each event that wins the most meets."

The Coach called particular attention to the fact that most Freshmen are backward about coming out, afraid of the awkward showing they will make. He pointed out a number of famous track stars who were inexperienced, green novices when they first appeared on the track. When Captain McMahon first came out he was considered hopeless but now he is rated as one of the half dozen best quarter milers in the entire nation. "I would like to see two hundred Freshmen 'dub' out for track this year," said the coach. "I admire the honest 'dub' who is willing to work and train."

The first track event of the year is set for ten o'clock Saturday morning at the athletic field. It will be an inter-class meet and at least two or three hundred candidates are expected to be on hand. Entry blanks for the different classes are now posted in the gymnasium and any desiring to enter in any event may do so by means of these blanks. All Freshmen are advised to get into as many events as possible whether proficient in any particular event or not. The success of Nebraska's track team will depend on the number of men who are out and Saturday morning is the first chance to get into the game.

Miss Alice Howell Returns With Envious Overseas Record

Professor of Dramatic Art Saw Fourteen Months in France as Canteen Worker

A veteran of gas and shell fire and three of America's greatest drives, Miss Alice Howell, professor of dramatic art, comes back to the university with a record of fourteen months overseas service. Miss Howell not only saw action with troops at the front but was in Paris during its bombardment by "Big Bertha," the German super-gun.

Miss Howell went to France for the Red Cross and found work wherever she was sent; everything from actual assistance in the dressing of American and French wounded to making doughnuts for a Sunday afternoon tea party for those "Somewhere in France." Her work had its pleasurable sides as well as its sorrows and she returned a bigger, better, woman.

Any American doubthboy who has been in France knows what an American Canteen, run by real American

WILL PAUSE TO PAY TRIBUTE TO FALLEN

Just before the starting whistle calls the teams into action tomorrow, a few moments of absolute silence will reign over the stands and gridiron. This period of calm will be in honor of the fallen heroes of both Ames and Nebraska who gave their lives on the battle field in the cause of democracy. It is only fitting and proper that this reverence should be shown to the dead heroes of the two schools.

This has been practiced by the leading schools of the country in all gridiron conflicts. It is one way in which all can unite in paying tribute to those represented by the gold stars on the service flag. This ceremony will be conducted for the first time on Nebraska field at tomorrow's game.

CHORUS PRESENTS HALLOWE'EN CANTATA AT CONVOCATION

Yesterday's convocation "St. John's Eve," given by the chorus and orchestra was both a treat and a surprise to those who attended. Despite the rain, a large number of university students and many Lincoln people gathered at the Temple theater.

An unusually large chorus with excellent soloists and orchestral music, under the direction of Carrie B. Raymond, gave the audience a most delightful hour's entertainment.

Those who realize the difficulty of presenting a cantata were surprised at the finished manner in which it was given. Mrs. Raymond has been hampered by the lack of male voices but the men who did sing took their parts so well that the absence of others passed unnoticed. Mrs. Raymond's greatest difficulty, however, was due to the lack of stage room. The Temple Theater, which is the largest stage the university has, proved inadequate and part of the chorus were obliged to stand in the wings and boxes.

The cantata reflected the Halloween spirit and its music was rollicking and joyful with occasional somber strains which merely emphasized its otherwise joyful spirit.

Margaret Perry took the part of Nancy, a village maiden and Lucille Cline that of Margaret, an ancient dame. The part of Robert, a young villager was sung by Oscar Bennett and that of the young squire by Francis Diers. The orchestra was composed of Edward J. Wait, first violin; Ernest Harrison, second violin; William T. Quick, viola; Lillian Elste, cello; Mark Pierce, double bass; Donno Gustin, piano.

women, meant to him. It was a home. It was a place where he could read, write, smoke, and have the association of fine, sympathetic, helpful, women. Miss Howell's first work was organizing such canteens, and she was in charge of the establishment of those in Evacuation Hospitals Nos. 9, 10 and 14. Evacuation Hospital No. 10 is near historic Verdun, and its establishment during shell fire was most dangerous.

An inspector of huts in the Eastern zone, the advance sector of the American troops, Miss Howell had her hands full, for the hospital centers were not near each other and the French train service was so poor that travelling done was uncertain and most distasteful, often necessitating waits from sixteen to twenty-four hours for a train and then finding it so crowded that standing room was at a premium. During her tours of inspection Miss Howell went through Al-lerey, Saone et Loire, where the University of Nebraska Base Hospital No. 49 was located.

CYCLONES WILL DEPEND ON SPEED TO DEFEAT NEBRASKA

STUDENT COUNCIL CALLS MEETING FOR SUNDAY AFTERNOON

The Student Council has called a mass meeting with representatives from every class and student organization for 3:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Faculty hall, Temple building. In calling together a representative from every organization in the school, to discuss a question of vital interest to the school as a whole, the council is taking the initial step in perfecting self-government of student affairs on the campus.

As the representative organization of the school, the Student Council feels that it belongs the responsibility of promoting democracy among the students, a stronger real Nebraska spirit with less factional interest, and a medium through which the student body can express its desires with regard to student affairs.

The meeting to be held Sunday afternoon is the first of a series toward the end the Student Council is working and the results will be awaited with considerable interest.

UNIVERSITY STOCK COMPANY'S FIRST PLAY NEXT WEEK

"It Pays to Advertise," to be given the 6th, 7th and 8th of November in the Temple Theater, is the first of a series of plays by the University Stock company during the coming year. The intention of the players is to satisfy the need of a stock company in the city of Lincoln.

The play is an original Cohan and Harris production whose plot centers about a clever advertising man whose enthusiasm and originality brings the story to a most delightful climax. Miss Alice Howell, dramatic director in charge of the work is most enthusiastic over the cast and the preliminary work. The leading lady, Miss Genevieve Addleman, whose work is most charming, plays opposite Herbert Yenne and Mr. Walter Herbert, both ex-service men. This play marks the return to dramatics of men called away by the war.

Miss Addleman in discussing it emphasized the aggressive spirit shown throughout the play and said, "The keynote of this play is to be the keynote of the policy of the University Stock company during the coming year." The whole cast shows this spirit and this play as well as every succeeding one is an assured success.

The dramatic season is in full swing, with the dramatic try-outs next week, and the play, "It Pays to Advertise" to be followed very shortly by "The Follies." The second play in the series is "Under Cover" whose male cast is one taken entirely by men who saw action overseas with the A. E. F.

The students in Mechanical Engineering recently performed a successful series of tests upon a crank pin returning tool invented and manufactured by Alex Weber, a former Lincoln man, now of Los Angeles. The students also made time studies of the various operations and determined the effects of various cutting compounds used in conjunction with the tool. The tool is at present on exhibition in the machine shop, Mechanical Engineering building.

Ever since the writer can remember there has been a campaign on to make men free, and yet the jails have been fairly well filled, all the time, because men have too much freedom.

Ames Backers Have Great Respect for Cornhusker Prowess

Farmers From Iowa Will Come Saturday Ready to Spring Some Surprises

The Ames Cyclones will come to Lincoln depending entirely upon their speed to defeat the Nebraska Cornhuskers. The Nebraskans will probably outweigh the Iowans at least twenty pounds to the man so Coach Maysner cannot hope to beat the Huskers in a smashing game. The following article gives a good impression of opinion in Ames circles.

"Ames, Iowa, Oct. 30, 1919.—(Special to The Nebraskan)—Nothing is being left undone in getting the Cyclones into shape for the invasion of the Cornhusker camp Saturday. The prestige of the Nebraskans is highly regarded in the local circles in spite of the fact that they have failed to register a win on the gridiron this year. The Ames team is light and depends upon its speed in winning the game. It is hoped that Bill Davis, one of the brightest lights on the Cyclone squad, will get into shape by Saturday. Davis, if right, is on of the clearest open field runners in the west and is a drop kicker of excellent ability. Vanderloo, the hard hitting full-back, who has been out for a few days, will probably get an opportunity to show his wares against the Huskers. "Shorty" Boyd, Coach Maysner's midget quarter back, is in good shape and all primed to tear into the Nebraskans Saturday.

The local followers are not very keen as to predicting the outcome of the game, as they have the impression that the Nebraskans are due to come into their own this week. However, they are positive that the Cyclones, if given a fair chance, will spring some unlooked for surprise. They showed amazing strength last week when the big Kasas team battled them to a scoreless tie. Enthusiasm over the game is running high and a number of students plan to accompany the team to Lincoln. Funds have been raised to send a fifty-piece college band with the team Friday.

No outdoor practice was held by the Huskers yesterday. The team was given to a thorough rule quiz and analysis of anticipated Ames plays and formations. Assistant Coach Schulte scouted the Ames-Kansas battle last week and brought home some interesting data concerning the Cyclone team. He rates them as one of the best aggregations in the Missouri Valley and predicts that tomorrow's game will be no walkaway for the Cornhuskers.

Coach Schulte has put the finishing touches to the Husker squad in preparation for the Cyclones. Several changes will probably be apparent when the heather green warriors prance on to the field tomorrow. Schulte has not announced a definite lineup but the following is a likely selection:

- Swanson le
- Wilder lt
- W. Munn wg
- Day c
- Pucelik rg
- Lyman rt
- Kellogg re
- McGlasson qb
- Schellenberg lb
- Dobson (C.) rh
- Hubka fb
