DR. FLING TELLS OF PEACE CONFERENCE AT CONVOCATION

In the world for Wilson to go to Paris. Those men who went to Europe were more crusaders than those who went to Palestine years ago.

This attitude towards the league of nations is a part of the same inability to understand which characterizes the United States senate. The democrat is on one side and the republican on the other. Wilson says the question should be settled with our eyes on future society. He came back to America and the fight began. Those who object to the covenant speak of Shantung and Ireland. They have nothing to do with the case. We have not imagination enough to grasp the world situation. We have come to be the most powerful state in the world today as a result of the war.

The nations today are willing to have our leadership because they know we are honest. We cannot escape this responsibility. The league of nations must come into existence. The covenant of the league says the first meeting shall be called together by the president of the United States. Imagine the meeting called together by the president when the people of the United States had not decided to go into it!

After seven months of struggle, during which time he was twice prostrated, Wilson came back to meet opposition caused by personal hatred. Personal attitude should make no difference. In a crisis like this the personality of the man isn't the issue. You know the facts and our responsibilities. Taft was not sent to Europe because he had important work at home. He had to prepare the minds of the people here for the covenant. All over the country this important matter should stir our hearts to plan for the peace of the world. That is what I mean by the formation of a world society on a basis of justice.

EXTRAVAGANCE HITS PEOPLE OF JAPAN

According to advices received at Washington, D. C., Japan is getting rich and extravagant.

Japanese women are going in for silk stockings and the cotton robes of both men and women are vanishing. It was reported. Some wear the latest from Broadway, but those who cling to kimono styles now insist on silk—not cotton.

Three meals of rice a day no longer satisfy. At least one of beefsteak is demanded.

"It's all due to our mushroom millionaires," said an embassy attaché. "They made their fortunes shipping goods abroad and now they are spending and the whole country is trying to keep up with them."

BUBBLES

Dance tonight and the university dances with you. Dance tomorrow night and you will dance alone, for it will be Thursday.

As Cleopatra would say "On with the dance. Let the joy be on Wednesday night."

Oh, chaperone, may I go out to dance? Oh, no, my youthful one. For you are here to study And not here for fun.

Essay No. 9—The Subscription Dance

The subscription dance is the name applied to the charity balls, given by various students who are creating an endowment fund for themselves. Such a dance was originated by a student, who was confronted by a long delayed board bill, with the purpose of raising funds to alleviate the anxiety of a landlord, who was on the verge of being sent to the poorhouse. Since then, they have been given on the slightest pretext, but all of them with the same object in view, viz: the expansion of the bankroll. The subscription dance serves as a gathering place where the elite may "crab" the music, the lack of programs and refreshments. This dance is the only rival that the movie has in keeping a student downtown to 10:30. The subscription dance has caused more discussion on the campus than the disposition of Shantung, and the situation is just about as clear.

The managers of the moving picture theaters have declared that they are in favor of putting a ban on mid-week dances.

A new organization will soon appear on the campus. It will be called "Veterans of the Mid-Week Dance." Any student who has danced on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday is invited to make application for membership. The slogan "Those were the days of real sport" will be the motto of the organization.

Puzzle

Professor Cochran at Freshmen lecture:
"I would like to see the following in front at the end of the hour."

Two blood transfusions given by Miss Lola Treat, University of Minnesota, professor of institutional management, to Carl Rygg, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rygg, of St. Paul, whom Miss Treat had run over with her automobile, mean an even chance of the recovery for the boy.

The accident occurred at noon at the corner of Raymond and Long sts., Minneapolis, just as the children were coming home from school. Miss Treat was driving her car when three small boys attempted to run in front of her. She was forced to make a quick turn to escape striking two of the boys, and in doing so struck Carl with the back wheel of the car. The wheel passed over the middle of the child's body. Since then Miss Treat has not been long absent from his bedside.

She accompanied him to St. Mary's hospital, and upon learning that a blood transfusion was necessary to save his life, offered her own blood for the transfusion. A day later when another transfusion was thought necessary she again offered to undergo the operation.
