WHERE IS NEBRASKA?

The following editorial appeared in the University Daily Kansan under the caption, "Why Not Kansas Too?" It tells how the University of Missouri provides for its school of journalism. The article speaks for itself.

"The University of Missouri has the first complete newspaper plant in the world built solely for a school of journalism. The building with its equipment will cost $80,000. It will include class rooms for the classes in journalism, a press, a serotyping outfit, and other equipment. The composing room will be enclosed in glass, affording a complete view of the mechanical production of a newspaper from the outside. There will be a mailing room, a room for newsboys, a photo engraving laboratory, and a storeroom.

"The offices of the members of the journalism faculty and the student managers will be on the first floor. Besides the business office of the Evening Missourian there will be a city room with a telegraph and telephone alcove, conference rooms, reading room, library, morgue and wash rooms.

"The advertising department will be quartered on the third floor and the remainder of this floor will be used as an auditorium.

"We are not going to rave on but read this carefully and then come over and see our little lean-to."

The University of Kansas at least appears to have a "lean-to." Nebraska has two antiquated rooms in University hall devoted to its department of journalism. They are crowded and poorly lighted. No classrooms adapted for classroom instruction in journalism are provided.

The Evening Missourian, official student publication at the University of Missouri, occupies a large part of the journalism building. Compare this to Nebraska. The three largest publications, the Daily Nebraskan, the Cornhusker and the Awgwan are quartered in a tiny office room, not larger than twenty by twenty-five feet, in the basement of U Hall.

Missouri's equipment for journalism cost $80,000. Nebraska's outfit barely exceeds $100. Nebraska compares favorably with other schools in different branches of work. Why is it so lax and so inferior in providing for a school of journalism?

A college editor at the University of Iowa has blithely suggested that the "Stags" party the Iowa football team attended at Chicago last Saturday had a "kick" in it.

"STUNTS" VINDICATED

"Stunts" have been charged with being harmful to appreciation of the more serious things of life. The advertising of a "stunt" at every casual gathering is looked upon askance by those who harp on the degeneracy of the times.

College students have perhaps been singled out as the most flagrant offenders, but out of justice to those undergoing a formative period that demands more recreation than later years it should be remembered that the adult world is wild with the craze for musical comedy. Serious drama hardly receives enough support to warrant its production. The desire for unusual feats among the students is merely a reflection of the tendency of their elders.

The objectors to this craving for the novel should not overlook the good points possessed by "stunts." Laughter is the best producer of good feeling and unity of sentiment. "Stunts," whether good or bad, usually stir up this form of expression in any group and in this way act as saving graces in a world of turmoil. With all the irritation and impatience that can be sensed in the air, social unrest would be even greater were it not for the fact that once in a while this great country laughs from coast to coast. In addition to skits and farces, there are comic supplements, world series games, football contests and humorous magazines, all of which serve as safety valves for pent-up feelings.

Originality is another of the points favoring "stunt" production. Their conception and planning affords more mental development than resorting to commonplace and well-worn methods of entertainment. Of course there is a danger that we may become too blasé if we cannot always find something new, but it seems to be a thoroughly proven trait of human nature that there are times when we enjoy the absence of the sensational as well as its presence.—Ohio State Lantern.

PERSONALS

Alpha Xi Delta will entertain the Lincoln Alumni at a dinner, Wednesday evening, at the chapter house.

Glendon Baum, ex-'21, of Red Oak, Iowa, has been a guest for the past few days, at the Phi Kappa Psi house.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT PLANS THRIFT WEEK

Keen interest on the part of the public in the projected plans for a National Thrift Week beginning January 17, 1920, has been evidenced in many ways already, the Savings Division of the Treasury Department announced today. The purpose of the week will be the endeavor to start the country off in the New Year with a sound financial program for every individual and household. Two ends are sought. First, that the condition of the individual be improved, and second, that the financial and industrial strength of the nation be increased by the great sums of capital which will accrue through the practice of steady saving and safe investment on the part of citizens.

The program for National Thrift Week, as at present tentatively planned, is as follows:

National Thrift Day, Saturday, January 17, 1920.—To enlist the Nation in a campaign to "Save first and spend afterwards." In other words, to stick resolutely to the program of making the present insure the future by the regular saving and investment of some part of every pay envelope to finance future opportunities or needs; to invest savings safely, preferably in loss-proof government securities; to curb the profiteer by demanding a dollars' worth of goods for every dollar spent.

Thrift Sunday, January 18.—Sermons in all American pulpits on the relation of economic life to religious well-being, and the need of sharing with others.

National Life Insurance Day, Monday, January 19.—To emphasize the importance of protecting one's family with life insurance.

Own-Your-Own-Home Day, Tuesday, January 20.—To show why desirable and how possible to own a home.

Make-a-Will Day, Wednesday, January 21.—To urge men to make wills, and in so doing impress upon them the necessity of making provision for the future.

Thrift-in-Industry Day, Thursday, January 22.—To emphasize the need for factory thrift, and the economic value of co-operation between capital and labor.

Family Budget Day, January 23.—To show the importance of using the budget plan in family finance.

Pay-your-Bills Day, Saturday, January 24.—To emphasize the moral obligation to pay debts.

In Geology Class—Prof. Smith: "Traction causes rivers to bow out."

Ray Dickson to Ruth Oberlies: "Is your beau out?"
R. O.: "No, I don't, but my father does."

preserved fruits, watermelon seeds, hly seeds, shredded bean sprouts, mushrooms, asparagus, ten year old eggs (pickled a dark brown), baby shrimps, fried oysters, nou-nou-s, meat ball patties; one long fried fish, rice, tea and apples. There are lots of other things to tell—the fancy decorated arches put up for the Chinese Fourth of July, that is their Independence day which comes on October 10, the queer wedding processions, which are even queerer with their hired mourners dressed in green and the beggars who begin training as soon as they are big enough to walk around, but the only way to really get any idea of how immensely entertaining it is to come over and spend your vacation in China instead of going to the seashore.

"I wish you could hear the various noises that we hear when we stay in our secluded little courtyard. This afternoon one of the girls is using the typewriter, so the modern click-click quarrels with the talkative crows who carry on constant conversation in the big trees that shade our Chinese tile roof. But the sounds you get to love are the street cries of the peddlers. They don't shout as we do at home. It is always a sort of song like "la-sol-me" then there is the constant rumble of wooden carts, the musical clang of a fancy coach and tonight the sound of "taps" far off in the Legation quarter will close the day."

Interested in clothes, the tricks and turns of fashion which make them individual—and yes, just a wee bit Scotch when it comes to buyinf them.

That's one of the reasons why she pounced with such delight upon Rudge & Guenzel Co.'s

SALE OF SUITS AND DRESSES

"Imagine getting a $55 trico-tine and tricolette dress for a third less!"

The gossip saw it yesterday on a rack full of other equally good-looking frocks at the same reductions. It was navy blue and had the best looking embroidery on it in black and gold, at the places where the materials were combined. And then there were Georgette dresses—taffeta frocks—good-looking black ones, and well—just about any kind of a silk dress you could use—all at one-third less. But better still was another group of dresses at

HALF PRICE

Tricolette, Georgette, satin, crepe de chine—most any kind of silk and in just about every fashionable color. Really, girls, they're worth looking over—all sizes, too.

AND THE SUITS

Sixty-two of them—all late winter styles—at

HALF PRICE

Suits of peachbloom, velour, thimelton, silvertone, velour, checks, trico-tine and heather mixtures. Some fur-trimmed, and others with collars to permit the wearing of one's own furs.

Plenty of them are in the popular browns and tans, but "The Gossip" thinks she'll get a navy blue trico-tine suit from the collection so she can wear it pretty well into the spring.
