OUCH!
 Soph—"I was over to see her last night when some one threw a brick through the window and hit the poor girl in the side!"
 Frosh—"Did it hurt her?"
 Soph—"No; but it broke three of my fingers."
 —Burr.

WATCH THE RUSH
 I like to sit in chapel
 And watch the girls arrive.
 Then things begin to happen,
 The place becomes alive.
 It need not be compulsory.
 The men would fight to go,
 If they put all the beauties
 On the stage—in the front row.

BUBBLES

Remember the saying, "I care not who makes the laws of the nation, as I can write the songs." A more modern version might be "I care not who makes the laws of the University, if I can write the letters in "Student Opinion."

Do you realize what a powerful foreign influence there is present in the university? All the fraternities have Greek names.

Places of Interest

The library is a place designed primarily for study, but used mostly for flirting. It is the ideal place for such a pastime. On every table, there is a miniature wall, over which the students of either sex may cast a roving eye in an effort to locate someone, who seems to favor the loving eye. There is generally no difficulty in locating such a person and once located, study fades into oblivion, and a testing of the eyes then takes place for some time. The interior of the library is not the only interesting feature of it for due consideration must be given to the steps. These steps command the best view of the campus and many are the crowds that gather there to scan the scenery and the buildings. (We call special attention to the division of buildings from the scenery.) A fact not generally known is that there is an abundance of books on the shelves of the library, which really make good reading. But then, who goes to the library for reading? Nevertheless, they serve as an effective camouflage for the real purpose of a co-ed school.

All books on electricity are considered current fiction.

We suggest as a pipe course, the course of plumbing to be given shortly in the engineering college.

SUES FOR INSURANCE OF UNIVERSITY MAN WHO DIED IN FRANCE

Relatives of Paul Hagelin, former university student who died of wounds received in action in France, are suing a Life insurance company for the insurance carried by him previous to his entry into the service.

Paul Hagelin was a member of the graduating class of 1917 and was prominent in university activities. Y. M. C. A. work and university dramatics. A local paper says of the case:

Carrie Hagelin, who is suing the Commonwealth Life Insurance company for the payment of a $2,000 policy carried by Paul Hagelin, who was killed in France a year ago, has filed a reply in district court. She claims that her son did not violate the provisions of the insurance policy relative to engaging in military service. The payment of his premiums was accepted by the company until the time of his death, she alleges, although the defendant knew that he had been drafted into military service. The provisions fixing a higher rate for army and navy men was assumed by the company after the war broke out. This higher rate would have meant an excess payment of $36 for Hagelin, but she charges that the company was already indebted to him in the sum of $75 because of coupons attached to the policy. This extra payment, she states, if not demanded, she states, and if it had been, could have been deducted from the $75.
