BUBBLES

Some of the situations arising out of the coal shortage remind one of the Civil war. For example, the present temperature maintained in the class-room might lead one to believe that these are the days of '61.

"Strike while the iron is hot" is a very good adage, but it does not necessarily follow that the miners should strike while the furnace is cold.

The plea to wear warm clothing during these heatless days does not cause those who are still wearing their summer suits to show any great amount of enthusiasm.

Alpha Omicron Pi held a house-warming Sunday morning.

In some of the classes, so many of the students wear overcoats that one might be lead to believe that it is a re-union of the members of Pear's expedition to the North Pole.
