The Theatres

"The Virtuous Vamp"—First National Exhibitors

Constance appears in Lincoln the last half of this week in "The Virtuous Vamp," the "sweetest vamp story ever told." Have you ever been vamped? If you have, you know how it feels; if you haven't, you will have to learn. Constance Talmadge almost teaches you in her latest production for First National. "A Virtuous Vamp" have been pronounced by critics to be the best production Miss Talmadge has made since her memorable interpretation of the Mountain Girl in "Tolerance." "A Virtuous Vamp" was adapted from Clyde Fitch's famous play, "The Bachelor." It weaves the story cleverly around Nellie Jones, who smilingly vamps her way thru life, breaking hearts as tho they are kidney beans, until she vamps her own heart away.

"A Day's Pleasure"—First National Exhibitors

Charles Chaplin appears this week in "A Day's Pleasure." This is the latest comedy which Mr. Chaplin has made for the First National, and with his companionable "flivver" Charlie causes explosions of gas and explosions of laughter as the two reels unwind. Charlie and his wife and two children start out in their Ford to spend the day. They take a delightfully suggestive boat ride and a dip in the ocean before their return home late in the evening in their trusty Ford again. The piquant humor of this star can only be appreciated to its fullest extent by close observation, as his newest comedies are departing entirely from his "slap-stick" stuff of old.

"Scarlet Days"—D. W. Griffith Paramount

A lengthy synopsis of the gripping theme of this latest Griffith play has been given in the Nebraskan. The acting now only needs to be commended. There seems to be no person who can press the heart-strings of his actors, as can Mr. Griffith. He makes them weep, laugh, and render any emotion at will. Richard Barthelmess takes the part of the young Spaniard and gives remarkable characterization almost equally that of the Chink in "Broken Blossoms." Mr. Barthelmess' real name is Hutchinson and his father lives in Lincoln. George Fawcett, Ralph Graves, and Clarine Seymour did excellent work in the supporting cast. The new and whimsical star resembling Constance Talmadge, who takes the part of Lady Fair is a pleasing personality. Clarine Seymour's "Little Flameheart" is a remarkable picturization which will live in the annals of pictures.

"A Damsel in Distress"—Pathe

Creighton Hale and June Caprice, joint-stars who will be remembered for their clever act in "Oh! Boy" in pictures, are now appearing in "A Damsel in Distress." This is another comedy drama peculiarly suited to their needs for light comedy, mingled with mystery and strange situations. Pathe is a master of these. Creighton Hale will be remembered for his excellent work in "The Thirteenth Chair" and June Caprice for her Fox creations of 1916-18.

"The Beast"—Fox

George Walsh reappears on the silver sheet after a recent serious illness, in this drama of action and virile personality called "The Beast." The reformation of a typical western bad man is keenly portrayed by this exponent of agility, who seems to rival Douglas Fairbanks at times for popularity.

"Dance of Cleopatra"

The Orpheum bill for this week has two headliners that are worthy of more than mere mention. The dancer Princess Radjah dance the dance of Cleopatra, greatly excited the audience by featuring an enormous bull snake. An amusing sketch guarding the Golden Gate was portrayed by Harry Green & Company. It appeared that even in Heaven the "gift of Gab" is a valuable asset. Claudie Coleman is a most clever impersonator of women and presented all types of women ranging from a 10-cent-store-girl, to a club woman. Woode & Wyde gave a clever conversion over the telephone by the means of violins. The program was completed by Green & Myrna presenting a novelty dancing act.
