GET BEHIND THE TEAM

The Scarlet and Cream basketball aggregation this year is a strong one. Eight out of the nine games played so far this season have been victories. On the western trip the Cornhuskers are taking they have bowed to defeat only once. Nebraska not only has a team to be proud of, but a number of interesting games to look forward to. A stiff schedule has been arranged with clever teams. Our plucky basketball players deserve the support of all the students. With a splendid record so far behind them and several fine games to in the future, the Nebraska quintet should expect nothing less than united interest and support from the school. Very few tickets, comparatively, have been sold as yet. The student who enjoys a good basketball game, and the student who is willing to show appreciation of the fine work of his school team, no doubt wish to display their approval in a substantial manner. The sale of season tickets should receive an impetus.

THRIFT WEEK

"Thrift Week," which the government asks to have celebrated beginning January 17, should not be flippantly passed by as ordinary advertising propaganda.

The people of this country are living too fast. Great numbers have gone on a financial spree.

The editor of the Portland, Ore. Journal gave an illustration the other day. "With a big increase in the population of our city," he said, "we built 266 houses, while we bought 6,300 automobiles." People are putting money into temporary enjoyments, instead of into permanent resources.

Many working girls wear silk stockings to the shops where they do the roughest kind of work. Some families where conditions of poverty used to prevail, will buy several phonographs, so that several of the children can operate them at one time. People who but a few years ago were living in fear of the sheriff, now have fur coats costing $300.00 and upward.

This kind of joy riding can not last. People of any sense will lay an anchor to windward. A bank deposit not merely provides assurance against future emergency, but it brings in a permanent income every year.

Extravagance increases the cost of living. It gives producers the idea that the public will pay any old price, and thus encourages profiteering. It diverts producing facilities from necessities to luxuries. It creates scarcities of everything, which tends to high prices.

A great addition to the savings and capital of the nation, is necessary, if the United States is to take advantage of its opportunities. When you buy a thrift stamp, or put a dollar in the bank, you help place your own personal fortunes and the prosperity of the country on a more secure basis.

WORK

Work is an acquired habit. It isn't natural. When men say they enjoy work they mean to confess that they are creatures of habit, and having of necessity acquired the habit of working find a sort of pleasure in following a rut.

If we could, all of us would play through half a lifetime and sit around and grow fat in the other half.

A merciful God did much for man, but conferred no greater blessing than the hard necessity that makes man sweat. Work doeth good like a medicine. It opens the pores of the skin, develops muscle and keeps the stomach in working order. Moreover, it prolongs life by giving us less time to interfere in the affairs of our neighbors.

The best work is done by the man who must choose between doing good work and going hungry and the man who has everything except fame and values fame more than everything.

There is no record of a folly done by Adam after her learned to plow.—Saturday Evening Post.
