THE BOY SCOUT TRAINING SCHOOL

The training school for scout-masters which opens tonight on our campus, is an important step in the growth of community life. The purpose is—

- "To train men as scout masters.
- "To give leaders now enrolled a better knowledge of scouting.
- "To teach all this by the method of aqual process."

This service is similar to that of the men who served their country in the battle-ranks, except that it deals with reconstruction work. The scout leaders advise and direct the young boys who will soon be the world leaders—the men who must carry our plans for rebuilding social and economic foundations. The scout leader of today has the opportunity to mould these boys' minds and to make lasting impressions of right and sound judgment.

To bring to the reading public in the most striking manner possible the practical value of this movement to all people, and to show what a valuable asset to the United States it is by the democratic, patriotic spirit the boys have, we print an article from the Boys' Life on their aim.

"It is your duty as a true and loyal scout to be ever at the service of your country, always doing everything you possibly can, without being asked, to strengthen the hand of the government," says Lieut. Belvin W. Maynard in the January issue of Boys' Life. "You should not allow shallow-brained, weak-minded, thoughtless, unpatriotic people to say ugly things about our government and our country without expressing your contempt.

"Let us not be so unthoughtful ourselves as to say mean things about our country, but let us realize that our country is not some inconceivable idea, some visionary object, or some incomprehensible state of existence, but is a simple and plain reality, easy to conceive, made up of such homes as you represent, and to bring disgrace upon our country is to bring disgrace upon these homes so dear to all of us. No scout can be loyal to his family without being loyal to his country, and in turn, loyalty to country is loyalty to home."

SUSCRIBE

Nebraska spirit is not coming to the fore judging from the lack of interest which the students are showing in the subscription campaign. They evidently do not care whether or not the Nebraskan continues its daily publication. In spite of the fact that fifty girls have been canvassing the campus this week, there are only 280 names on the subscribers' list. Last semester that list contained 1200 names.

The Nebraskan cannot continue this semester unless conditions change almost immediately. We feel that since we are working to put out the best possible paper for your benefit, you—the study body, as the second party in our newspaper contract, should give us your financial support and moral encouragement. The cost of editing the Nebraskan is almost double that of previous years, but we have economized in every way possible and so raised the price only twenty-five cents.

This semester, in order to exist as the connecting link between campus life and the students and faculty, we must have your support. The campaign will be continued this week as an additional opportunity for the students to show their loyalty and Nebraska spirit. The sororities and fraternities are especially urged to come up to the 100% mark to encourage the university as a whole.

"DON'T BE A SPONGE" and get your daily news by reading over someone's shoulder.

BUBBLES

The second semester, which is an aftermath of the first semester, is the rest cure and tonic prescribed for the next eighteen weeks by the proper authorities for the overworked student, especially freshmen. We say rest cure and tonic advisedly, due to the fact that after spending a semester in school, the average freshman selects his course entirely different than he did during the first period, and due to the fact that it is now made up mostly of "pipe" courses, the student is permitted to rest and build up until next June. It is also noted for the fact that all dates during this semester are known as formal calls. Big Ben no longer causes any alarm to the students, due to a desire of the students not to repeat the eight o'clock which was so prevalent in the first schedule.

The Fog horn has sounded for the debaters.

It has been suggested that the university students who are going to build aeroplanes are musicians, due, perhaps, to their desire to conquer the air.

It has probably occurred to you that the picture "Wanted—a Husband", shown at a local theatre this week is a particular timely subject during this, the greatest of all years, leap year.
