UNIVERSITY WILL HAVE PRINT SHOP

Through Efforts of Nebraska Editors Complete Assembling Plant is to be Installed.

BUCK ANNOUNCES PLANS

A printing department for the University of Nebraska in connection with the School of Journalism is now an assured fact, according to an announcement made by O. O. Buck, of Harvard, Nebraska, secretary of the Nebraska Press Association and a member of the University committee on the course of journalism instruction.

Mr. Buck made the first announcement of the success of the Nebraska editors in their campaign to secure such a department, at the meeting of the Nebraska Press Association, held in Lincoln last week. Since that time, the complete details of the plan have been given out.

To Install Linotypes

Sanction of the Chancellor and the Board of Regents, permits Mr. Buck to say that before the close of the present year a battery of linotype machines will be installed at the University and a competent instructor will be secured for instructing students in the correct care and use of these machines. It is probable, according to Mr. Buck, that the instructor will be sent here from the Mergenthaler Linotype Company.

Although the complete installation of the printing department must await an appropriation from the legislature in 1921, it is thought that (Continued on page three)

GUY REED TO MANAGE WAR MEMORIAL DRIVE

Entire State Will be Asked to Contribute—Committee of 100 to Assist Chairman.

Guy E. Reed, of Lincoln, will manage the Nebraska War Memorial Campaign, according to an announcement made public by the Memorial Committee, which met in Chancellor Avery's office Tuesday. A general committee of one hundred will assist Mr. Reed in his work, and in addition aid will be given by an executive committee of five and a board of directors of twenty-five members. Mr. Reed declined to take the sole responsibility of the campaign, but consented to serve in connection with the committees.

Members of the memorial committee who attended the Tuesday meeting were R. A. Van Orsdel, C. T. Kountze, F. W. Judson, Regent E. P. Brown, Earl Campbell, Guy Reed, Prof. Alice Howell, H. E. Bradford, Chancellor Avery and Miss Ruth Sheldon.

The entire state will be asked to contribute to a memorial to honor the men and women who performed actual service in the World War. The memorial will serve a utilitarian purpose. The committee favors the erection of an athletic stadium at the University of Nebraska.

Mr. Reed stated that it would take six weeks to organize the campaign, two weeks for publicity and a week for the campaign proper that will probably come early in May. Publicity features were suggested and upon motion of Mr. Van Orsdel the plan outlined by Mr. Reed was approved as the working basis for the campaign. Prominent citizens like General Per-

GRACE COPPOCK ISSUES APPEAL TO UNIVERSITY WOMEN AT MASS MEETING

A stirring challenge was given to Nebraska women by Miss Grace Coppock at a mass meeting on Wednesday night, when she appealed to the university women of America to support the Y. W. C. A. work in China. It is upon them that the future of this work depends. Chinese women are looking to America for leadership in service; when Miss Coppock returns to China, her girls will ask her, "Are the American women interested? Do they care?" Do we care enough about the opportunities other people have won for us, to be willing to pass them on to those who do not have them?

"There are two main reasons why the association is called to do such a big work in China," she explained. "The first is the spirit of the association, which is the spirit of service and of democracy—the two things that are needful for the regeneration of China. The Y. W. C. A. does not desire to exalt itself, but only to help the Chinese woman to help her neighbor. The second reason is the fourfold program of the organization—fourfold to suit the varied needs of a great Chinese city.

"The first division of association work is the educational division. This includes classes in cooking, in household management, in English, in physical education. It reaches women of varied classes. The second branch, the extension Bible classes, is designed especially for the women of the official class, the great "ladies" who are not expected to leave their houses. The association reaches them in their homes, bringing the Christian message of character and service;

BOWLING ENTRIES

All entries for the Inter-Fraternity Bowling Tournament must be filed with Secretary Farley Young before Friday, March 5.

Members of Alpha Omicron Pi Give Third House-Warming

The members of Alpha Omicron Pi held the third house-warming of the school year yesterday when they almost lost their sorority house on North Sixteenth street. Is it because the girls are fond of conflagrations that they have had two new receptions for the Lincoln Fire Department within two days? Or is it that they desire to break again into the feature-story column of the Daily Nebraskan? Some have suggested that the reason for the many fires is a desire to appeal to the heroism of neighboring fraternities.

The first fire was scheduled at a more opportune time than the later two, for it occurred about noon when most of the damsels were supposed to be prepared to meet such emergencies. But the second event was not quite so opportune for it came at the early hour of nine o'clock on Tuesday morning when many of those fortunate ones who disdain the eight o'clock classes were tucked snugly in their beds. The roof which had been covered with tar paper after the second fire was in prime condition for the defective flue to heap its sparks, and as this was the place the fire was first discovered, it is quite evident that the cause was not that some careless

1920 Cornhusker Will Revive Memories of Golden School Days

Again to the hearts of the student, faculty and alumni of Nebraska University is recalled the memories of by-gone, but not forgotten events of college life. Dear to the hearts of the former Nebraska men and women are the pictures and stories which remind them of the most joyous days of their lives.

Professor Alexander is making the feature section for the Cornhusker. This section describes the University from the beginning to the present time and discusses the plans for the future of the school. The history of the past, present, and future of the university will be illustrated with special art work by Dwight Kirsch, of New York.

Many of the traditions will be more vividly presented this year than ever before. It has been the custom during previous years to represent these events with mere stories, but this year a new plan is being carried out. During the affairs carrying out the traditions of the school, pictures were taken which will more vividly bring forth the spirit of the occasions than even a writer could do.

The annual class scrap which has come to be known as the "Olympics" was snapped "in action." The Shirt Tale Parade and the long hours of competitive drill will also be well illustrated by snaps. Many more interesting traditional and school events will be found in the 1920 annual.

NORTHERN MAT MEN TO MEET HUSKERS

Minnesota Wrestlers Will Combat Nebraskans for Benefit of High School Visitors.

The University of Minnesota is sending her strong squad of mat artists to Lincoln to perform against the Huskers for the benefit of the fifteen hundred visiting high school basketball players. This will be the first collegiate dual meet for the Husker wrestlers and the Gopher team is a very tough proposition for the initial meet. The clash is scheduled to take place at the city auditorium, at four o'clock Saturday afternoon, immediately after the Colorado College-Nebraska basketball game, which is set for two-thirty. One admission will entitle spectators to see all the events of the afternoon. That the Gopher school is presenting a strong mat team, there is little doubt. The Minnesotans have already participated in one dual meet. Ames was the opponent of the Gopher squad on this occasion. The meet went to the Iowa grapplers, but every match

It Looked Like a "Tank" But Was Only a Tractor

A war-time "tank," manned by gallant men in overalls, scurrying back and forth over the "no-man's land" north of the Social Science building was the curious spectacle presented to the passersby Monday. On closer observation the tank resolved itself into a caterpillar tractor, and the gallant men in blue were found to be non-commissioned officers of the military department. If the observer had carried his investigation farther he would have found that there was method in the seeming madness and playful antics of the "tank." The puffing engine was being driven over a small quadrangular area of clinders with the evident attempt to make a smooth, solid surface. And now, upon seeing the array of cannon and other warlike material standing nearby, the amateur Sherlock Holmes would have concluded that this was the long expected Field Artillery Gun Park in the process of completion.

Subsequent events have proved the correctness of the deductions, for Tuesday saw the sweating cadets of the battalion faithfully wheeling their guns into position here and there on the park to the accompaniment of such orders as "prepare to mount," "mount" and "attention."

The military department states that the small shed adjacent the park will suffice to house the guns until more suitable accommodations can be secured at some distant date. The field artillery unit will drill on this park daily, Major Morrison announces.

NEWS OF THE DAY

Solled Down for Busy Readers

Washington, March 3.—A captured soviet courier was searched and it was discovered that he carried diamonds worth $3,000,000 and propaganda to spread bolshevism in the United States. He was on his way to New York from Riga, Russia.

STATE TOURNEY IN FULL SWING

World's Largest Basketball Meet Opened With Boom Today in Armory.

LINCOLN HAS 1,500 VISITORS

At eight o'clock this morning the Tenth Annual Basketball Tourney started off with a boom. Starting whistles on four different floors sent the teams of the various classes into action. Before the day is over five floors will be in use. One hundred and eighty-three teams are on hand, competing for honors in their respective classes. The 1920 tournament is bigger and better than ever and may well be called the world's greatest basketball classic. Under the able management of Coach Schissler and the "N" Club it is bound to be as great a success this year as before and such a success will assure the staging of the annual basket-festival in Lincoln under the auspices of the University in the years to come.

Over fifteen hundred high school students from all over the great state of Nebraska are the guests of Lincoln and the University today. Every effort is being made by the citizens of Lincoln and the University officials and students to greet these visitors with a rousing welcome and make their visit to the capital city one that they will not soon forget. Extensive plans for the entertainment of the young basketeers have been made, under the direction of Alfred Reese and Joe Reavis, who constitute the entertainment committee of the "N" (Continued on page three)

HUNDREDS OF ROADMEN ENROLL IN INSTITUTE

Rainy Weather Prevents Survey of Lancaster Construction Work, But Guests Inspect Capitol.

Weather conditions Wednesday afternoon made necessary the postponement of the Road Institute's inspection of construction work in progress on Lancaster county roads and the completed permanent highways. It did not, however, prevent the inspection of the Department of Public Works at the Capitol building and the visit to the county engineer's office at the Court House.

The morning session was devoted to a discussion of road materials. Louis J. Hoinig, sales manager of the Nebraska Cement company, explained the company's plan of operation and policies. "Nebraska's Road Material Resources," was the subject of the address of Dr. George E. Condra, director of the state department of conservation and soil survey. Dr. Condra gave the roadmen an estimate of the road material resources at hand in different parts of the state. George Wolz, president of the Nebraska Good Roads Association, told of the organization of the Association and the work that is being done towards the betterment of roads.

Road organization meetings were held during the evening session.

A photograph of the Road Institute will be taken Thursday morning. The picture was to have been taken Wednesday morning but was postponed on account of the bad weather.

Several hundred delegates have attended the convention thus far and it is expected that the number will reach five hundred before the close of the meetings Friday night.
