UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA HAS INCOMPARABLE COACHING STAFF

The Great Luehring—Schulte—Schissler Combination Presents Optimistic Outlook for 1921.

Cornhusker athletics will be in very efficient hands next year. An excellent coaching staff, together with a well-managed athletic department will contribute greatly in placing the fair name of Nebraska on the highest pinnacle of fame. Great prospects are in view for the Cornhusker school and from all appearances the road to success contains no unforeseen stumbling blocks.

Fred W. Luehring comes next September to assume control of the combined departments of athletics and physical education. This makes Mr. Luehring virtually the director of athletics. During his coaching there, between 1903 and 1907, he turned out three championship football teams and two championship basketball teams, in addition to building up first class track teams. He developed inter-scholastic meets at Ripon until they were second only to the great meets at the University of Chicago. The new gymnasium and quarter-mile running track at Ripon are results of his supervision.

Luehring went to Princeton in 1911, where he has been director of the department of hygiene and physical education, as well as supervisor of intramural athletics and head basketball coach. During the war Mr. Luehring was in charge of physical training and musketry and rifle practice at the Princeton University military training camp.

In football and track work, Henry F. Schulte will again hold the reins next year. The genial mentor has proven a favorite with all during his first year at Nebraska and the Cornhusker school is indeed fortunate to secure his services for future years. Schulte is more than making good at Nebraska and is rapidly attaining the reputation of the most popular coach ever connected with the University of Nebraska.

Schulte's football dates back to the early days of the twentieth century when he was playing at the University of Michigan under the direction of "Hurry Up" Yost. He was a source of terror to all opposing line-men and made an enviable gridiron reputation. As soon as he graduated from Michigan, Schulte entered the coaching game. For two years he tutored the athletic teams at Michigan State Normal and met with great success. Later he was connected with Southeastern Missouri College and then went back to Michigan as assistant to Yost.

In 1912 Schulte joined the coaching staff of the University of Missouri and was connected with the Tiger institution for seven years. His greatest success at Missouri was attained in track work. Practically every season that Schulte coached the Tiger cinder artists, Missouri has reigned supreme in the Missouri Valley. He developed the famous hurdler, Bob Simpson. In gridiron work he made great achievements at Missouri and his last year's work at Nebraska is sufficient proof of his ability at coaching the gridiron game. With Schulte again in the saddle, successful football and track teams are assured.

Paul J. Schissler, who has developed the wonderful 1920 Husker basketball aggregation, will coach the basketball sport again next year and again demonstrate his ability at turning out winning teams. A wealth of material will greet him next year and he is sure to produce another winner.

The name of Schissler is well known in Nebraska athletics. "Schiss," although a native of Oregon, received his education in Cornhusker schools

Fred W. Luehring

Here he developed winning football and basketball teams and proved himself a high class athletic mentor. In 1915 he coached the gridiron team at Doane College and his team won second place in the state college conference. He coached at St. Viator College, Kankakee, Illinois, in 1918 and the St. Viator team annexed the championship of Illinois.

In 1918 Schissler joined the Nebraska staff and helped W. G. Kline mould the Nebraska S. A. T. C. football team, and last year assisted Schulte grind out a winning gridiron machine. He has had full charge of the basketball team and the results of the season are ample proof of his ability. Nebraska has defeated every team on her schedule and attained a high rank in western basketball.

Baseball will be under the direction of Schissler this year. After a rest of a few years, the Cornhusker school is again taking up the diamond game and work will start as soon as the basketball season officially ends. Schissler played several years of professional baseball with the Hastings team in the state league and is a competent baseball coach.

A budget of $3,510 for 1920 is being raised by the Prohibition League of Chinese Students in America for work here and in China. This league is investigating the alcohol situation in China, preliminary to an educational campaign there. The results of prohibition are being published in China. The program includes oratorical contests among Chinese students here, essay contests in the schools of China, movies, and literature. The plans are being made in close cooperation with the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association, which will back the work in China.

letics, and a more competent man for the position would be hard to find. Mr. Luehring has had plenty of experience in this line to assure his competence in handling the situation at Nebraska.

The new director was head coach and athletic director at Ripon College Ripon, Wisconsin, for four years.

PAUL J. SCHISSLER

He attended Hastings High School where he played football, basketball and baseball for four years. He also attended Hastings College, U. S. Navy Academy, and the University of Nebraska. While in college, he was always prominent in athletic circles.

Schissler made his debut into the coaching game, when he took charge of athletics at Hastings High School.
