THE HONOR SYSTEM.

In reading the exchange dailies from other colleges all over the United States, it has been interesting to note that the two universal subjects of discussion, both in the news and editorial sections have been the necessary increase in professors' salaries and the honor system. These two questions form a great part of the news in all the college papers now, and never does a new lot of papers come to the office without several interesting articles on both subjects. We are glad to have Nebraska in the ring now, and we will try to give you some of the viewpoints of other students during the introduction of the movement here.

WHERE IS THE KOSMET PLAY?

For two years, because of war conditions and lack of material, the Kosmet Klub has not produced its annual play and judging from present indications, there will be none this year. What is the reason for this fact? Has Nebraska talent been lost in the shuffle of lessons and activities, did the Klub fail to give sufficient time notice of their contest for manuscript, or do mercenary reasons enter in? The Kosmet Klub offers every year a hundred dollar prize to the person writing the best play for their annual musical comedy. Surely for this amount, some talented person ought to be inspired to try for the prize. In addition, a certain honor goes with the award.

The Klub has produced six delightful musical comedies: '12—The Diplomat; '13—The Match Makers; '14—El Presidente; '15—The Easy Mark; '16—Knight of the Nymphs; '17—The Diplomat, revised and with a new musical score. It is too late to try to put on a production this year, but it is hoped that people interested in such work will begin thinking of a plot immediately. Let's not let this go by next year. If you feel that you have any talent, in either play writing or the musical line, talk to the Kosmet committee now and start working on something this spring for next year.

THE CAMPUS BEAUTIFUL.

Another sign of spring—the gardeners are making preparations to fill the tulip beds and put up wire guards and fences around these campus beauty spots. Soon the University grounds will blossom out in plots of brilliant red and yellow tulips and as soon as their season is over, other plants will be brought from the greenhouses. These flower-beds are a joy to those interested in making the campus itself worthy of Nebraska's name, and now it is for the students to do their part. Often, thoughtlessly, they pick the flowers or in their haste to a class, cut across the beds and trample them down. Let us try to keep them as lovely as possible. This is our campus and what we do here reflects back on us.

PENNSYLVANIA vs. THE PROCTOR.

That the honor system is a sure destroyer of hap-hazard proctoring has been instanced at the University of Pennsylvania within the last two months. Like Dartmouth, Pennsylvania found herself in a quandary. She was a house divided against itself, for in the three schools which make up the university three systems existed.

In the College proper the elimination of cheating was left to the individual judgment of each instructor. Some chose to act as proctors and others placed their confidence in the inherent honor of the examined. In the Engineering College, the plan was enforced by the strength of public opinion. However, the Wharton School maintained the only efficient and effective system. Its honor code was definitely drawn up and placed before men taking an examination. This code had three steps in its enforcement, (1) the signing of a pledge on every examination paper, (2) reporting all offenders by the undergraduates to the student committee and (3) trial by this body with failure given as a punishment for the first offence, and expulsion for the second.

Only partial success was experienced in the Engineering School where no written code existed. Wharton School accomplished two-fold results: it eliminated cheating, and it presented such a contrast to the irregular proctoring of the College that an insurmountable wave of protest against proctoring gathered. This wave culminated in an agitation for one universal honor system for the three schools. In a student mass meeting an overwhelming vote was registered for a code similar to that of Wharton School. Members of a student committee were appointed and are now writing the articles of a constitution to be submitted to a university referendum.—The Dartmouth.

REDS TRIUMPH IN MONTE CARLO BASKET TOURNEY

The finals of the Monte Carlo Tournament between the Reds and Yellows were played Tuesday the Reds winning by a close margin. At the end of the first half, the score stood 2-2, but in the second half the Reds succeeded in winning the game by hard work. The final score was 12-9. The teams were very evenly matched and showed exceptionally good teamwork. The game was marked by extremely close guarding.

This was the last lap in the preliminary contests and paves the way for the inter-class tournament to be held next week.

ENGINEERINGS NOTES

Professor Mickey made a visit to Norfolk the early part of the week to assist the engineering council there with the paving program which is to be carried out this year. He will spend the summer vacation in paving work there.

The five members of the Inspection Trip Committee will accompany the students on the trip. The Committee is composed of Professors Edison, chairman; Gehrig, Haney, Smith, and Duff. This is a departure from the custom of the preceding years, when one faculty member was in charge of the trip.

T. L. Frank, electrical engineering 1915, has registered in the Graduate College to work for an electrical engineering degree. He has been employed with the Nebraska Telephone Company and has made a special study of telephone equipment. His thesis will be on this subject.
