FRESHMEN TO DANCE IN ARMORY TONIGHT

Only Five Hundred Tickets Validated for Annual Yearling Mixer.

At eight o'clock this evening, Friday, April 23, the Armory will be the scene of the Freshmen Mixer, predicted by the committee in charge, to be the dandiest party of the year. The stage is set and ready to go, from the expert hat and coat artists in the free checkroom, to the musicians who will hold forth until the last possible minute.

No expense is being spared to make the affair a pleasant one. Refreshments to satisfy even the most ravenous Freshmen (who are admitted to be the heaviest eaters in the University) are planned. Stunts, cabaret attractions, and get-together games, will be pulled off.

Tickets may be obtained from members of the Freshmen Mixer committee or members of the Green Goblins. Tickets not sold will be available at the door of the Armory before the party, for thirty-five cents.

LOST—Hexagonal shaped platinum wrist watch on grey silk ribbon. Liberal reward. Call B6450.

BUBBLES

The headline yesterday reading "Huskers ready for Penn meet" caused quite a discussion. One student remarked that he heard there were ten handwriting experts who were going to compete. Another student said that he understood that all those who had served previous terms were invited to participate.

The University Museum is tickled by the collection of rare feathers which they have received from the Audubon Society.

It is not hard to understand why the girls are taking to baseball. They want more diamond practice.

The next "blues" song will undoubtedly be "The Overall Blues."

Or as a bolshevik would say when opening his mail, "Another red letter day in my life."

When you meet an engineer who is polite, you can immediately tell what kind he is. He is a civil engineer.
