IT'S UP TO YOU

Have you been thinking about the great Memorial Campaign to be initiated here soon while you have been away from your books for the week-end, or have you spent all of your time in frivolous pastime, with not a serious thought to devote to such things? This is a really big purpose, and YOU as a representative of 5,000 Cornhuskers are not going to be found lacking when the collection plate is passed. You are going to give and give with a smile! That is Nebraska spirit.

The committee will not see each one of you personally and say your quota is a certain amount. You must think it over yourself and fairly decide just what deposit you can make toward the erection of the most beautiful monument to athletics, culture and Nebraska bravery, ever to be erected. The time is ripe now for serious thought in the matter. YOUR QUOTA IS UP TO YOU. DECIDE NOW!

IVY DAY WILL BE GALA EVENT

May Queen to Reign Morning of May 19—Dancing in Afternoon and Evening.

PLACE: ANTELOPE PARK

The Ivy Day committee announces that plans for the annual event are nearly completed. Preparations on an elaborate scale are being carried out and Ivy Day, scheduled for May 19, promises to be one of the most pretentious affairs in the history of the University.

Seniors are prophesying on the weather on May 19 and the majority of the class have concluded that Jupiter Pluvius will not hinder festivities on that date. The program will start about ten o'clock in the morning on the city campus where the May Queen and her royal court will reign supreme. The May pole dance, given by eighteen pretty Seniors, will be a feature of the morning's program. Aesthetic dancing, reading of the Senior poem, the Ivy Day oration, the planting of the ivy which General Pershing will send, and the crowning of the May Queen are on the early day schedule.

Starting at 1:30 o'clock the University of California and the Cornhuskers will mix in a ball game at M street park. Immediately after the game the afternoon program will start at Antelope park. Dancing at the municipal auditorium will be in full swing during the afternoon and evening. The tapping of the Innocents and Black Masques will be held about four o'clock according to the committee. The Ivy Day edition of the Daily Nebraskan, announcing the new Innocents and Black Masques will be distributed following the tapping.

Picnic lunches will be sold at the park for fifty cents. A number of concessions retailing ice cream, pop, peanuts, crackerjack, etc., will be established over the grounds. Tickets for lunches will be placed on sale Thursday and Friday.

E. L. Nier, graduate of the Case School of Applied Science and now acting managing engineer for a large Chicago firm, was a visitor at the Phi Kappa Psi house last week.

Chancellor Avery Makes Tour Through the Clouds Saturday

"It was a wonderful sensation," exclaimed Chancellor Avery to about seventy University professors who swarmed around him after he had stepped from the Lincoln Tour-about aeroplane Saturday noon at the State Fair grounds. "And do you know," the Chancellor continued, "that I didn't feel any more nervous than when I ran my first automobile."

Seventy University professors were the guests of the Standard Aircraft corporation and the Hebb Motors Company Saturday. Under the direction of Dr. G. R. Condra the faculty members were transported in automobiles from the Chemistry Building at eleven o'clock to the State Fair grounds where an inspection trip was made through the aeroplane assembling plant of the Standard Aircraft corporation. Many of the professors did not know that such a factory was in existence and were surprised to see scores of skilled workmen assembling the huge air-birds.

The Card Lottery

Immediately after the visit through the plant E. C. Hammond, vice-president of the Aircraft corporation, announced that one member of the faculty group who drew the lucky card would be entitled to a trip in the clouds. It was rumored that the Chancellor had decided to remain out of the contest on account of a bad cold he had contracted the night before. Mr. Avery boldly asserted that he would make a trial flight in order to see if the machine was safe for the fortunate professor. Prof. A. A. Reed drew the card from the hat

ENGINEERS STAGE NOVEL OPEN NIGHT

Wireless Telephone and Electrical Coffee Pot Attract Comment.

WOODWORK ON EXHIBITION

The Engineering College was host to a large crowd at its annual open night held last Friday. The work of every department of the college was on display. Besides the regular work done in the laboratories there were novel stunts to attract attention.

The machines in the power laboratories of the Mechanical Engineering Building with their noise and rapid motion were a center of interest during the evening. Across the hall, the machine tool laboratory, where production on a factory basis is being carried on, was in operation. On the second floor Freshmen in the woodwork laboratories showed their skill in turning out cabinets and turned wood products.

The Electrical Engineering exhibit furnished both serious and novel effects to the spectators. A coffee pot suspended by wires in the air.

HUSKERS WIN IN 16-12 SLUG-FEST

Nebraska Nine Too Much for Coyotes from South Dakota.

Three Slab Artists Given Initial Tryouts—Loose Ball Played.

The Nebraska sluggers were too much for the Coyotes from South Dakota, Friday afternoon and took their measure by a score of 16 to 12. Both teams played loose ball and numerous errors were made on both sides.

In the second inning the Coyotes' balloon went up and the Huskers made a merry-go-round of the bags and scored seven tallies. Russell opened the slug-fest with a single. Bailey sacrificed, Smith made first on an error and Kline walked. Linn came to bat with the bases full and slammed out a single which scored all three men.

Bekins connected for another single and Pickett got on by a fumble. McCroy drove the pill into left field for a single scoring Linn. Hubka came up with three men on and smashed out a two-bagger bringing in three more runs.

The Coyotes desperately tried to come back in their half of the second inning, Smith and Cook both hitting the pill for two baggers. Duncan sent a long drive into center scoring both men. The other two runs slipped in through weak points in the Husker defense.

Hengele entered the box for the Vermillionites in the third inning and held the score down until the fifth inning when the Huskers launched another scoring drive and brought in five more tallies. Ely took the mound for the Nebraskans in the third inning

"HOME-EGS" WILL TOAST MARSHMALLOWS THURSDAY

All Girls in Department to be Guests at Picnic in Peck's Grove.

The annual Home Economics picnic will be held Thursday, May 13, at Peck's Grove, for all the girls in that department. The Seniors are invited as guests of honor. Tickets are on sale for the other girls.

Tickets may be obtained at the Home Economics office at the Farm. The Senior Home Economics girls will not need to buy tickets, but they are urged to let the committee know whether they are coming. It is asked that every Senior who expects to attend give her name to some member of the committee not later than Wednesday. This will give the committee an idea of the number to prepare for.

The three lower classes are represented on the committee. The Junior members are Hattie Hepperly, chairman, and Elsie Baumgartner; the Sophomore, Mary Herzog, Mildred Krause and Katherine Heckart; the Freshman, Margaretha Wilson, Clara Lowenstein and Ardis Taylor.

The picnickers are to meet in the Home Economics Building at five-thirty Thursday afternoon. From there they will walk a short distance to Peck's Grove. No winners are to be roasted; the committee announces that the picnic will be a thoroughly civilized affair. There will be a camp fire, however, and plenty to eat. In fact, "eats" will be the principal feature of the picnic; the girls who have been devoting their time to a scientific study of foods and cooking would not be guilty of neglecting that essential part of a good time. One part of the menu has been announced; marshmallows are to be toasted. Since the picnic will be an entirely manless affair and jack knives are not usually found in girl's pockets, it will be appreciated if some of the girls borrow or beg knives to take with them to
