THE AFTERMATH.

The elections are over and the period of reconstruction will now set in. That reconstruction should be for the benefit of the University. Factions, which at election time are bound to be set up, should be done away with and the joint efforts of every one should be devoted to the building up of a greater University spirit. The football team, the coming basketball team, the spring track men should be aided by the amalgamation of factions and the joint efforts of the students to push the athletic teams and other University activities to the fore. The University faction takes the same place in politics at the University as the political party takes in national affairs. The old ingrown idea of fighting a man because he is a member of another faction or party is going out of date in national affairs and the up-to-date, deep-thinking, honest student will do well to aid in breaking up once for all the factional spirit that is a detriment to a school when it splits the students and lessens their power as an organized body to help the school. Those who have lost will do well to forget and those who have won will be an aid to the University if they make their new positions an asset rather than a liability to the school.

OUR LIBRARY.

At the beginning of each year University officials find that a large majority of students have failed to interpret what purpose the library at the University serves.

The library is a place to study. It has no other purpose to serve. It is not a place to hold social gatherings nor is it a trysting spot for those whose thoughts turn to romance.

The books on the reference shelves are for reference inside the library only. They are not to be slipped out. The evil of taking these books without authority is two-fold, first because the act is a breach of honor, and secondly, it injures the student whose work has to suffer because of his inability to get hold of the needed books. Everybody should pull together to make the library exclusively a place to study.

BASIS FOR EFFECTIVE WORK.

The function of the University is to train the students for all kinds of living. The physical well-being of each and every student cannot wisely be neglected because it constitutes the basis for effective work in the class rooms.

Today a new emphasis is being laid upon physical education—the building of the body into a high powered engine. It is an accepted law of nature that it takes a sound mind in a sound body to develop the highest degree of efficiency in your every-day life.

Gymnasium and military drill are required of the lower classes and so at Nebraska the matter of physical education is most vital to the upperclassmen. Students during their high school days as a rule took an active part in one or more of the major games, but at the University instead of a large number continuing their practices they become torpid and shun exercise like a plague.

The old proverb, "It is not work, but worry, that kills men" is applicable to University students. Whole hearted play is the best antidote for worry. An hour or two of exercise in the gym, hiking or on the tennis court drives out all depressing thoughts and puts new vitality into your being. Healthful students thoroughly enjoy their work and are gaining the greatest maximum of benefit from their efforts.

Vigorous exercise pays large dividends by producing vigorous bodies. Every student can well afford to spend regularly an hour or two each day to bodily exercise. Pep and enthusiasm is always evident in a student with a strong physique. Time saved from play is doubly wasted, so that the most profitable use of one or two hours each day is to spend them in some form of enjoyable exercise.

DEVELOPMENT OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

The banquet planned by the Committee of Two Hundred to be held next Tuesday evening at the Scottish Rite Temple, will be a unique and influential University rally of a thousand students. The announced objective will be to interest students in opportunities of religious education offered in Lincoln and on the University campus. But the influence of such a gathering of faculty and students will go far beyond this announced purpose. Any movement in the University which helps students to meet their own personal and social problems and to produce concrete thinking about ideal things is bound to strengthen the aim of education in the development of strong character and useful citizens. The speakers on the toast list include an influential alumnus, a leading faculty man and John Timothy Stone of Chicago. Dr. Stone is known throughout the college world as a man of unusual capacity in giving to students an inspiring message full of human interest.

Colleges Unable To Take Care Of Great Attendance

Prosperity of Country Reflected in This Year's School Population.

WASHINGTON.—Reports from throughout the United States are to the effect public schools, colleges and universities, have found it impossible to care for the great number of students who clamor for admission to these institutions. Washington officialdom, discussing this situation, sees a healthy sign in this intense desire on the part of the young people of the United States to get an education.

This condition has existed, according to school and college heads, since the war. It has resulted in attention being centered as never before upon the need for improved school facilities, adequate compensation for instructors, and the making of such provision for the future as will enable all who desire to improve their minds to be given that opportunity, and under the most favorable auspices possible.

Among those seeking admission to American institutions of learning is found an increasing number of students from foreign countries. The Orient, even, is furnishing its quota. As an example, her royal highness, the Princess Tarhata, niece of the Sultan of Sulu, visited Washington recently on her way to attend an interior college in Illinois. In response to a question, the Princess said she selected the college to which she was going out of a desire to acquire as much as possible of American training and ideas. Princess Tarhata announced she desired to be known in this country as Miss Kiram.

Hoax—"Did your garden win any prizes last summer?"
Coax—"Indirectly, yes. My neighbor's chickens took first prize at the poultry show."

Watch for big announcement for Rosewilde on October 29.

i Say:

Hats seem to be about as much in vogue on the Campus as the good old Three-buckle overshoes. Our Mamma used to force us to drag around and Although we think the Fashion is becoming to Those various and divers Good-looking dames who Have adopted it we cannot Help being very sorry for Poor unfortunate kids who Are afflicted with freckles And dare not brave the elements Without safeguarding their Tender skins with hats.
—Matilda Jane.

SPECIAL STUDY ROOM FOR MODERN LANGUAGES

A special study room has been opened this week for modern languages and English. This is room 306 in University Hall, formerly occupied by the Legislative Reference Bureau. Modern language lexicons will be available here for student use. Encyclopedias and dictionaries are also provided and very shortly many books used for reference in English will be placed in this room. The classical library has been moved from U 214 and placed in an alcove here, also.

The general reading room in the main library has for years been entirely inadequate and the new study room will partly relieve this condition and will also give the students better facilities for study and reading.

Mrs. Pickup, formerly connected with the Department of English, will be in charge of the room which will be open from 9 to 12 and from 1 to 5 daily except Saturday. Hours on that day will be from 9 to 12.

College World

Bethany College.

Fraternities and sororities have breathed their last at Bethany College. The faculty of the institution a short time ago recommended to the Board of Directors that definite action be taken in the matter. The board immediately called a meeting and ruled that fraternities and sororities among the students and teachers of Bethany should be prohibited.

Freshmen Men Do Not Suffer Alone at Ohio.

Mysterious proceedings began at Oxley Hall early Tuesday, when at 3 o'clock a. m. the Freshmen girls were suddenly roused from their slumber by the Sophomores.

They were ordered to dress and were led blindfolded by their superiors outside the building to the rear lawn. Here they were fed clammy, slippery spaghetti, dried bread and raw meat. The blindfolded girls were conducted across the campus into the woods. The Sophomores handed out flashlights and disappeared, leaving the innocents in the woods.—Ohio State Lantern.

Mike the Mining Engineer.

Says that if there were more institutions like the Missouri School of Mines, and fewer dress suit colleges, like some he'd hate to mention, there wouldn't be much probability of a coal shortage this winter.—Missouri Miner.

—Feel my Scotch cropping out today, and little wonder why when I took a stroll through the second floor—such bargains. They're having a sale all this week and really, I can just see myself all done up in a new outfit and still be tea-ing regularly till next allowance time!

—You should see the good looking hats! I'm always looking at ones I can't possibly afford, but then I figure it strengthens one's character to be able to resist—sort of a "Lead me into temptation but deliver me from Evil" policy. This time tho, I didn't have to be heroic, because every single hat priced at $25 or more was reduced 20 per cent. Think of it.

It sounds about as plausible as a political speech to promise you perfectly wonderful black silk hose for $2.49, but come and see for yourself. It's just because they have some tiny imperfections that don't make a speck of difference in looks or wear. Some are silk clear to the top and have Pointex heels; others have lisle tops. I compared the ones I got the other day with a $5 hose from regular stock, and if anything, mine were heavier. How's that for a bargain?

Who needs another frock? I found a lot of the newest ones marked at 20 per cent off. There are some good looking ones of tricotine for campus wear—neat, not gaudy you know. Then there's one of cinnamon brown Duvetyn that would sure catch Ed's eye! It's all fussed up with a braided lattice work effect and looks altogether like that oft-quoted million dollars. There are lots of silk frocks, too—the sort you'll need for informal travel among the socially elite. Some are sweet, simple and girlish; others a little more subtle in style. Which is your type?

—Here's one more j. b. and that's about shoes. Did you ever stop to think how important your shoes are? How many girls you see whose whole appearance is gummed by an ungainly walk. It's a result of their shoes often times, too. Of course one doesn't need to wear old mother comforts in order to step around gracefully, but you do need to wear a good fitting shoe like a Cousin's or a Dorothy Dodd. If you want low shoes, by the way, they're yours this week at 25 per cent less.
—So saying, she quietly slipped out of the column until Friday.
