BEAT NOTRE DAME.

"Beat Notre Dame." With that spirit the largest football rally in Nebraska's history will be held in Memorial Hall this evening at 7:30. Every loyal Cornhusker in the University is going to be there with his lungs working overtime for old U-n-i. Make standing room in the Armory a premium and demonstrate to the public that the old buildings are no longer large enough to house Nebraska's students.

The parade through the business district of a thousand flaming torches will immediately follow the rally in the Armory. The innocents are expending every effort to secure otrches for all the students. Wake Lincoln up tonight. Show Coach Rockne and his Irish warriors that "Nebraska fights," that every Husker is back of the team and that there is no thought of defeat in the mind of the student body.

"We're going to win," is the spirit of the team and they are going to meet Notre Dame with a vengeance and determination to outfight them. The team is going to fight Saturday as it never fought before. The boys are desperately intent on winning the game and they are going to give the "Irish" their best.

Nebraskans—give the team your best. Talk victory. Put a new punch into the rally tonight.

In Tuesday's paper appeared an editorial called "Green Goblins," which commented upon a plea made by the retiring president of that organization for a non-factional administration of the society. The Goblins affirmed his stand in yesterday's Nebraskan. The man referred to in the article has been subjected to adverse criticism and ridicule by a number of students in the University the past two days. It was inferred by them that this editorial was only a self-written advertisement. It is clear that some readers of this paper are not aware of the fact that the column devoted to editorials is a place where the opinions of the editor of the Daily Nebraskan are stated.

The editor of the paper has a definite editorial policy that he is following with an ideal of a better University of Nebraska and all editorials are written by him unless otherwise noted. Suggestions or criticism are welcomed by the responsible person and will be published if their authors so desire.

ON THE GRIDIRON.

1. Rise and sing when the band plays the Cornhusker.
2. Rise when the Cornhuskers or our opponents come on the field. Make a noise.
3. Applaud good plays whether made by Cornhuskers or opponents.
4. Always cheer the injured player.
5. Never criticize an official audibly.
6. Don't alibi. Congratulate the victory.
7. Watch the cheer leaders. Organized rooting is what puts spirit into the team.
8. Be loyal in defeat as well as in victory.
9. Remain standing until the team has left the field.

UNDERSTAND NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

A majority of the men and women students at Nebraska University are eligible to vote in the coming national election and yet it is safe to say that a large portion of these students are totally ignorant on practically all the points that have to do with the election.

It is the duty of every man and woman of voting age to cast his or her ballot on election day and make the most of the birthright granted by the constitution of this nation. Especially this year every citizen should seize the opportunity to cast his vote and thus have a voice in running the government of our great republic.

If you have not registered, do so at once. Don't take chances on being declared ineligible on election day. Articles are appearing daily on the various parties, in order to keep the public informed as to the principles and theories advanced by the different candidates. It is practically a crime for any man or woman to go to the polls and vote without knowing the candidates standards and policies. Don't vote, if you don't know something about the men on the tickets. This is not necessary however, as you can read the unbiased information on both parties in such magazines as the Literary Digest, Independent, etc.

There is no reason why every voting student cannot go to the polls on election day with an understanding of the national problems he thinks, through investigation, best fitted for the office.

—Pink burlap ruffles and all the other fascinating bits of feminine adornment pale into insignificance when I think of that Notre Dame game, so I'm going to make this chat just about 15 inches of silent prayer for the success of the Husker warriors tomorrow!
