I Say:

We award the sandpaper Bathing suit to the prof. Who waits until you are Due at your next class Before he begins to think About the assignment and Who shouts parting warnings And instructions to you as You sift out the door And beat it for the next Torture chamber without Even having time to Go after the "Rag."
 —Matilda Jane.

Theatre Reviews

Orpheum.
 The principal attractions at the Orpheum this week are the Singer's Midgets, a company of well-formed little people who do, and do quite well, really difficult feats. The company consists of thirty men and women, three elephants and other animals, and carries with it three car-loads of scenery. The costumes are unusually gorgeous and with the beautiful settings, present a very artistic background. The part is divided into several parts with solo work, chorus numbers, and other features. The voices in the choruses are not especially good but are probably as good as the voices of any midgets.
 Lincoln High and North Platte High are booked to meet on Nebraska Field in a good game. The two schools met last year and Lincoln emerged with the long end of the score.

In a nearby city after a recent accident where the superintendent of schools was fatally injured as a result of being run over by a street car, the daily paper came out with the following headline: "Wife and Child Come Before Operation on Head of the City Schools."
 From this headline in the Nebraska yesterday it is evident that the students in Company D at the State Farm should begin the study of art: "Farm Company Draws First Rifles Issued."
 Somebody suggested yesterday that it was singular that the head of the Dramatic Department should be named Howell. But we never heard Miss Howell, did you?
 The Green Goblins should hold their second meeting Halloween night, said a well-meaning Freshman yesterday.
 Why not have a new post-graduate organization at Nebraska called the Yellow Ghosts?
 "Can you turn an ice cream cone into a movie actress," asked Mary Miles Minter at 2 o'clock last week.
 "No," was the reply.
 "Well, I can," said Mary, as she swallowed the cream and cone whole.
 "Watch for Rosewilde announcement in Monday's Rag."
 Cotner University and Hastings College meet this afternoon on Bethany Field. Cotner was defeated last week and Hastings held Grand Island to a tie score.

House of Youth
The Engrossing Study of Personal Charm
 One subject you should not neglect when making up your fall study program—the art of personal charm. Beauty is a science and fashion is an art—quite as important in a girl's career as music, literature, painting or philosophy.
 You are determined, of course, that you will acquire that personality and presence worthy of the splendid education you are receiving. The greatest step in the right direction is the power of graceful, fascinating, attractive clothes.
 Every girl should study the art and laws of fashion as she masters "House of Youth" Suits and Coats the principles of poetry, painting or drama. For their influence is inestimable, and they are part of that higher education which fits her for life.
 As you go out into the world the finest tribute you can pay to the training you have received will be your own charming, engaging personality, expressed in lovely, tasteful, artistic attire—the true garb of youth, are masterpieces of youthful beauty and charm—elegant, refined, of a rare individuality—known throughout the nation as the characteristic fashion creation of youth—EXCLUSIVE BUT NOT EXPENSIVE.
