SERENADING—A THING OF THE PAST.

With the annual homecoming came the resurrection of the time honored college pastimes, among which serenading ranks the foremost. A year ago University officials placed a ban on such amusements, declaring them obsolete and unfitting to the dignity of the University students.

An instance of the violation of the rules was recently brought to our attention following the Notre Dame game. At this time the city was filled with great numbers of old grads who felt that they were called upon to revive their old friendships with the customs of older days. It is quite plain to all broad-minded readers, that serenading outside the proper hours is looked upon with disgust and scorn by the general public. And since this edict has gone out the student body has foregone any such displays of vocal talent.

It will be well to keep in mind that any breach of this understanding instituted by the misinformed alumni, will not constitute permission to engage in further revival of this frivolous diversion.

BACK NEBRASKA.

Nebraska locks horns Saturday with the so far undefeated South Dakota football aggregation. The sting of Notre Dame's victory is keenly felt by the team. Coach Schulte has been driving his pigskin warriors at top speed this week behind closed gates in anticipation of meeting a formidable foe.

Saturday's game unquestionably represents the crucial point in Nebraska's schedule. The team realizes the importance of this game. Every student should also realize this fact and be in his place in the rooting stands Saturday. The South Dakota game is not a practice game. The Cornhusker eleven needs your support. Be in the bleachers and BACK NEBRASKA to push South Dakota down in their first defeat.

"TWEEDS" AND "KELLYS" AGAIN.

As the result of the Freshmen victory in the Olympics, the verdent class of 1924 feels that it should celebrate the restoration of the "Tweeds" and "Kellys" by consigning the green top pieces to flames in a huge bonfire demonstration.

Every upperclassman looks back upon his Freshmen days can well appreciate the joy and satisfaction that these men rightfully feel by virtue of their supremacy in combat.

These men have stood the test and have come through with colors flying. We congratulate them. Yet we wish to remind them that victory is not always so easily achieved. That to consistently realize their ambitions and hopes, they must work as they have never worked before. They have had their first taste of victory and it is our wish that as they mount the steps of their college career they may many times feel the joys of achievement which come only as the result of earnest endeavor.

GRASP YOUR OPPORTUNITIES.

A number of ex-service men have been awarded vocational training by the government. Many of these men are past the average college age and feel that in spite of the opportunity they should take the monetary consideration in place of the schooling. One man, who received word that he might take the educational training which the government offers, said "I am past thirty years of age and I feel that I should take the money in place of the schooling." same. These men should look into the educational opportunity before they throw it aside for the small monetary advantage that the other would give them. "One who is making any progress in school, is interested in education or has gone through four years of college would not advise this man to turn down his chance of securing an education. There are numbers of men who are "past thirty" and whose ambition to get a college education is far from quelled. They have the spirit of youth still within and hope of making a success after they have completed their education. White haired veterans of the books are seen daily on the campus and they should receive due credit for the ambitions which, in spite of their years, they have retained. Not long ago a woman entered an eastern college at the age of sixty years and, while she was a Freshman in the college, had ambitions of a greater future. Her comment upon her entry was that "you are never too old to learn." The idea that education stops at the age of twenty-two is erroneous. To the sorrow of many it has been found out that one may still learn a few things after becoming of age and it is the regret of numbers that they did not take advantage of their opportunities. Opportunity knocks but once and if it is turned away it can never be found again. Therefore the man who turns down a chance to acquire a college education while he is still young and, for that matter, even though he be up in years, is making a mistake that can never be corrected.

The Menorah Society held its second regular meeting on Sunday evening, October 17, at Faculty Hall. It was strictly a business meeting.

The most important business discussed was that of raising money for the help of the starving students of Europe, especially those of Vienna. A committee was appointed since the need is very urgent.

The program for the coming year was fully worked out. Fifteen new members were admitted. The next meeting will be held Sunday evening, November 7 at 8 o'clock at Faculty Hall.

The condition of Assistant Coach Paul Schissler, who has been suffering from a serious infection which followed blood poisoning, is much improved, according to word received from the hospital Thursday. Coach Schissler has the task of training Nebraska's Freshmen grid artists.

Prof. William DeBaufre, head of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, has received word that his paper on "Calibration of Nozzles for the Measurement of Air Flowing Into a Vacuum," will be presented at the annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers which is to be held in December in New York City.

Annual Stock Show Comes in November

The annual Baby International Stock Show will be held November 5 at the Stock Judging Pavilion. This event is under the supervision and management of the Block and Bridle Club. It is patterned after the "International" of Chicago. Fat cattle are exhibited and judged by the students. Prizes are awarded to the winners.

C. J. Hauser, former law student of the University of Nebraska, will speak Friday morning on "The Manufacture of Beet Sugar" in room 101, Social Science building. Mr. Hauser has made a careful study of the subject and is said to be a competent speaker. Many students from the College of Business Administration and other colleges are expected to be present for the talk.

BLOCK AND BRIDLE CLUB TO GIVE DANCE

Proceeds to Send Stock Judging Team to Chicago to International Show.

The Block and Bridle Club will give a dance November 6 at the University Armory. The proceeds will go to defray the expenses of the stock judging team when it goes to Chicago, November 5, to enter the judging contest of the International Stock Show. Heretofore, members of the stock judging teams have paid their own expenses. This is the first instance when an effort has been made to help the team in this respect. The stock judging team won third place at the National Swine Show at Des Moines this fall. Professor Gramlich has been coaching a number of men who are candidates for the team that will go to Chicago. Present indications are that Nebraska will be represented by a strong team. A team will be sent to the Western Stock Show at Denver this winter also, and if the proceeds of this dance are large enough, they will be used to defray the expenses of the team on this trip.

Support on the part of all University students is urged. The honors that the team win is to the credit of the entire institution and not only to the team. All members of the Block and Bridle Club are selling tickets. They are $1.25 each.

I Say:

Hurray! We have found An affinity, a soul-mate So to speak who dotes as Do we on sticky free verse And who actually knows By some super-natural Power that for the last Three months we have had A crush on that cynical Creation that is sweeping The country like a half-grown Prairie fire, "This side Of Paradise."

A want ad in a country newspaper said: "Wanted—a Cornhusker." Somebody suggested that the farmer try the University of Nebraska.

Co-ed: "Did you know that the seat of the University of South Dakota is a Red town?"

Poor down-trodden male: "No, why?"

Co-ed again: "Because it's Vermillion."

More courting than ever before will be noticed at the University after the beginning of tennis as a sport.

The Lincoln High School Advocate, announced in a headline: "Class Memorial in Place." A little Freshman asked yesterday of we didn't think that "class" was a queer adjective to use to describe a memorial! Some day Freshmen will be Sophomores.

Although we thought Robinson Crusoe's right-hand man had died long ago, the Nebraskan of Thursday informs us that he had joined the University Commercial Club. The "head" read: "Commercial Club Initiates Friday."

The photographs of the Notre Dame games will certainly be "moving" pictures on their journey to New York City by airplane.

The Columbia Spectator of a recent date published under the caption "Doings of Others" an item from the Daily Nebraskan which explains that the astronomy observatory will be opened to the public and that special lectures will be given on the planets, skiets, etc. The item is headed "Astronomy at Nebraska."

We hope the Spectator doesn't consider us stargazers here in the Cornhusker state!

Engineers Talk Prices

The Lincoln Engineer Club held their regular meeting Monday evening at 7:30 at the Commercial Club. Prof. R. D. Kilbron was the only speaker of the evening. He gave a very interesting discussion on "Prices". After Professor Kilbron's talk the meeting adjourned. An informal discussion followed, on the fall of prices, their further decline and the high cost of living. Many different and interesting ideals were expressed.
