DON' HOLD UP THE "RAG" LINE.

Holding up the "Rag" line has become a habit with a few students. Each morning when the "Rag" is being distributed they deliberately walk up to the postoffice window, regardless of the group of students who have formed an orderly line, and secure their "Rag." Saving time? Yes, for themselves. But what about the fifty or hundred students waiting in line? Surely the line hold-ups have not seriously thought of the breach of courtesy they are committing. To realize this they need only stand in line and watch a classmate march gallantly off with a "Rag" without waiting his turn.

Imagine the congestion in Station A if all the students insisted upon the privilege of walking in ahead of everybody else to get his "Rag." For the benefit of those who have apparently assumed that they are in the Privileged Character class it might be suggested that personal impressions are sometimes lasting.

HIGH PRICES.

High prices which prevail in Lincoln will force a number of students to drop out of school at the end of the semester. The cost of all commodities are on a war basis. Very few of the necessities of life have dropped appreciably. On the other hand, the students have felt keenly the drop in farm and other products. A large number of students at the University come from the farm. Nebraska is an agricultural state and it is only to be expected that the enrollment at the state University would be one highly representative of Nebraska farms. Nebraska has only two cities with a population of over 50,000. The remaining cities and towns are dependent directly on the farms for their trade. Students who come from out in the state, whether from town or farm, are dependent directly on farm products for their university education. Merchants who are holding their prices at the pinnacle, who refuse to drop their charges to a safe and sane basis, are forcing a great many students to drop out of school. This will not only hurt the student and the University but will react on the merchants as well. Amusements, entertainment and luxuries of all kinds have raised to an impossible price and it will be necessary for these to drop to a more reasonable scale before students can make use of them to the extent they have in the past.

MAY PLAY HARVARD.

There remains a possibility that Nebraska will meet the Harvard eleven next fall. Such a game would mean that the team would possibly invade the aristocratic east again. Nebraska was a missionary for western football to the east this fall and her showing at the Polo Grounds was excellent. The Penn State game was one of the hardest fought grid battles of the season and the breaks went wrong. Nebraska has a wealth of material for next season and with Captain Swanson to lead there is little doubt but that the Huskers will show one of the swiftest teams in the history of the University. In the fall of 1921. Only two players are forced to drop from the team next fall, Captain Day and Ernest Hubka. Both men have served the Cornhusker team their full term and have done it well. The twenty remaining letter men have the experience and the ability to put Nebraska to the front in the east as well as in the west. A splendid group of Freshmen athletes have been discovered on the gridiron. In fact there is an abundance of material with which Nebraska can develop a team next fall that will throw former Nebraska teams in the shade. With this material fully developed and the organization working well the Nebraska team would make a big hit in the east. Intersectional football is becoming more and more popular each year. The eastern trip of the Huskers, the Washington State College game and a number of others that have been made this year have met with favor from all angles. It is not only possible that there will be a larger number of intersectional football games next fall but it is very probable. And Nebraska, playing Harvard, would put the west in favor with the east more than any other combination that could be arranged. Nebraska will have one of the strongest teams west of the Mississippi. Harvard is rated as one of the top notchers in the east. A game between these two universities would be an ideal one and would set a precedent for more intersectional games in years to come.

CLASS MIXERS.

Class mixers are held in order that the students of the class may become better acquainted with one another. It is a sad thing for a class when the spirit of that class wanes to the extent that but a few of the students of that class will attend the mixer and get acquainted with their fellow classmen. Of late the mixers have had but a small proportion of the enrollment represented at their class affairs. The gymnasium is not large enough to hold all the students in the University at one time but it has had ample space for all the students who have so far attended the class mixers. These get-togethers are the forerunners of the class reunion. In the future the students who have been passing up their opportunities to get acquainted with the other students will regret deeply that they have failed to make more friends in the University. When the class reunions are held they will know but a few of the many faces that they see on the campus.

THEY NEED AN OFFICE.

The Cornhusker staff is "raring" to go. The sales campaign is over and everything in readiness for publishing the greatest annual in the history of the University. Everything is set but they have no office in which to do their work. Efforts have been made to secure an office but as yet there is none in sight. The usual lack of space is again in evidence and it may be necessary for the Cornhusker staff to postpone its work until space is secured. The other publications have been forced to use one room for the two during the past few years but it is impossible to crowd the Cornhusker staff into the same office with them. The Cornhusker deserves space as much as a number of the organizations which are now on the campus and it is up to some one to see that room is made for the annual. Nothing can be done until room is prepared and the Cornhusker takes a lot of time and effort in its evolution. The sooner an office is prepared for the staff the quicker they will be able to get to work on the annual and the quicker the staff gets to work the better the annual will be. Some one holds the strings to the supply of office space and surely there is some space that can be used for the publication of this year's Cornhusker.

CITY SWIMMING POOL COMPLETED

Lincoln's new municipal swimming pool, across from the high school has been finally completed and may be filled at any time. Since there will be no one waiting to take a cold plunge, these December days, the pool is to be used as a skating rink. It will be possible to construct a wooden framework in the deepest parts to eliminate all danger of drowning. This will provide a large unobstructed expanse of ice some 100 feet wide and 225 feet long.

The city plans to build a pavilion next spring, with dressing rooms and lockers, for the safe keeping of personal property, while the owners are enjoying "a dip in the briny deep." They also intend to install a purifying apparatus for the water, and to plant shrubbery and grass seed around both the pavilion and the pool. Consequently this will fit in with the rest of the park system. $20,000 has already been spent on the pool. This does not include the pavilion, the water purifying machinery, or the landscape work, in fact nothing but the pool itself. No estimates have been made on this additional work, but it is evident that the expense of the finished improvement will be large.

A high school boy was waiting at a small town station when some loungers thought they would "string" him a bit. After listening to their various wonderful stories about cows, pigs and horses he took a hand in the game.

"Last year," said he, "I went in for scientific chicken raising and a slick feed man sold me sawdust for bran. I fed this sawdust to one of our hens. Well, that hen hatched a brood of chicks but the trouble was that nine had wooden legs and the other two were woodpeckers."

Law Clubs Prepare Interesting Programs

The John Marshall and Roscoe Pound law clubs met in the Law College Thursday evening at 7:30. The clubs are now working on trial cases in contracts and torts in preparation for trials and debates that are scheduled for future dates. The following reports were issued by the two clubs:
John Marshall Club.
"The John Marshall Club held an interesting program Thursday evening. The principle attraction in the scheduled work was a spirited argument in which the state brought an action at bar against the defendant for felony. The attorneys for the state were Mr. Boyd and Mr. Adams. Mr. Kischel and Mr. Beck acted as attorneys in behalf of the defendant. The argument introduced was very ably executed. Mr. Weldo C. Jones was presiding judge over the action at bar. A decision was rendered in favor of the state. Dean Seavey, faculty advisor for the club, presented several valuable suggestions as to court procedure. In addition to the regular cases the program committee expects to furnish some special entertainment for the next meeting."

Roscoe Pound Club.
"The Roscoe Pound Club also met Thursday evening, November 2. Vice-President Samuelson presided. A case in contracts was tried. The plaintiff was represented by Sider, Ed. Gardner and Turner. J. J. Brown, G. Brown and Johnson argued in behalf of the defendant. The faculty advisor, G. N. Foster, was presiding judge. The verdict was rendered for the plaintiff. After trying the case, a general discussion was held upon the previous arguments. They also decided to secure a bulletin board which would be used by the club to post notices. A series of such trial cases will be held in order to give each member an active part in court procedure."

AH, ME!

Imagine the scene: A big comfortable chair, a beautiful girl snuggled down in it, her head leaned back so that she is looking up into the face of the man who is bending so attentively over her.
Now he reaches his arm around her. Her head is pressed against his heart. Speech at this time would be impossible. Listen. We hear her struggled whisper: "Oh, dear, you hurt." In a low earnest voice he says: "Well, I simply cannot help hurting you a little bit. You don't mind that, do you?"
Again we hear only silence. They seem perfectly contented.

It is not long, however, that they remain in this position. He does not seem content with what he can see of her face.

Her eyes are a violet gray. He bends farther over so that he can see into well—see into her mouth.

Because, of course, it is the dentist repairing her teeth.—E.

METHODIST MISSIONARY VISITS UNIVERSITY

Dr. Benson Baker, of Mwerut, India, Includes Nebraska in Tour of Middle Western Colleges

Dr. Benson Baker, of Mwerut, India is in Lincoln visiting the University in the interests of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Church. Dr. Baker is making a tour of the middle western colleges, speaking to the students and seeking volunteers for foreign service. He is in this country on a furlough and will return to India in the near future.

Dr. Baker spoke at Faculty Hall Sunday afternoon to the Student Volunteer Band and those others who were especially interested. He emphasized that it is not generally known that the mission boards are in need of such a variety of talent in the sionary boards want workers from all the different professions.

Is Holding Interviews

This is shown by the fact that Dr. Baker is interviewing during his stay in Lincoln Monday and Tuesday, students of dentistry, medicine, home economics, agriculture, teaching and engineering. His schedule of interviews for the two days is heavy. However, any student desiring an interview with Dr. Baker may arrange one by asking Harry Huntington in the Y. M. C. A. office in the Temple.

Dr. Baker is interviewing not only those who are about to leave college, but those who have any intention of studying for the foreign field.

Theatre Reviews

Always Audacious—Paramount
Wallace Reid, easily the matinee idol of motion pictures, is fortunate in having good scenarios provided for him. "Always Audacious," taken from the Saturday Evening Post story bearing the same name in French, is without doubt the best vehicle he has had in a long period, and can be ranked as one of the best pictures of the current year.

Matinee idol "stuff" is put far in the background in this picture. Wallace Reid plays a dual role—they all come to it sooner or later. But this does not detract from the picture, in spite of the fact that at times the audience gets the two characters as mixed up as they did themselves. Margaret Loomis plays opposite "Wally."

The story has to do with a wealthy clubman and a clever forger—both parts played by M. Reid. Because the forger looked so much like the clubman, he was taken for him many times at a fashionable San Francisco hotel. With this beginning, the crook decided that he would rather be the clubman than the forger. He ships Mr. Fashionable to South America as a consequence, and takes possession of the other's estate and business. It was not until the dog of the clubman recognized him that his associates would believe that he was "himself," after many tests had failed to prove his identity.
