PAY $1.25 TODAY.

"I can read my room-mate's." I heard this reply yesterday when a Daily Nebraskan solicitor asked a Sophomore to purchase the student publication for the second semester. This may be an easy solution to the problem of purchasing the "Rag", but what if your room-mate told the solicitor the same thing?

There have always been a few students who are known as "rag pickers." These students like to read the Nebraskan every day, but they hate to pay the solicitor for a subscription. They find it much easier when the issues are reposing invitingly in the Station A Postoffice.

Even if your room-mate is kind enough to let you read his "Rag" from day to day, perhaps there are times when you wish to read it at the same time as the subscriber, and yet he is too polite to tell you to return it.

Play a few notes in "rag-time" this week and subscribe for the official student organ this semester. You will receive approximately one hundred copies of the paper for $1.25. Your parents at home will appreciate it when you have finished reading it. They are vitally interested in the things that happen at Nebraska, because they have a representative here. If you wish the Circulation Manager to send the Nebraskan to your father or mother from day to day, he will receive mail subscriptions in the Daily Nebraskan office, U 206, daily.

When you see a "Rag" solicitor approaching, don't jump into ambush. You can afford to spend the price of one dance ticket for a semester full of student chats, conversations with the "Inquiring Reporter" and interpreting "Bubbles" which is an Awgwan all its own. Later in the semester the Daily Nebraskan has planned an innovation for the student body.

Why can't we apply this policy to our educational aspirations. Can't 1921 reward student fighters as well as those who are game to face the unsettled but promising financial conditions of the world? The past semester has seen scholarship in America's institutions for learning gradually creeping back to normal. Even the indifferent, though brilliant, student of several years ago is actually himself to his texts this year and is making those who have been playing stellar roles in the classroom for so long look to their laurels. Sane, conscientious study, and above all concentration and then application, will win success for students this year and make 1921 truly a successful year for fighters!

"Dirt is evil chiefly as evidence of sloth; but the fact remains that the classes that wash most are those that work least."—G. K. Chesterton.

1921 WILL REWARD FIGHTERS

The Chicago Tribune has invented a motto. Publicity as wide in scope as that newspaper can offer has been applied to this maximum for the year which reads: "1921 will reward fighters." The Tribune declares that the salesmen are the fighters of 1921. "They are the shock troops of reconstruction. Real salesmen who fight depression—build confidence—radiate enthusiasm—keep business going—are putting the United States over the top today!"

"The man who thinks that American business has quit is like Bill Hoenzollern back in 1917 when he figured that American soldiers would never cut much ice on the Western Front. But we are back to normalcy and the world is looking to the salesmen. He is no longer a non-essential. He is the electric current in the industrial machine. The salesmen of America are roaring into life like the engine of a powerful auto when the accelerator is stepped on."

One of the first indications that in 1921 will occur a general business and industrial revival came when the Pennsylvania Railroad announced the sale of a $60,000,000 bond issue to finance various improvements. This action upon the part of a reliable organization like the Pennsylvania reflects a tendency toward better conditions.

Our Inquiring Reporter

Five persons picked at random are asked a question each day.

To-day's Question—"What do you think of tobacco-chewing habit?"

Ike Smith, 1216 H St.

I'd hate to talk about my friends that way. I think bad enough of people who smoke to say nothing of chewing.

Clarence Howies, 611 No. 16th St.
All I can say is—they have poor taste.

Pauline Strrett, 1237 R St.

It makes me so mad when the frat freshman thinks it's cute, and they start talking about it. I just want to rave!

Ed Moser, 345 No. 14th St.

I think it's pretty punk stuff. My main reason is because I can't chew it—it makes me sick.

Daisy Graf, 312 No. 14th St.

After they are sixteen it's their own business.

"Extras"

Mary Brownell, 2434 Q.

It's a dirty habit; that's what I think.

Helen Howe, 405 No. 25th.

It's vile.

Dorothy Barkley, 1726 B.

It's disgusting; it's revolting.

James Paddock, 229 No. 17th St.
It all depends.

BUBBLES

By Ima Cuckoo.

He—"Don't you love to go skating?"
The other one—"Yes, but not with cheap-skates."

The girls in kindergarten class were making doll rugs, hammocks and curtains.

He to one of these girls—"Why don't you make a hammock?"
She—"Because I don't swing."

He—"Did your watch stop when you dropped it on the floor last night?"
Him—"Sure, did you think it would go through?"

—SUN DIAL.

To keep a friend, treat him kindly.
To kill him, treat him often.

He—"Her teeth are like the stars in heaven."
She—"Why?"
He—"They come out at night."

He—"My girl sent me a jar of pickles preserved in brandy when I had the mumps. I couldn't eat the pickles but I certainly appreciated the spirit in which they were sent."

He—"Did you hear about all the champagne that was sent from France for medicinal purposes?"
Him—"Doesn't that just make you sick?"

Tony: "I can't chew this steak, honestly."
Tonlette: "No wonder your teeth are false."—Topics of the Day.

JAPANESE TOWER
CHATEAU DE LOEKEN, BRUSSELS, BELGIUM
Equipped with Otis Elevators

THIS is part of the summer home of Leopold the Second, late King of the Belgians. It stands in the Royal Parc of the Chateau de Loeken, suburb of Brussels.

In the homes and palaces of kings; in the public buildings that peasants use; in the gigantic temples of commerce; in countries of eternal sunshine or those where nights are months long—everywhere the Otis organization stretches out its hand to provide vertical transportation.

A circle embracing Otis activities would circumscribe the earth, for world service is the aim of Otis.
