

ALUMNI NOTES

The January bulletin of the modern humanities research association, published at Cambridge, England, contains short notices of two studies by Prof. Louise Pound. They are her "The Ballad and the Dance," and "The English Ballads and the Church," which were printed recently in the publication of the modern language association of America.

"Great Britain in 1916 established such institutes of research in various industries. Members are allowed to have monopolistic control of discoveries for five years. Business men here are just beginning to realize that the scientists have a skill and training which business can utilize to its advantage and they are paying for it often two, three, five and ten times as much as the universities were paying for their services before the war.

"I don't know what you are in danger of here but we have been feeling the pressure from the industries stealing our men. Even our graduate students are getting higher salaries upon graduation than the colleges pay after five, ten and fifteen years experience and we are having trouble holding them as instructors."

Sarka B. Hrbkova, former professor of Slavonic languages, sends a copy of the clip sheet which the bureau of foreign languages information issues to 1,000 American daily papers. Miss Hrbkova is manager of the Czechoslovak section of this bureau of the Red Cross at New York City. She has contributed to this clip sheet and in two articles shows her loyalty to Nebraska university by mentioning Nebraska students in connection with her work.

Prince reported the following concerning alumni at Grand Island:

A. L. Joseph, '09, is the city attorney.

John Cleary, '02, is the mayor.

Edgar Brown, ex-'03, is president of the Brown Fruit company.

Ernest Kroger, '09, is president of the People's State bank.

HUSKERS WIN FROM SOONERS

NEW NEBRASKAN DELIVERY SERVICE

(Continued from Page 1.) will be much easier to publish a better paper, they announce. Even with the increased number the staff is planning to have better service as the congestion at the post office will be relieved. Any fraternity, sorority, rooming house or dormitory which reaches 100 percent subscriptions for its active members will receive the paper several hours earlier. The same service is maintained by the larger eastern college newspapers.

Green Goblins have charge of selling subscriptions in the fraternity houses and also are canvassing on the campus. They had reported several houses placed on the honor roll Tuesday. The members of Mystic Fish are taking subscriptions in the sorority and rooming houses. The honor roll of organizations which reach 100 percent this week will be published each morning and the morning deliveries will be started as soon as the campaign is over.

Reduce "Rag Pickers".

It is hoped that the number of "rag-pickers" will be reduced under the new system as the crowd at the post office will not be as large as formerly. This part of the new plan is carrying out the program offered as the Nebraskan platform for the second semester.

"We are working to make the Nebraskan a paper which all the students will enjoy, and a paper with real service," said the new business manager Tuesday. He believes that the full number of subscriptions should be reached with ease during the next few days.

Marjorie Reese, '22, Kappa Kappa Gamma, has re-entered the University this semester after spending several months in California.

Marian Tyler, '22, Gamma Phi Beta, has returned to school after a semester's absence.

Joe Woods, '23, Beta Theta Pi, has re-entered the College of Engineering this semester after spending several months in Montana.
