A Little Love Story.

A dreamer and a man, of action loved a woman. The dreamer said: "I shall write verses in her praise; they will touch her vanity and she will love me for them."

But the man of action said: "How old fashioned! I shall corner the stock market, and that will bring her."

So the dreamer wrote verses, and he induced a friend of his, who ran a ten-cent magazine to print them. And the man of action cornered something or other and became a billionaire.

In the meantime the girl married a man who inherited his money, and lived happy ever after.

But the dreamer was so proud of his verses that he didn't care; and the man of action was so busy that he didn't care.

The only one to suffer was the man she married.—Exchange.

TANGLED TONGUES.

Through the kindness of verbal correspondents we are able to present a few more humorous mistranslations, as follows:

Exempli gratia—Samples free.
Casus belli—A question of stomach.
Splendid mendax—Lying in state.
Paris omniapura—Boys will be boys.

Flagrante delicto — In fragrant delight.

Chacun a son gout—A man with a dog and a gun.

Another youth, painfully conscious of his vaccination, rendered the last phrase: I sing of arms and the virus.—Boston Transcript.

Stenographers Help to Cheat Job Printers

Have you ever wondered just how many stenographers they had to employ to take care of the immense amount of work this institution furnishes? We have. So we decided to find out just how they managed it and let you in on the secret.

The first bit of machinery which Miss Eunice Willis, head of the Stenographic Bureau, shows you as you enter her office on the second floor of Auditorium Hall, is the mimeograph. One girl types the copy on specially prepared paper. By use of this copy in the machine she is able to make 500 or more copies of the original in less time than you could make five by ordinary typing. (Nearly every department on the city campus brings in work, while only the Department of Home Economics brings in work from the Farm Campus.) The work consists mostly of class outline work for notebooks. Part of the examination lists are mimeographed also.

Next is the graphotype for making address plates for faculty mail notices, plates for addresses of alumni, to whom the Alumni Journal is mailed, wrappers for University Extension Journal, and also regular out-of-town subscribers to the Daily Nebraskan. Then there is the multigraph which is used for printing letter heads and many other printed card forms used in the various departments. Even a regular printer's paper cutter is used to get the various sizes needed.

Each department having work done at the bureau pays for the work from its departmental funds. Just think how much money the job printer is cheated out of by this valuable department of the University.

"HELP", CRIES SPORTING EDITOR ON MOOTED POINT

The Globe's sporting editor threw up his hands when he received in the mail today the following communication:

Dear Sir:—Will you kindly give me a decision on the following wager?

A buys from a nursery what is supposed to be a cherry tree and plants it in his garden. When it blossoms his neighbor, B, asks him how many cherries he expects to get, and they make the following bet:

"B is to pay A $1 for every cherry over a quart which the tree produces; A is to pay B $1 per cherry for all the cherries under one quart."

The tree proves to be a plum tree. B claims that he wins the bet because the tree produces less than a quart of "cherries." A thinks he wins the bet because the tree bears more than a quart of fruit.

I will be duly grateful if you will give a decision in this matter. Yours very truly,

Louis E. Chandler,
Palmer, Mass., Dec. 27, 1920.
