1. Clean politics in competitive campus affairs.
2. More paid readers on the campus.
3. A wider scope of news.
4. Realization of the new gymnasium and stadium.
5. Lower prices to University students.
6. Each student an "unofficial" staff member of the Daily Nebraskan.

OLD MAN FUN FEBRUARY 26.
 Old Man Fun makes his debut February 26, with a reception and party at the High School auditorium. He comes under the auspices of the students of the University of Nebraska, with the nom de plume of University Night. His chief aid is Shun, the child of Sigma Delta Chi, who makes you laugh at yourself.
 You "see yourself as others see you" University Night. On stage and in print you see what others have known about you all year. This is a cherished tradition. If you don't buy your tickets Tuesday, there won't be room enough in the High School for you, because the seating capacity is only 1,200.

IN MEMORY OF DEAN REESE.
 Today occurs the unveiling of a bronze tablet to the memory of a man who during his lifetime accomplished much for the Cornhusker State and whose work will always be printed on the pages of Nebraska's history. Those who have been associated with Dean Manoah Reese cannot forget him. The College of Law at this University has charge of the dedication of this tablet to his memory today.
 The lifelike bronze relief of the famous judge and instructor on the tablet has been so carefully chiseled by Mrs. E. T. Horman of Chicago, who also made the famous Bessey tablet that it almost speaks to the passing gazer as he passes by.
 Dean Reese was born in Illinois in 1839, came to Nebraska in 1871, and died in Lincoln in 1917. His home was in Wahoo until he was elected to the Supreme Bench in 1884. At the end of his term he moved to Lincoln where he began giving lectures in the College of Law at the University. Two years later he was made Dean of the Law School. During the ten years of his administration great steps were taken forward. He resumed his law practice in 1903.
 The program today begins at 2 o'clock with the formal dedication exercises and closes tonight with a dinner and program at the Chamber of Commerce. Dean Warren A. Seavey will act as toastmaster. Many outside alumni of the Law College from other states will be present.

EDITORIAL OF THE DAY

(Wisconsin Daily Cardinal.)
WHAT MAKES A UNIVERSITY STUDENT.
 The state of apathy in which University students have viewed national problems has long been in need of attention.

Ask the average student about the Congressional investigation of a naval holiday, the reasons for the refusal of the United States to recognize Soviet Russia, the motive behind the renewed open shop movement, the facts in the recent shipping board scandal, or any of a dozen "topics of the day" which the average newspaper reader knows in part at least, and the blank expression which comes in reply indicates that something essential is lacking.

There are those—fortunately they are few in number—who contend that students ought to cut themselves off from a knowledge of world affairs; that the time spent in getting acquainted with what is going on about us should be used in perfecting preparation.

We cannot reconcile ourselves to a belief that this is proper procedure. If followed to the letter, such a plan would make the graduate's entry into the world of practical affairs a relatively harder task. It would make it necessary for him to spend a period of uncertain length in picking up the threads of current happenings, when a keener interest in his undergraduate days would have kept him abreast of the times.

If students who refuse to acquaint themselves with only an average knowledge of world problems could realize the error in their ways, apathy would soon be replaced by a determined desire to go beyond the classroom assignment in educating oneself. Such latent cog in a student personnel often give rise to a valid indictment of a University education.

In our own case, the people of the state are justified in looking to their University for leadership. They give millions to support this great labyrinth of learning; they deny themselves well earned pleasure in order that we may become better fitted to foster the ideals on which the University was founded; and, witness many of us refuse to go without the pale of regularly assigned work in order to become better equipped to toe the mark.
 It makes little difference if a student comes to know "what's what and who's who" in the world through the medium of the press, pulpit, or classroom. The fact remains that he should know.

HELEN GEISLINGER WEDS FRANK WRIGHT

Helen Geislinger of Lincoln, was married to Frank Wright at Hastings, Saturday. Mrs. Wright is a junior in the University and a member of Chi Omega. Mr. Wright, whose parents also live in Lincoln, is a graduate of Lincoln High School and at present is engaged in business here.

COMMERCIAL CLUB OFFERS PRIZES FOR BEST SLOGAN

Only two more days remain before the slogan contest of the University of Nebraska Commercial Club will close. Two prizes of $5.00 each have been offered for the best slogan for the club and the best name for the publication which the club will publish every month. The contest is open to all students in the University. The first issue of the new publication will be out March 15th, another on May 15th; and beginning next September the paper will be published every month.

desired that the students included in the list of those whose cards have not been received, the Cornhusker office will be left open so that these students can leave their data on the editor's desk at any time during the day. The Cornhusker office is on the south half of the east end of the fourth floor of University Hall.

If there are no cards in the office, the juniors and seniors should leave the following date on a blank sheet of paper: Full name (first name first, etc.), college (in university), home address (town or city), organizations, other honors.

Call Freshman Editors.

The editor of the Cornhusker has sounded a call for a few of the freshmen members of the staff, who are good typists to report Tuesday afternoon to the Cornhusker office. Only those who had previously arranged to work on the book and can use a typewriter should report at this time.

The following are the junior and senior students who have failed to turn in honor cards:

Seniors—Alice Crawford, Alma Crawford, William Day, Ceell Day, Hellen Hutton, Joe Ihm, Marian Kief, Louise Knight, Bernice Miller, John Noel, Earl Leslie Nelson.
 Juniors—V. S. Acton, Cozette Alby, O. T. Babcock, Leonard Cowley, Edith Dexter, John Dodds, Mildred Doyle.
