LIVESTOCK FEEDERS TO KNOW TEST RESULTS

sions during the morning. The afternoon will be spent in inspecting the stock and to reports on the work of the agricultural experiment station in feeding cattle, hogs and sheep.

Two cattle feeding experiments will be complete by April 15, and the stock will be on exhibition and reports made of the tests. In one of the experiments, fifty head of steers are divided into five lots and the value of certain supplemental feeds tested. Lot 1 is being fed the standard Nebraska ration of corn and alfalfa. Lot 2 is supposed to show the value of adding silage to corn and alfalfa, while lot 3 receives alfalfa, molasses meal, in addition to corn, alfalfa and silage. Lot 4 is receiving corn, alfalfa, silage and oil meal. Lot 5 is fed no corn, but instead a ration of silage, four pounds of oil meal each daily, and alfalfa. These cattle were purchased for $8.75 a hundred and will have been fed 127 days at the time of the meeting.

The second experiment consists of three lots of ten head each of high grade Herefords purchased on the Braddock ranch at Chadron—one lot of 2-year-olds, one lot of yearlings and one lot of calves. All lots are being fed corn, oil meal, alfalfa andilage, the object being to ascertain the effect of age on the rate and economy of grain. The cattle in this experiment will have been fed 160 days April 15.

Reports will also be made at the meeting of experiments with 100 head of hogs and 180 head of sheep.
