IS SPORTSMANSHIP A LOST VIRTUE?

Recent happenings in classrooms at the University seem to indicate that sportsmanship is a lost virtue at Nebraska—that this word has been erased from the dictionary of what constitutes the qualifications of a good student. "Cribbing" on every hand—on every examination—is a guide-post which shows that the morale of Cornhusker students is low when it comes to playing "fair" in the tests of knowledge.

In the good old days down South a man's chivalry demanded that honor be upheld in examinations. Otherwise he was ostracized by his fellow students and was immediately given his "walking paper" by the Dean of his college. Unhappily, even this condition has passed in the South and "cribbing" there is as much in evidence as it is in the North—the East and the West. The schools of the entire country seem to be composed of students who have forgotten that the word "sportsmanship" is valuable in the making of character. They all "crib"—and do so without a twitch of the conscience, as if it were a mark of cleverness to be able to "get by" with it.

It is impossible and almost fruitless to try to legislate the morals of students—as it is to dictate what the people in every walk of life should do on Sunday. People like to be their own masters. The Honor System has proved inefficient and was rejected at Nebraska last year because students did not wish to be tried for their lack of sportsmanship before a tribunal of fellow students.

However, if such conditions could be remedied at Nebraska it would be a "feather in her hat." This plan although meager could probably be worked out.

Why would it not be possible for the members of every fraternity, sorority, literary society, and all other University organizations to pledge themselves to begin a war on "cribbing," to the extent that it would become an unpopular indoor sport at Nebraska? Why would it not be feasible to ask that each instructor make it a personal matter with each student and ask each class member to ride through their examinations on honor alone? If it is made an individual responsibility and duty to each one not to "cribb," this campus evil will be eradicated and the word "sportsmanship" will again return to our dictionary of personality.

FOLLOWERS ARE NEEDED, TOO.

Life is an endless procession of persons in every stage of the climb to success. Let us not try to alter this orderly sequence by trying to displace others from their position. Let us rather accept things as they come, make the best of life as we find it, and thus prepare ourselves for things to come.

We cannot all be great! Greatness is a matter of relativity. There must be followers as well as leaders. So why not be happy in the position we hold? Growth comes only with time—it is found by discharging faithfully our duties to the best of our ability from time to time and getting the fullness of life thereby. In this way, we may achieve progress and we are led on to greatness.

It should never be our hope to arrive at the top, to be leaders or great persons in leaps and bounds, and unless we are really deserving of this recognition. If our progress is slow but sure, by the time we have reached the pinnacle, those who have been there before have made room for us, we find, and the foundation upon which we were climbing is built securely. And when we do reach this pinnacle, we should remember that there are others who are still following the trail we have left behind. Now we must make room for them.

If the Senior Laws carry their "ebonies" to their masque dance, it will be quite a mystery to distinguish them from visitors present.

On a cloudy night last week a prominent University couple went to the Observatory to look at Jupiter. "Yumpin' Yupiter," they're in the last stages.

The Medics are a "fast" bunch judging from the results of the inter-Greek competition announced Wednesday.

IN SUPPORT OF NEBRASKA "GRADS."

This week until Friday Nebraska is lending support to two of her graduates who are doing a splendid work among foreign peoples. Grace Coppock, '05, is now the Y. W. C. A. national executive of China, and her work among the women of that country has been monumental. Especially valuable has been her work since the recent famine. Steele Holcombe, '17, is working among the students of Egypt and is helping them to get a truer conception of Christianity.

In order that these workers can "carry on," they must have money for their maintenance.

The University started supporting Miss Coppock in 1914, when $350 was raised. This year the goal in each campaign is set at $1,700. These campaigns need your support. If their goals are reached the name of Nebraska University will continue to shine even across the seas.

TRACK TICKETS.

The season track ticket sale will take on a new angle this morning with the challenge of the Track Stars to the girls of the University. The invitation is a unique one. The hosts make one stipulation. Each man asks of his guest only that she should be one of the ten best boosters in school—that she shall be one of the ten best ticket sellers in the University.

On the face of it this proposition looks rather cold clooded, in fact mercenary. As a matter of fact George Ade would doubtless class these track stars as "wise birds." Without question the hosts made a very wise offer. In all probability they will be entertaining next Tuesday night ten of the most popular girls in the University. It takes a real girl in every way to win out in such a challenge.

EDITORIAL OF THE DAY

(The Bulletin)
 BE A GLOOM CHASER.

Societies have recently been formed in certain sections of the country, under the somewhat formidable name of "Noble Order of Gloom Chasers." The organization was first started among employes of industrial plants, wholesale and retail houses and those engaged in clerical work, but the movement has now spread until it embraces almost every line of endeavor.

The object is to preach optimism at all times. The dues it is stated are "one smile a day."

It is a great thing to be a chaser of gloom. There can be no greater ambition than to make people happy. There is too much that is drab and doleful and melancholy in this world at the present time. There are too many heart aches and thin, pleading hands. There are too many people who for some uncountable reason make it their business to spread the thought of gloom and melancholy among their fellow beings instead of letting in the sunshine.

"Father," said pretty Madge, "I've got a lot of things to talk to you about."

"Good," said father, "you usually talk to me about a lot of things you haven't got."

Rag makes paper.
 Paper makes money.
 Money makes banks.
 Banks makes loans.
 Loans make poverty.
 Poverty makes rags.

"Gimme a cigar."
 "What kind—strong or weak?"
 "Gimme a strong one—the weak ones break in my pocket."
