IT'S NOT EXCLUSIVE.

Engineers' Week is not exclusive. Although the members of that college will always receive the credit for starting the idea, this does not prevent the members of the Arts and Sciences the Law College, or any other college at the University of Nebraska from setting aside a week which may be cherished as seven days devoted entirely to the needs and betterment of that particular college.

It does not necessarily have to be a week. A few days speeches, stunts, athletic events, social affairs and general festivities which mirror the enthusiasm of any department serve to build up the morale of the department.

The fact that a particular college within the University is so well known that it does not need such a celebration to call the attention of other students to its existence is a very weak argument. The purpose of the week is not to attract attention—it is to help the members in a particular department to take an inventory of that department, so to speak—to weigh its needs and shortcomings. All departments are so well known that they do not attract the attention of others to their existence.

THE STUDENT.

There's a word we speak and write many times each day and yet it has not become hackneyed for want of a better substitute. It is the word "student." This word has two accepted usages, but what exactly does it really mean?

In our ordinary college vernacular, a student is any member of a particular school regardless of standing—a mere individual. To many people—usually those who have reached or passed middle age—a student is one who is learned, industrious, over-conscientious and fond of digging deep into the mysteries of the fathomless—in short a so-called worm who thinks that books alone hold the key to personality.

"Student"—we believe—means neither of these things in its truest sense. It does not mean merely an unattached projectile flying through the space of our educational institutions, nor does it mean the educational hermit or recluse. There is a half-way house. The student in its correct application seems to us to be the man or woman who sees a duty to books—but does not lose sight of duty to fellowmen and the world at large. The real student is a deep thinker and a firm believer in play as well—to react the severe strain that is sometimes given to tired brain cells.

When we think of the student let us think of one gifted along intellectual lines but also of one who knows what makes personality.

Let us think of one who has made a study of everything worth-while and not merely of one who has gleaned all his knowledge from the storehouse of books.

TALK OMAHA DAY.

The city of Omaha has again invited Nebraska students to visit her. The art galleries, the schools, industrial plants and other places of great educational interest will be opened wide on Friday, May 6. Studied and the day declared a holiday, dents must show a sufficient interest in this invitation if it is to be accepted—says Dean C. C. Engberg.

Students should make their decision known at the earliest opportunity through the members of the Omaha Club. Surely Cornhuskers will accept without hesitation this offer of entertainment on the part of the Nebraska metropolis. It has been two years since Omaha Day was observed, but all who were here at that time remember the royal reception accorded them at this time in the Gate City. The entertainments under the auspices of the Omaha Commercial Club and the famous banquet at the Fontenelle. Surely you will want another such day of celebration this year.

OMAHA DAY IS HONORED TRADITION

Omaha day is a tradition of the University which has been observed every spring for many years with the exception of last year when it was abandoned because the Omaha alumni, upon whom the success of Omaha day depends mainly, were busy working on the campaign to raise funds for a memorial stadium. This year the co-operation of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce, the Nebraska Alumni Association and various business firms in Omaha with the University Omaha Club, Phi Omega fraternity and the deans of the colleges, has made feasible the revival of Omaha day.

On each Omaha day the doors of the business houses and institutions of Omaha are thrown open to the students who are taken through in groups on inspection trips.

SOPHOMORE WRESTLERS TAKE BIG END OF SCORE

Much Interest Taken in Inter-Class Mat Affairs.

The finals in the inter-class wrestling matches closed yesterday with the Sophomore class taking most of the points. The Sophomores won three matches and the Freshmen and Juniors won one each. The 175-pound class match is to be run off later.

In the 125-pound division, Margolin, a Junior, won over Dunham of the first year class in the final bout. Issacson, a Sophomore, captured the 135-pound title by defeating Kuhn, a Freshman. The 145-pound division went to the Sophomores when Thomas threw Cook, a Freshman, in the finals.

Rystrom won the 158-pound class for the Sophomores by defeating Zink, a Freshman. Reed of the Freshman class won the heavyweight decision by beating Neff, a Junior. The inter-class meet has a large number of entries and a great deal more interest was taken in the mat game this year than in previous years.

JAZZ BAND TO AID STUDENTS TO MAKE MERRY AT OMAHA

bold the dance and carnival, because of the fine new floor and the facility with which the hall lends itself to decoration. It is just the right size for an all-University party. A roof-garden effect is given by the fact that it is on the eighth floor and is surrounded by a roomy open-air promenade. It has direct elevator service from the entrance. The decoration committee has promised that the auditorium will be elaborately decorated in true Nebraska style. One of the best orchestras in Omaha has been engaged for the dance.

The whole program will carry out the carnival effect. And of course there will be refreshments. The committee is working up a number of surprises and clever stunts to make the event a fitting climax of the best Omaha day that Nebraska University has ever seen.
